There has been considerable development in copper mining in the northeastern part of this state-in what is known as the Granville copper belt comprising the counties of Person, Granville and Halifax. In these hree counties eight mines are at work, and are shipping dut large quantities of ore which averages nearly 20 per cent. These ores are bornite and gray copper glance.

The Dutch Creek mine which was the property of the late J. J. Newman and a few other parties was sold at the Rowan court house Monday by Captain W. Murdoch Wiley, receiver. The bidding was started at $200 and for a while was spirited. It was finally knocked down to Mr. Charles L. Herzig for $1,-225. Mr. Herzig also purchased a boiler remaining from the personal property and will, we understand shortly begin the development of the property. The sale, however, is yet to be confirmed by the court.

The Gastonia Gazette says that Belmont is to have a 5,000 spindle cotton mill capatalized at 100,000. The money is all within reach and the site has been purchased. Mr. Robert Stowe, of the firm of Stowe Brothers, is the chief promoter and will be secretary and 'treasurer. The entire community is interested, the stock having been subscribed in small amounts by many people. Outside of the $100,000 taken by the promoter, the largest subscription is $5,000; the remainder was taken in smaller amounts. The site was purchased from Mrs. A. Stowe and Dr. W. W. Davis.

Yesterday evening about 7 o'clock a colored man named Jim Stewart fell from the bucket bringing him up, and dropped 100 feet, killing him instantly. We are not able to verify everything rumored in connection with the acident, but in a talk with a Gold Hill gentleman it seems that Stewart was being drawn up in the bucket, and before anybody realized what was done. he had fallen to the ground and death was instantaneous. This makes a second similar death, Will Myers having met death in the mine last fall. In proportion to the number of men employed and the hazardous nature of the work, the workmen have been singularly fortunate.-Truth-Index. 3rd.

SHAKING PALSY.

A Weakening, Nervous Affection Which Is Seldom Cured.

Shaking palsy, or Paralysis agitans, as it is called by physicians, is a nervous affection in which there is a weakness, almost amounting to actual paralysis at times, combined with a constant and un controllable jerking of the muscles. The affection is classed among the dis eases of old age, but it is not very rare in younger persons and may occur even in children. As a rule, it begins gradual ly, the first thing noticed being an un steadiness of the hands or perhaps : trembling movement of only one finger generally the thumb. With this there may be moderate pain, which is supposed to be rheumatic. The trembling movement is often intermittent, at first coming and going with out apparent cause, but later it becomepermanent and extends to other parts finally involving both arms and legs Less frequently the neck muscles pur ticipate in the movements, the head then nodding, turning or moving from side to side. The muscles of the face and the tongue may also be implicated. In conjunction with the trembling the muscles are weak and may be almost incapable of voluntary movements, and the patient feels tired and longs for the constant shaking to cease. The trembling does cease during sleep, and it is also less marked when one executes voluntary movements.

The onset of the affection, although commonly gradual, as we have said, is in some cases very sudden, following some great mental or physical shock. In later stages of the disease the muscles of the body become more or less stiffened, the back is bent, the head is inclined forward and the various segments of the arms and legs are slightly flexed one on the other.

The rigidity of the muscles of the face gives to the countenance a fixed expression of sadness, of indifference, or it may be of bad temper. There is a peculiar gait. something like that of a drunken man. who has to walk very fast or even run to overcome his tendency to fall forward. Shaking palsy is seldom cured, but it D. & H. .. .. .. 153% 151 does not always get worse and may continue for years without apparent change one way or the other. ranch, and conduct it. I have read and heard a great deal about the wost and some of the south, both places have their advantages and disadvantages. but weighing the two, 1 have come down through here on purpose to see and find out what I could concerning this line of work.

Throughout this locality I was somewhat surprised at the price of land as well as size of the valleys. As I was wandering up through these mountains I could not help but think how extravagant nature was, for it seems to me if these hills were smoothed out they would make another United States. Land is much higher here than I expected to find it (when I speak of land here I mean ground that is part tillable). The vaileys along the streams are very narrow, being only few acres that are in tillable condition. These mountain slopes that are not too steep and rugged could soon be covered with fine grass, and made the finest pasture and grazing land one could obtain. I examined very closely the soil in several places and find it to be very mellow, and what I would call very rich soil. Red soils aregoed for fruits and grasses and produce good yields. I cannot see that it would take a great amount of work to get some of these mountain slopes in condition to take to grass, and when once set in grass it can hardly be killed out. Orchard grass, blue grass, timothy, all do well down here. With this amount of pasture and few acres of tillable soil I can see no reason why the sheep business would not be very profitable in the south. This the 11th day of January, and there has not been a day this winter but that they could be grazing, and with pasture left for them during winter months, very little if any grain line to A. W. Webb's south west corwould have to be fed. A great amount of profit would be in the fact that they would consume little or no grain feed during winter months. They very seldom have a snow here to stay on more than two or three days at a time.

The complaint here seems to be the dog. In my opinion one would want enough sheep to keep a shepherd with them all the time.

It is not the fault of the land here that little or nothing is produced on it. The hills and valleys are very ertile and when not farmed to death will always produce a good yield. Why these farmers will allowed hay to be shipped here and never sold for less than North Carolina, in book No. 36 of mort from $12 to $18 per ton, and a great ma. ny other products that could be raised here, I do not know. Apples could be sold on 'trees, all one could raise at 40c per bushel; pears, plums and peaches always bring a good price, especially the plums. Orchards are not hard to raising. My ideal is to own a sheep may be appropriate for the purposes of d or oration. This a 10th day of January 1901. -RANK CARI JR, Attorney.
