CITY NEWS

The Asheville Hardware Company.

The school committee will meet in the city hall this afternoon at 5 p. m. All persons wishing to settle matters in regard to tuition and all desiring to be exempted from payment of tuition should appear before the committee at that meeting.

The teachers of the First Presbyterian church Sunday school met in the pastor's study last night at 8 o'clock for the study of the lesson. There was a large attendance of the teachers and deep interest in the lesson. Dr. Campbell led the meeting.

The Model school, in connection with the Normal for small children, will open Monday, September 29. The little ones are expected to be promptly in attendance. The other departments opened September 17, with all the rooms taken.

Huntmen will find my line of Hunting Coats, Vests, Hats, Leggings, Guns and rifles the best selected stock in the city at Blomberg's Sporting Goods Department, Patton avenue.

TO BE HANGED IN FAR NORTH

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 19.—According to the latest advices received here, Fred Hardy, the Unimak island murderer, was hanged today at Nome. President Roosevelt having declined to interfere with the sentence of the court. Hardy would have been hanged a year ago but for the fact that Judge Wickersham stayed the execution for 12 months, pending the hearing of an appeal in the United States. The appeal was unsuccessful.

The crime of which Hardy was convicted was brutal in the extreme. He shot down in cold blood and robbed Con and Florence Sullivan and P. J. Rooney, who were his companions on a prospecting expedition to Unimak island. At the time of his trial Hardy declared he was a relative of former Postmaster General John Wannamaker.

The Last Resort.

A near relation of the late Baron Munchausen on the maternal side, lineally descended from Ananias and Sapphira, was telling a party of friends about treering a bull buffalo in one of the great trees of California.

"That story lacks likelihood," remarked the man who knows everything, like so many other men. "The buffalo belongs to the ruminant family, has four or five stomachs and walks on hoofs. It has no claws at all and could no more climb a tree than a Jersey cow."

"As a general proposition you are right," said the story teller, with perfectly unruined aplomb. "but this case was quite exceptional. We were after the buffalo with four of the most vicious dogs that I ever knew. One was a bear hound, one a great dane, one a poodle, or wolfhound, and the other a registered bulldog, with jaws like wrought iron. Well, they brought the buffalo to bay at the foot of the tree and pressed him so blamed hard that he just had to climb. That was his only salvation."—New York Times.

Where Women May Not Pray.

There is a practically universal prohibition against women praying in Mohammedan countries. They are not admitted beyond the thresholds of the mosque; but, on the other hand, the Koran distinctly encourages women to pray in private. Some Hindoo congregations deny the privilege of prayer to their women altogether. Among the Aini, a race supposed to be the aborigines of Japan, women are not permitted to pray or offer sacrifice except in rare cases as the deputies of their husbands. The reason for this practice is that the Aini women are not supposed to possess souls, and therefore their prayers would be quite unavailing. Among the natives of Madagascar women are permitted to pray, but only to the powers of evil, a kind of intercessory prayer. Only men are permitted to address prayers directly to the Supreme Being.

Resisting Power.

Doctors tell us in these days of germs and toxins that the thing that counts most in a case is the "resisting power" of the patient. Some men and women can pass through an epidemic or even be inoculated with its peculiar poison germs and yet shake off infection, unharmed. Others apparently just as healthy succumb to the first contact with disease and sink under it in spite of the best nursing. "Resisting power" is an individual affair, and many surprises come to doctor and nurses as the frail looking patient pulls through and the robust seeming one dies. Medicines can only aid the "resisting power." They can never take its place. It determines in the end life or death in every case.—Scottish American.
