J. E. Merrill bought the Star restaurant on South Main street from one Brown. After the transaction had been made the purchaser found that the property was encumbered with a mortgage. Brown went to the station to meet a relative, as everyone thought, but instead of doing this he took the train for the east. Mr. Merrill telegraphed ahead, and had Brown arrested at Salisbury. The officers did not bring him back to Asheville, however, as he paid the amount of the mortgage. A sewing machine and some other household effects belonging to Brown were seized at the station.

Secretary Trent of the Young Men's Institute has written the following letter to the colored men of Asheville: "There is being conducted at the Young Men's Institute a night school for your benefit. It offers to those who have not had the advantage of an education a rare opportunity to improve their present condition. Will you accept of it? We urge upon you not to allow such an opportunity to pass without making the best of it. If there ever was a time when we need to think seriously, yea, very seriously on the subject of an education, it is now. Competent teachers have been selected and all who come will be given the best attention and instruction. Three nights a week will be devoted to the school—Tuesday night, Thursday night and Friday night, from 8 to 9:30 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Noland have returned from their wedding trip. The Washington Star, in giving an account of the wedding said: "The wedding of Miss Edith Louise Maxwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Maxwell, and Mr. D. Govan Mills Noland of Asheville, N. C., took place last evening at her home. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Bevans, assistant pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. The bride was given away by her father. Her gown was of white mousseline de soie over taffeta silk, trimmed with duchess lace. The maid of honor, Miss Marie Maxwell, was gowned in pink silk mousseline. Mr. Noland was attended by Judge William P. Brown, of Asheville. The house was decorated with palms and blue's roses, and the mantels and mirrors were banked with golden rods. The reception was largely attended. Mr. and Mrs. Noland will make their home to Asheville."

For Colds, Grip and Chills.
This is not a patent medicine advertisement—it's only intended to extol the merits of our whisky and cordials for common ailments especially prevalent at this season of the year. They are not only relievers and cures—they are often preventives. Our Old Maryland brand of whisky, with a little sugar or syrup added, will knock out a troublesome cough, and times out of ten—and it's good to the taste.
