

TORRENT OF BALLOTS ENDS FIRST CONTEST BONUS PERIOD

that the contest department is going to be more busy than ever in figuring out the bonus business. It will require several days to do this and send the certificates to the determined, aggressive hustlers who won the bon's certificates. Those votes are going to prove a mighty source of comfort in those days when business doesn't come just as rapidly as candidates had anticipated.

Look Out for "Dark Horses."

Of course the contest department wouldn't be surprised to see the leaders change frequently within the next few weeks. It would be a queer sort of contest if they did not. There is always the "dark horse" to be reckoned with. And there are always several of them. He is a fellow who thoroughly "sizes up" the situation before entering, and he does not fear the lead of a few thousand votes that another candidate may have.

Very often it is the latest entries who forge to the front with a rapidity which is alarming, and it is because they have been giving the matter careful consideration for some time before starting. They are "ready" when they start, and immediately they put into operation a system that rather chills the ardor of the weak-hearted.

That's why it is a "dark-horse" poor business to be discouraged if you're not standing out where you had hoped to this time. Search yourself and see if you can find some fault within your methods, or within your style of campaign. If not, then take "no" for an answer, for ready, for perhaps you think of soliciting a certain man and then weaken and say "forget it." Well, what's the use? Please, he won't help me. That part indicates just two things: you are weak, and/or you are making the fatal mistake of assuming too much.

Appearances Often Deceive.

Never take anything for granted. It frequently happens you know that it's the black hen that lays the white egg, so there isn't much in appearances. The man from whom you least expect a safe ribbon may be one of those quiet, unassuming chaps who has figured out their own little good chance to win, and will prove to be one of your strongest supporters. If you only seek him out, it is a common experience in the contest field.

No, it's going to mesh work for you if you win one of those thirty-eight magnificient prizes. The Gazette-News likes the people and the people like The Gazette-News. They are demonstrating the appreciation of the paper's generosity in no uncertain manner, and, in turn, they are going to receive ample compensation for their keen insight into the details of this little scheme business proposition.

East Business Judgment.

The one big fact that is announced in this little organ of detail, and which you are asked to rescue, is that this is the grandest opportunity you will likely ever have to own an automobile of your own without the expenditure of anything more than your time and talents. That isn't a trading stamp proposition; it is a big business enterprise and The Gazette-News is glad to observe that its army of observers are not overlooking the opportunities.

A perfect torrent of ballots poured into this office Saturday, brought per mail and sent by mail, and this fact is ample evidence that this contest is about the most popular affair of the kind ever inaugurated in this section of the country. It means that The Gazette-News likes the people and the people like The Gazette-News. They are demonstrating the appreciation of the paper's generosity in no uncertain manner, and, in turn, they are going to receive ample compensation for their keen insight into the details of this little scheme business proposition.

Blue Slips and Bonuses.
As Saturday was a big day, and done in the afternoon, the contest made big gains simultaneously to home. It looks to me like a big night to come. And it was. Bonus bonanza was the word of the word that was being ill-willing to give for a certain amount of constant in the contest made car of effort on our part. Thoughtful boys every single day, and this fact isn't going to wash you out. Next day, contestants looked and talked it, and is going to bring you out. No, the telephone wires were hardened a salami, although that is to be with it. Finally, about mid-morning of the last day, the contest made round time to you. You most certainly could wish for a moment to the ends. Kitchen he gazed as eye at the menu and then thoughtfully, but naturally minded, items.
