HEARS THE TICKET

New York Republicans Name Him to Succeed Gov. Roosevelt.

Timothy L. Woodruff for Lieutenant-Governor.

Ex-Governor Black Makes Speech Nominating Odell.

Senator Depew Also Addresses the Convention.

POLICIES THAT HAVE BROUGHT UNPRECEDENTED NATIONAL PROSPERITY AND RESCUED INDUSTRY FROM PARALYSIS.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 5.—The state republican convention in session here today nominated the following ticket: Governor—B. B. Odell, of Orange. Lieutenant governor—Timothy L. Woodruff, of Kings.

Secretary of state—John T. McDonough, of Albany.

Comptroller—William J. Morgan, of Erie.

State treasurer—John P. Jackel, of Cayuga.

Attorney general—John C. Davies, of Oneida.

State engineer—Edward A. Bond, of Jefferson.

The speech nominating Benjamin B. Odell for governor was made by Former Governor Frank S. Black, who has been outside the organization breast-works since Theodore Roosevelt defeated him two years ago, when he desired a renomination. Mr. Black said the issues now before the American people were discussed and settled four years ago.

"There is not a new one here," he continued, "the ghost of anti-imperialism which stalks to and fro between Lincoln and Bloomington, with occasional manifestations in Boston, is not and cannot be made an issue. This country is, and has been committed to the policy of growth and it cannot be swerved from that policy by new scarecrows erected along the way. The issues now are as they were in 1896. They were then met and understood as completely as the Spanish fleet at Santiago, they were sunk or run ashore. The democratic party since then has been engaged in prying some of them off the rocks and trying to make them float. That will never be done. Those issues will never be seaworthy again, and if they are the American people will not embark on them while they have fluttering at their mastheads flags with the democratic inscriptions of disorder, disappointment and despair. That party seems never to understand the temper or the intelligence of the people. It has endeavored in every campaign for forty years to make the discarded heresies of the preceding campaign presentable by joining a live heresy to the old dead ones."

Mr. Black closed with a eulogy of Mr. Odell, whom he presented for the gubernatorial nomination.

Senator Depew presented the name of Timothy L. Woodruff for lieutenant governor. Mr. Depew said among other things: "Free silver, free trade, assaults on the supreme court and efforts to throw away the results of the war, a cowardly disposition to scuttle are threatening the strongholds of national faith, national credit and national power. Our fight is to hold the front. For the purpose we require for our leaders in our state men of demonstrated capacity, public men who, in official relations to the affairs of the government have become familiar with our policies and measures, and politicians who have been so in touch with the party that they can maintain harmony within the ranks and present an impregnable front and lead a resistless attack against the forces of the enemy."

"We are fortunate in our candidate for president. The policies of his administration, which have been the principles that he has been the ablest advocate of for the last twenty years, have given us an unprecedented national prosperity and rescued industry from paralysis. Not only the United States, but every civilized and semi-civilized country on the globe is today giving unstinted admiration to the statesmanship, the generalship and the diplomacy of William McKinley."

Coming to the question of expansion and the argument that that policy is opposed to the spirit of the declaration of independence, Senator Depew said: "We all believe in the declaration of independence. We all rejoice in the principles of that immortal document. There is nothing which Colonel Bryan can say in his claim for the exclusive ownership of the things taught in the declaration of independence that has not been more brilliantly said and actually done by republican statesmen. But when Colonel Bryan went to Kentucky, at the time when, under an infamous election law, the state was to be stolen by his friends from the officers who had been lawfully returned as elected by the democrat returning boards and gave his sanction and the weight of his great authority as a democrat to the thieves, where then was his idea of the consent of the governed? These citizens of Kentucky who were to be deprived of their rights and governed without their consent were not tribes of an archipelago in the Pacific ocean, but they were men who had performed heroic service for a hundred years in the battle for liberty and citizenship."

Mr. Depew closed with the statement that the republican ticket in this state would be greatly strengthened by the nomination for lieutenant governor of Timothy L. Woodruff, who, he said, represented in its best sense the business man in politics and who meets all the requirements of the ever discussed question in the colleges of the educated man in politics.

Mr. Odell in accepting the nomination said:

"Important as the state issues are, they are overshadowed by matters involved in the national campaign. To my mind the paramount issue is the re-election of William McKinley. Re-elect him and the policies already in force and to be inaugurated will place us upon a higher plane than ever before and we shall enjoy the fruition of our home for general prosperity. Every dollar of obligation will continue to be worth one hundred cents, and wherever our flag floats, it will be respected because American manhood has baptized it with blood."

ARTHUR SEWALL DEAD.

Death Came to the Shipbuilder After a Stroke of Apoplexy.

Bath, Me., Sept. 5.—Hon. Arthur Sewall died at 8:30 o'clock this morning of apoplexy at his summer home, Small Point, about 12 miles from this city, the stroke having been sustained last Sunday. He was 64 years of age.

Mr. Sewall had not been in good health for some time, although he was not considered to be seriously ill. He had been advised by his physician to rest as early as last June, and he attended the democratic national convention in July against the advice of his doctor. He appeared to have suffered no ill effects from the journey, however, and was passing the summer quietly at Small Point, when the fatal stroke seized him. The unconsciousness which followed the attack continued until death came.

Arthur Sewall was born in Bath in November, 1835. His father, W. D. Sewall, was for years prominent as a shipbuilder and the son fitted himself for the same trade. In 1855, by forming the partnership of E. and A. Sewall, he continued the calling of one of the oldest shipbuilding families in Maine. Upon the death of his brother, Edward Sewall, the firm of Arthur Sewall & Co. was formed, and the corporation controls one of the largest American sailing fleets. Mr. Sewall also was one of the prominent railroad men of New England. For nine years he was president of the Maine Central and he was president of the Eastern railroad until it was absorbed by the Boston and Maine. For many years he was the Maine representative on the democratic national committee, and in 1896 he was made the choice of his party for vice president. Mr. Sewall is survived by two sons, Harold M. Sewall, who was stationed by the government at Hawaii, and William D. Sewall, who is in business in Bath.

CRAWFORD'S REFUSAL

Declined Offer of Agreement Submitted to Him by Major Moody.

That all Votes Honestly Cast Shall be Counted.

First Meeting in the Joint Canvass at Robbinsville.

Court House Filled to Hear Congress

MOODY DISCUSSES THE GOVERNMENT'S POLICY IN THE PHILIPPINES AND DENOUNCES THE "ISSUE OF IMPERIALISM"—POWER GRANTED BY THE CONSTITUTION.

Robbinsville, Graham County, Sept. 4.—The Ninth district congressional campaign was opened by the joint debate between the Hon. J. M. Moody, the republican, and the Hon. W. T. Crawford, the democratic candidate, here today before a large audience as the court house could comfortably hold.

Mr. Moody opened with a clear and forcible presentation of the issues of the campaign, logical and convincing, and free from ranting, in strong contrast to the speech of Mr. Crawford, who shifted from one subject to another with such rapidity that it was hard to remember anything but his jokes—some of which were good.

Mr. Moody said in part:

"The people of Graham know me. They are acquainted with me and I am acquainted with the people of Graham."

"I was nominated by acclamation at Waynesville at one of the largest conventions that has ever been held in this country and I am proud of being the standard bearer of the great party with its glorious past and its promise of usefulness for the future."

"When I cast my first vote the democratic party were clamoring for a chance; a chance to show what they could do if they were given the power to do it. Well they got their chance at last for the only time in nearly fifty years, when under Cleveland in his second term they had a majority in both houses. What did they do with their perfectly free and untrammelled chance? The people of the country gave their verdict when congress became overwhelmingly republican at the next election. Crawford was an elector on the Cleveland ticket in 1888 and I heard him call Mr. Cleveland the 'Man of destiny,' one of the greatest and grandest men the world had ever seen. I call on Mr. Crawford right now to tell this crowd what he now thinks of the only president his party has put in office for so many years."

"The republican party is proud of every president it has had. I have no apology to make for its presidents, its history or its achievements. It is the party of achievement, the democratic party puts in all its time and energy in kicking about what the republican party is doing. They have accomplished nothing themselves except to bring on the hard times that could only be relieved by putting the republican party back in power."

"I spoke here during court term last June, and I told you that if the democracy won in the August election in this state its majority would come from the black belt. In the great white belt of the state here where the blue hills lift their peaks towards the blue heavens where the love of human liberty is drunk in with the pure water of the mountain springs; here where I was born in a little cabin by the river there within sight of this court house the amendment was defeated. Crawford spoke in almost every township in this district and urged its adoption. I opposed it and I still oppose it, and I warn you that the time will come after it goes into effect July 1, 1902, when some democrat will disfranchise the illiterate white by going into court to claim that 'grandfather clause' is unconstitutional, as it is, and that therefore votes of illiterate whites are void."

literate white by going into court to claim that 'grandfather clause' is unconstitutional, as it is, and that therefore votes of illiterate whites are void.

"The twelve blackest counties of the state gave over 21,000 of the 60,000 majority claimed for the amendment. The twelve whitest counties in the state gave the largest majorities against it."

"I favor fair elections. The history of the democratic party does not show that it does. I have one fear and but one fear. If we have a fair election and a fair count I will go to Washington as your representative in congress."

"There were frauds enough right here at home. At Flat Creek 221 republican ballots were placed in the wrong box and then thrown out, causing the defeat of John Stamey for the state senate and electing Mr. Crawford's kinsman, W. W. Stringfield. Were those ballots in the wrong box by mistake of the election officers? Not one democratic vote was in the wrong box. These 221 votes were white votes. The negro counties are overwhelmingly democratic as you know."

"You have all heard of the 'floating vote.' J. C. Leatherwood, a democratic judge of elections, showed a new conception of the meaning of the term, and that the floating vote did not count for the republican party when after mistaking, not one ballot box for another but his pocket for the ballot box, he took the ballots from his pocket and deposited them in the creek that ran eight steps from the ballot box. He was seen to do this, and some men jumped into the creek and fished out 47 republican ballots, took them to Joshua Allison's house and dried them on his stove, brought them to Waynesville at 2 o'clock in the morning and they are now in my safe sealed up and ready to be used as evidence in the prosecution of Leatherwood."

"I am against that sort of thing. I hope my opponent is. I am going to find out right now."

"Two years ago the fraud was perpetrated in the western part of the state. It was perpetrated by the democratic party against Richmond Pearson and proved before the congress of the United States, the only tribunal competent to decide the case, the tribunal provided by the constitution."

"He charged bribery at Limestone and proved it."

"He charged ballot box stuffing at Black Mountain and proved it."

"He charged destruction of scrolls at Old Fort and proved it."

"I don't charge Crawford with fraud personally, but he is in a bad

SEYMOUR'S DETAILED REPORT OF RELIEF EXPEDITION MADE PUBLIC—EULOGIZES THE VALOR AND ASSISTANCE OF THE AMERICANS.

London, Sept. 5.—The following despatch, dated Peking, August 29, was received tonight: "The allied troops marched into the forbidden city yesterday. Each army was represented in proportion to its strength. The British had their place in the procession, the Russians and Japanese being in much greater strength. We were represented by detachments of all corps, aggregating 400. A salute was fired by our artillery."

SEYMOUR'S REPORT.

London, Sept. 5.—The admiral has issued Admiral Seymour's detailed report on the attempt to relieve Peking. The report contains a copy of a letter sent by Seymour to the chief officer of each nationality on the return of the expedition. The letter to the chief officer of the American forces is addressed to Admiral Kempff. Seymour thanks Kempff for sending a force to act in concert with him and expresses his sense of the valuable co-operation accorded him by Captain McCall and all under that officer. He eulogizes the valor of the Americans and expresses a belief that the participation of the Americans and English in the relief expedition will be to cement the good feeling between the United States and England. He highly praises McCall and the men under him and says their post was usually in advance. He expresses regret at the wounding of McCall but says he is thankful that he is alive.

FANNING THE FLAMES OF INSURRECTION.

New York, Sept. 5.—A despatch to the Herald from Hong Kong says: Influential natives state that the flame of rebellion has been fanned in the southern provinces and predict a tremendous conflagration within a month. Placards and pamphlets are being circulated in Canton and the provinces intimating that the allies are thoroughly routed. The feeling against foreigners is bursting the bounds of official control.

The majority of the mission stations in Kwang Tung have been either destroyed or looted. Native Christians are terribly abused. Natives in foreign employ in Canton have been threatened and a systematic looting of houses of English speaking Chinamen has taken place. Several reform parties, with headquarters in Hong Kong, who have been supported by funds from rich Chinese in the interior and in America have hitherto refrained from aggressive action, believing that
