KING ASTONISHES HIS PHYSICIANS

HAS SHOWN WONDERFUL RE-
RECUPERATIVE PROWESS
SINCE HIS OPERATION.

Confidence in His Complete Recovery Will, However, Not be Justified for a Long Time.

FRIST AUTHENTIC REPORT OF NATURE OF OPERATION

LATEST BULLETIN AGAIN REPORTS RECURRENCE OF PAIN—THE ROYAL PATIENT SMOKES AND READS NOVELS.

London, June 28.—H P. M. bulletin: "King passed comfortable day. His strength been well maintained. Wound occasionally causes discomfort."

London, June 28.—There is no doubt the king has astonished his physicians by his remarkable rally from a grave operation. He has shown wonderful recuperative powers. The rapidity of his progress thus far tends to discredit the idea generally held that his manner of life has drained the store of his vitality. It is unreasonable to jump at the conclusion that complete recovery is assured. Such confidence will be unjustified for a considerable time yet and the doctors have not yet announced whether a second operation is imperative after strength is restored. It is shown that the appendix has not yet been touched by surgeons and there yet remains the question whether this must be removed later on.

The sick room report that has most surprised medical men was that the king is allowed to smoke. The story was scooped at first but it is known to be true. The king has been a large consumer of tobacco all his life and a complete deprivation of this pleasure the doctors found threatened greater damage in consequence of his nervous resistance than would a small indulgence of his craving. One of the callers yesterday found the king with his head slightly propped up, a French novel in one hand and a cigar in the other looking quite comfortable.

London, June 28.—Reynolds' newspaper alleges to be able to state reliably that the king is afflicted with diabetes.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SURGICAL OPERATION

London, June 28.—A version of the operation on the king from a source believed to have positive knowledge on the subject tells in plain language what happened. It is as follows: Sir Frederick Treves made a quick incision about four inches long through the skin and thick layer of adipose tissue to the abdominal muscles over the abscess. An instrument resembling a blunt probe was pushed through the muscles without cutting them, into the pus sack within. A large quantity of pus was immediately released. An instrument resembling saws with the outside, instead of the inside, blades sharpened was then slid along on a groove on the side of the probe into the abscess. This instrument was kept closed until the probe was withdrawn. Then the saws were opened, making a free opening within the sack. The pus relieved by this means amounted to almost 22 ounces. The wound was thoroughly debrided with anti-septic solutions and a drainage tube inserted. The wound was then closed with sutures and the operation completed. There was not even a free opening of the abdominal cavity and no attempt made to remove the vermiform appendix. It was taken for granted that the abscess itself practically destroyed it and that no subsequent operation would be necessary. The last sentence of the 11 o'clock bulletin tonight suggests fears similar to those entertained Thursday evening when the bulletin spoke of a recurrence of pain in the wound. The doctors then feared it might foreshadow septic poisoning. It is hoped however that the discomfort mentioned in tonight's bulletin will shortly disappear.

AGUINALDO A FIGUREHEAD

DEWEY'S UNCOMPLIMENTARY OPINION OF FILIPINO LEADER.

Explains His Statement that Aguinaldo Took Most of Insurgents' Property.

FILIPINO'S METHODS
LOOT AND PILLAGE

ADMIRAL CONTINUES HIS TESTIMONY BEFORE SENATE COMMITTEE—VOLLEY OF SHARP QUESTIONING FROM CARMACK.

Washington, June 28.—The third day's testimony given by Admiral Dewey before the senate committee on the Philippines began today with a reference to the statement made by the admiral at the first day's proceedings concerning the proffer made by the Spanish governor general to surrender to him. Senator Carmack called attention to the fact that he had said that during the next twenty-four hours after the destruction of the Spanish fleet on May 1 there had been several proffers of surrender on the part of the governor. The admiral replied that he had said that between May 1 and August 13 the governor general had sent word to him more than once that he would be pleased to surrender to the navy. The first proffer he said was made in May through the English consul and subsequent proffers were made through the Belgian consul. At the time, the admiral admitted, Aguinaldo had begun operations around Manila and was working towards the city.

Taking up the thread of the investigation where it was dropped yesterday, Senator Carmack asked the witness if all the trouble in the Philippines had been due to Aguinaldo. "I won't say that," the admiral replied, "but," he added, "I will repeat that if we had had 5,000 troops at Manila on May 1, the city could have been taken possession of and we would have had, at least for the time, no trouble with the natives. They were our friends then."

In reply to other questions put by Senator Carmack concerning Aguinaldo, the admiral said:

"I think you are making too much of Aguinaldo. He was a mere figurehead and was surrounded by stronger men than himself. Mabini was one of these, and General Luna, whom he had killed, was another."

Replying to another question the admiral said it was the general report throughout the east that in 1897, Aguinaldo had betrayed his people to the Spaniards for money. Nor did he remember that this report had been denied by American officers in the Philippines. Among other officers quoted in this connection was General Greene and the admiral called attention to the fact that General Greene had not given his authority.

"If," he said, "Agoncillo told him, I don't think the authority was good."

"Why do you say that Aguinaldo took the lion's share of the property gathered by the insurgents?" "Because he was living at Malolos like a prince. He had nothing when he landed at Manila and he could have produced the means for this ostentation in no other way. He began immediately after arrival to take every dollar in sight. It may be ungrateful in me to state the fact, but it is true that he sent cattle to me—herds of them—for the ships. The stock was taken from the Philippine people."

"Was any statement made of this circumstance at the time?" "No; that is war, as you know."

Continuing his reply to this question the admiral said the Philippine army was then only a mob and without organization and had to be fed and clothed.

"He did as many have done—he made the country support him."

"Did you regard that proceeding as pillage and loot?" "Well, we did not do that way. For instance, I took all the coal in sight, but I paid for it."

Senator Patterson—"Do you refer to Aguinaldo taking property for the support of the army as loot and pillage?" Admiral Dewey—"That is one part of it."

Senator Carmack—"You did not object at that time?"

Admiral Dewey—"No, but he soon got beyond me."

A number of questions were asked in regard to statements made by General Greene, Bell and others, but the witness asked to be excused from criticizing army officers, and the chairman (Senator Beveridge) said he was not required to answer any questions the replies of which would involve such criticism. Thereupon the admiral said he was "very glad" and Senator Carmack said he knew of no such rule, but he supposed he would have to submit. The admiral added that no opinions by others would change his own opinions of Aguinaldo.

Senator Carmack: "Then, it is a fact that you took a man to Manila to be a leader of the native people who had but recently betrayed these people for a bribe?"

Admiral Dewey: "I think that would have made no difference as the country was under a reign of terror."

"Then you wanted a man to organize the natives?"

"No, I did not want any one. Aguinaldo and his people were forced upon me by Counsel Pratt and others."

"Did the counsel and others have any power to force these people upon you?"

"Yes, by constant pressure. I did not want the Filipino refugees, because I did not believe that a half dozen of them would do any good in view of the report that thousands would rise up in insurrection on our arrival at Manila. I thought they would play a very small part."

"Then did you place the country at the mercy of a man who would plunder and rob, notwithstanding you had no need of his services?"

This question the admiral declined to answer and Senator Patterson took the witness, asking if Aguinaldo had ever talked to him on the basis of selling out to the Americans. The admiral replied in the negative, and Mr. Patterson then asked if the Philippine leader had ever asked him for money. The reply was that Aguinaldo had asked him to exchange gold for Mexican dollars.

"I was pretty sure as to where he had gotten the dollars, as he had not brought them with him," said the admiral, "and I thought the fact that he wanted gold was a pretty good indication that he was getting ready to leave. That was one thing which made me think that the man was feathering his own nest, but it was only a suspicion."

Here the admiral again referred to Aguinaldo's style at Malolos, and Senator Patterson asked if that style had Acrimonious Discussion on Canal Lobby Precipitated in the Senate by Morgan.

BUTLER OF MISSOURI LOSES HIS SEAT

RATHBONE ASKS FOR AN INVESTIGATION OF HIS ACTS AS DIRECTOR OF CUBAN POSTS—PETITION REFERRED.

Washington, June 28.—There was something of an acrimonious discussion in the senate today over a resolution by Morgan directing the canal committee to sit during recess to make certain investigations regarding the Panama canal company. Morgan said he wanted to know whether or not the lobby that had been hanging around congress so thick it might almost be cut with a stick, had been receiving or was to receive part of the forty millions. Spooner observed that it might be wise to leave the matter in the hands of the president. Hanna protested he knew nothing about a lobby and said he wanted more convincing proof than newspaper paragraphs that a lobby existed. He seconded Spooner's suggestion that the matter might safely be left to the president and expressed a hope that the resolution would be defeated. This riled Morgan. He emphatically denied that he had indicated that any Senator had been approached by a lobby and said he could not understand why the senator from Ohio should say he had done so. "Unless," he added, (Continued on page four)
