I am—myself—thirty-three year, and of fifty years I have been a great sufferer from indigestion, constipation and biliousness. I have tried all the remedies advertised for these diseases, and got no permanent relief. About one year ago, in his case assuming a more severe and dangerous form, I became very weak and lost flesh rapidly. I commenced using Dr. Mozeley's Lemon Elixir. THE TORPEDO BOAT FLEET.

Torpedo Boat Depots May be Established Along the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. Washington, April 15.—The recently appointed torpedo boat board held a session to-day at the Navy Department and considered general plans of action. The many destroyers and torpedo craft now building at the several yards are practically completed and very soon the navy will have a total of fifty-one boats of this class for active service. The purpose of the board will not be to determine how this class of boats can be used as an adjunct of war, but more particularly to make a policy for peace times that will make most serviceable in an emergency. Owing to the lack of naval officers, it is not considered feasible to keep the boats afloat all the time, with a full complement of officers and men as there are barely enough officers of the large ships. Some plans, therefore, must be devised for keeping the torpedo boats convenient central points, where they can be made available in time of need, and yet may be out of commission during ordinary times. One of the members of the board, Lieutenant Chandler, suggested some time ago that various torpedo boat depots be established along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, as central points from which the boats could be made available in time of need. Some such plan, doubtless will be adopted. One of his suggestions now made is that Savannah, Ga., Port Royal, S. C., and Pensacola, Fla., be among the depots in Southern waters. Boston and some other point along the New England coast probably will be designated as depots in that locality. According to the plans suggested, each depot is to be supplied with a marine railway, having a cradle running into the water, on which the torpedo boats can be floated and run out if water when not in use.
