English Ladies as "Traders."

While we are confidently informed through the large metropolitan papers that are trying to get accurate information on this important subject, that the cost of living in England is less, proportionately, than in our own country, even the women of title in England are in these days earning comfortable incomes or accumulating fortunes by "going into trade." Lady Attock is serving in the costume department of a west end London shop. Lady Duff Gordon is the famous dressmaker, known as "Lucile." Countess Fabricotti set up as a milliner three years ago in a little shop in South Moulton street. She made a lot of money and on her marriage a few months ago to Count Alton sold out the good will of the business for a large sum. Lady Auckland keeps a furniture store and attends to her customers in person, though the establishment, on Baker street, is known as Morton & Edwards. Lady Hope runs a millinery shop in the unfashionable quarter of Edgware road. Duchess of Abercorn has a creamery at Harrowcourt; Lady Essex is a partner in a laundry business; Lady Winborne keeps a book store in London; Lady Byng has a needlework shop; Lady Moleworts has a jam factory; Lady Aileen Wyndham-Quinn trades in violets from her farm at Alvere Manor; and Lady Algeron Gordon Lennox has a fruit bottling factory. From these statistics it would seem that the women of the English nobility work for their money, while the men of title lie in wait for American heiresses and then depend upon their wives for support.

OLD FRIEND IN TEXAS

We Get a Letter From an Old Friend Which Makes Us Feel Good.

Alba, Tex.—"I was born in Tennessee," writes Mrs. Mary E. Watson, from Alba, Tex., "and I can praise Cardui, for we have used it ever since 1881, twenty-eight years ago. I wish I knew how many dollars I had spent for it."

"My daughter-in-law is now taking it, and all my neighbors think it is fine."

Cardui may be taken year after year, at time when its benefit is needed, and as a general tonic, without any bad after-effects whatever.

Many drugs, like quinine, castor-oil, iodide of potassium, etc., cannot be so taken, without doing you more harm than they do you good.

Be careful what you put into your stomach, as lasting injury frequently results from the regular use of powerful drugs and medicines.

Cardui cannot possibly do you anything but good, as it is a mild, gentle tonic, of purely vegetable ingredients, non-mineral, non-intoxicating, non-poisonous—harmless to young and old.

Thousands of ladies have testified to the beneficial results that come from the use of Cardui, the woman's tonic.

It strengthens, builds, restores, and relieves or prevents unnecessary pain and suffering.

We urge you to try it. N. B.—Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for Special Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent in plain wrapper, on request.

KILLED BY TRAIN

The Troubled Dreams of Mr. Killet of Greenville, S. C., Came True, and His Loss Was Serious.

Two valuable horses belonging to N. Y. Killet of Greenville, S. C., were killed by a train on the Murphy division, six or eight miles from Asheville, yesterday morning. Mr. Killet had been to Haywood county where he purchased four horses and returning through the country Tuesday found that he could not reach Asheville before night and stopped at a place some eight miles from town. It seems that the stable at the place where Mr. Killet stopped was filled with cattle and he was forced to hitch his horses under a shed. During the night he dreamed that his horses had broken away and were killed. He awoke from his troubled slumber but, giving little heed to the dream, dropped off to sleep again. For the second time he dreamed that his horses had broken away and were killed, and feeling a bit uneasy arose and dressing went to the shed. He found that the horses had broken loose and were gone. Mr. Killet followed the animals' tracks for some distance and found two of the horses lying about 100 yards apart dead. They had been struck, it is presumed, by a passing train and killed. The other two animals were found later near Emma.
