Gleanings From the Columns of Local Papers in Various Towns of State.

Rev. J. B. Carpenter, pastor of the Methodist church in Bakersville, was in town Wednesday. He said the people of Bakersville had received about $1,000 relief fund. The flood, he said, washed the room off of his dwelling that contained his dibrary .- Marion

News was received here this morning that the safe in the office of the Mayodan Cotton mills was blown open last night, but the burglars failed to get a dollar as there was no money in the safe. Mr. W. C. Ruffin, the manager of the mill, reports that there is no clue yet to the guilty party .- Winston Sentinel.

The curfew bell has been re-instated here and the stores and business houses will close again during the summer months as they did last year. The cerfew rings at 6:55, and stores are closed at 7 o'clock. When you want anything from the stores you must be there before seven o'clock or wait till the next day. The drug store is not closed at seven .- Randolph Argus.

It is understood that the next move in the gold brick cases will be an effort to get them into the Federal court. Upon what grounds this is to be done is not yet made known. In fact it may be stated that the plans are not yet ! matured; that is to say, the attorneys are probably engaged in looking up the do so .- Greensboro Record.

Mr. E. B. Leonard arrived in the city last night from Ramseur to make arrangements for hotel accommodations for his brother and latter's wife. They will arrive in the city today with their 6-weeks old child. The child several days ago managed to get a safety pin in its mouth, which lodged in the throat and its parents bring it here to have the pin removed .- Salisbury Sun.

Yardmaster Haynes, of the Southern passenger yard, has found a new friend -a dog, who "took up" with him several days ago, and who superintends all the shifting done in the yard. He jumps on the foot board of the shifter and rides with the train hands; watches the breaking loose or coupling up and shift with the train. He never leaves the yardmaster's side. The latter has become attached to the dog, and will keep him and pay the tax on him .- Charlotte News.

The 10-year-old son of Dr. J. R. Anderson, who was operated upon last week by Dr. H. F. Long, of Statesville, for appendicitis, is said to be now getting along nicely and on the road to recovery. The patient was frail and gangrenous systoms had developed, so that recovery was at first considered, doubtful. The operation was under the eyes of a number of physicians and was pronounced well done. The little fellow's improvement will be heard with gladness by the many friends of the family.-Morganton News.

ROYAL NAMES A HOODOO. One of the Strongest Superstitions

of the English Navy. One of the very strongest and most ineffaceable of all superstitions in the royal navy, a superstition that is almost as strong today as ever it was, is that vessels bearing the names of royal personages are doomed to ill luck, and, strange as it may seem, there is an undeniable historic basis for this

Some of the most terrible disasters ever known in connection with our navy have concerned war vessels with royal names. Two vessels called the Royal James came to disastrous ends. One of them exploded, and some 800 officers and seamen perished. The othor ship so named was actually carried out of the mouth of the Thames by the Dutch Admiral de Ruyter under circumstances disgraceful to those in charge of the craft.

Then there is the forever memorable disaster to the Royal George, an unlucky ship previously, that turned over and sank in sight of crowds at Spithead, over 1,000 souls, among whom were 300 women, being sacrificed. And second only to this hideous disaster is that which afterward befell the Royal Charlotte, which, after a career of authorities on the subject, but they much vicissitude, was consumed by quietly express the belief that they can gire off Leghorn, over 800 of the very flower of the navy perishing with her.

When in 1893 the Victoria, a new vessel and the very triumph of modern invention so far as naval architecture went, was rammed and sank at once in sight of the whole fleet and when hundreds of lives were lost, there was not a sailor, however matter of fact he might be, who did not remember the dire fate of the royally named craft. These instances are only the greater ones. A score of smaller ones are reeled off by every royal navy man .- Tit-

Paid For His Joke.

The editor is fond of a joke and has the good sense to appreciate one at his own expense. A few weeks ago he was walking with a friend, and at the corner of a busy thoroughfare he saw a dilapidated looking Hibernian standing at the opposite corner gazing listlessly into vacancy.

"Watch me surprise this old fellow," said he to his friend. "Look right into his face and see if it won't be a study." A second later they were abreast of the son of Erin, and the editor pulled out a silver coin and said as he thrust it into the man's hand: "Here's that half a crown I owe you. Now, don't go round any more telling people that I don't pay my debts."

For a second the man's face was a study. He was amazed at the unlooked for kindness, and then, as its purport dawned on him, he raised his hat and said: "Heaven bless yer 'onner! I'll never say another word ag'in ye. But," and his eyes twinkled merrily, 'are ye sure it wasn't a crown ye owed me?"

The friend roared: "Oh, pay the man in full! Don't try to beat him out of a paltry half crown." The Irishman got his crown, but the editor no longer pays his debts at sight now .- London Telegraph.

A Very Good Reason, A Bradford costermonger was brought before the magistrates for cruelty to his donkey. When the case had been gone into, the magistrates, seeing it was his first appearance, wishful to let him off, asked him if he could get any one to say any. thing in his fa-or. Looking round the court and pointing to the chief constable, he said:. "That man can." The chief constable was amazed and immediately said: "I know nothing of him."

"Will that do?" said the accused. "If he had known anything bad of me, he would have said it." He was allowed to go.-London An
