

DEATH STRIKES IN HEAD-ON COLLISION

Fast Passenger Train Rounding a Curve Collides With Steam Derrick Running "Wild"—Both Engines Wrecked.

Rochester, N. Y. Feb. 26.—As the result of a collision on the Auburn branch of the New York Central, 7 miles west of Auburn, between a west bound passenger train and a steam derrick late last night seven trainmen are dead, two seriously injured and two missing.

The dead:
Edward F. Vine, of this city, baggageman on the passenger.
Frank Hines, fireman, of this city.
John Heisman, engineer, of this city.
Engineer Durand, Syracuse.
John Evans, member of the derrick crew.
Thomas Burke, Syracuse, derrick crew.

Joe Shoemaker, fireman, of this city.
Edward H. Kenner, a trainman, and Thomas Shipmuck, of the derrick crew, are seriously hurt. It is reported two other men are missing.

As the passenger train was rounding a curve a few miles west of Aurelius, going at a fast clip, it met the steam derrick running "wild" from Canadaigua to Syracuse. The two engines were badly wrecked. Engineer Heisman and his fireman, of the passenger train, were pinned under the wreckage and after an hour's work were taken out dead. The other dead men were subsequently removed from the heap of wreckage. No passengers were injured. The blame for the accident, it is thought, rests with the steam derrick crew.

The engine and nine coal cars passed on safely, but the rest of the train plunged 40 feet into the deep water of the river.

The tank cars, filled with petroleum, exploded and set fire to the bridge and the portions of the cars above the water. The burning oil ran in a blazing stream down the river and for almost 2 miles the Roanoke was a sheet of flames. Small craft were endangered by the burning oil.

There were no lives lost. Flagman Martin was slightly injured by jumping.

Mr. Thompson had several hands at work on the canal. At noon all hands went home for dinner except Mr. Thompson and the negro. About 15 minutes thereafter a cave 100 feet long fell into the canal, burying Mr. Thompson and the negro in the bottom of the canal.

The noise produced by the falling cave was heard a distance of nearly 1 mile. Several of the hands heard the noise, rushed back immediately and found the canal almost filled with earth, but Mr. Thompson and the negro were missing.

As soon as the neighbors could be collected about 100 men began the work of excavation. The earth was removed with all possible rapidity, hoping that when the unfortunate men were found they might be alive. The dead body of Mr. Thompson was found about 7 o'clock last night. He was in a standing posture, the top of his head being about 2 feet under the earth.

The canal where Mr. Thompson's body was found is about 20 feet deep. Mr. Thompson was one of the most prominent men in the county, having been a member of the house or senate for the last 10 years.

FAT NERVES.

A whirl of excitement was recently caused in the scientific world by the news that the mystery of nerve action has been solved.

It is announced that healthy nerves are fat nerves—and that it is the fat in the core of the nerve which is sensitive and by hardening and softening creates nerve action.

Maybe this explains why Scott's Emulsion has always been such a remarkable remedy for nervousness.

Scott's Emulsion feeds thin nerves with the best of all fats, the pure cod-liver oil and strengthens them with the best of nerve tonics, the hypophosphites.

For all forms of nervousness and neuralgia take Scott's Emulsion.

YOUNG MEN'S EVENINGS.

Editor of the Gazette: When evening comes and the day's labor is over, where shall it be spent. At the appointed hour hundreds of young men leave the stores, shops, offices, factories and, after a day of toil, they look forward to the evening. They are looking, and rightfully so, for recreation, relaxation and joy. Of course there are those who know the value of books, or of a quiet evening at home, but the crowd are not so. The 85 per cent of our young men whose homes do not attract them will probably look beyond the confines of the places for pleasure. To welcome these young men and give them sociability, fifteen saloons are beautifully lighted and with doors open. The interiors of plate glass, comfortable chairs, cozy fires and congenial bartenders are baits thrown out to them. The pool rooms, billiard halls, etc., could not thrive but for these young men. Why do they go there? Why do they enter saloons? Because we give them no better places. Whenever Christian people and patriotic citizens realize that these forces can only be supplanted by something better they will stop. Our young men go to these places because we can give them nothing better. Young men cannot be driven, but they can be attracted. Should we not at least have one open door in our city that will be more attractive than our most gilded saloons? Should it not be costlier, more richly furnished, filled with games, apparatus, rooms, etc., for the physical, social, intellectual and religious training of men? What say you?

DENIS MULVHILL STOKER AND MAYOR.

An article in the March McClure's that will appeal to all Americans is the character sketch of Maurice Sherman Porter, of the simple, level-headed Irishman who was taken by the people of Bridgeport, Conn., from the fire-room of the big Wheeler & Wilson factory to be their mayor. "Denis Mulvihill, Stoker and Mayor" is a type of the best democracy of the country. He is not a boss; he rules and is ruled by no machine; he was chosen mayor by the people because they believed in his indomitable honesty and efficiency, or, "grudence and economy." Already a partisan of national fame has declared Denis to be the best democratic candidate for governor in his state. Denis' career furnishes one of the 400 few bright chapters in American municipal government.

Look over the Gazette want columns and see if there are any "money to loan" propositions that suit your case. If you don't find what you want, ask for it through a Gazette want ad.
