OBJECT LESSONS IN REFORESTATION

New Line of Work to Be Taken up by the North Carolina Geological Board.

The Gazette-News Bureau, Chamber of Commerce Rooms, Holleman Building, Raleigh, Jan. 27.

The state geological board met yesterday and its session was very full of interest. It took up four very important matters, these being the continuation of the forestry work, the work for road roads, the development of the fish and oyster industry and the policy in regard to drainage. The forestry movement is to take a new shape, as there are to be actual reforestation of certain tracts, to illustrate what may be done in the mountain region in the central section and along the coast. It is decided that one area will be in Moore county and one in the western part of the state, perhaps in Henderson county, and the third perhaps in the east.

In the section regarding good roads came up the very important question of providing competent engineering assistance, for the purpose of giving lectures and addresses on roads, bond issues, etc. State Road Expert W. L. Spoon is engaged on this duty all the time, and two other men are called on from time to time, these being W. S. Potts and H. E. Snowden, the latter of Currituck county. State Geologist Pratt says he has asked every county in the state accurate information for what it is doing in road improvement, and that up to today reports have come in from 43 counties, three-fifths of these stating that they were doing systematic work in road building, some with Macadam, some sand-clay and others making proper locations and providing for the right sort of drains, these being most essential things; in fact, the most important of all is right location.

At the meeting the report was made on fish and shell fish, and announcement was made of the co-operation of the United States coast and geodetic survey. The survey has been made of the areas permanently restricted as regards fishing, and which are under the jurisdiction of the fish commission. These areas are being marked with spar buoys, cement anchors hold them, and galvanized iron chains being used. The geological survey had no money with which to pay for such markers, so Dr. Pratt went to Washington and saw the chief of the coast and geodetic survey and he has ordered $1000 expended for this purpose. These restricted areas take in all of Albemarle, Croatan and the eastern end of Pamlico sounds and the Chowan and Roanoke rivers, and no nets are allowed to be set in the ground except in designated spots, so that they cannot extend more than 2000 yards from the shore and in the rivers named can extend only one-third the width of the stream.

At this time not much was done by the geological board in regard to oysters, but information was given by Gov. Kitchin to show that the state had planted eight beds, each six hundred acres in area, of which six had developed into good oyster grounds; in the two other cases sand and mud having injured the bed. This work is, however, to be extended.

Gov. Kitchin appoints state shell-fish commissioner W. M. Webb, and his assistant, George W. Wallis, delegates to represent this state at the second annual convention of the National Shell-fish Commissioners association at Mobile, April 19-21.

Adjutant General Armfield says that olive-drab clothing for the national guard is now coming in so rapidly that in 30 days the entire force will be supplied. Over 200 uniforms were issued last year, and it then required nine months to get the requisitions filled, but this time the war-department has so rushed things that in 30 days from the date of requisition they are filled, and 2000 uniforms are now in the state supply depot here or coming on the trains.

First Regiment's New Flag.
A new flag for the First Regiment has been received, to replace one which was burned in a private house. It seems the flag was in the hands of the color sergeant, who took it to his own home, and the house was burned last autumn. The war department very properly requires the state to pay for this flag, because it was not kept in the proper place, namely, at the colonel's headquarters.

King of the Moonshiners.
United States Deputy Marshall R. W. Ward returned today from Atlanta, where he took Eben Cagle, the king of the moonshiners, and three other prisoners to the federal prison. On the way Cagle talked about himself, saying he had gotten off with a very light sentence and was well satisfied. He said he had been dodging the officers 12 years and had at last really caught himself by going to a village and getting drunk. He said that otherwise the officers never would have taken him, because they were afraid of him. The officers very frankly admit that they were afraid of him, as they knew him to be as desperate a man as there is in the state and perfectly willing at any time to shoot and kill a revenue officer or a state officer who might be after him. One of the prisoners taken to Atlanta was named Jernigan, and he had been there before and had been an attendant in the dining room. The officials were glad to see him, and said they would put him back on his old duty. There are about 800 prisoners in this Atlanta penitentiary and it is said that nearly 200 of them are from North Carolina.

BOYCOTT OF MEAT TO BE CONSIDERED

C. L. U. Has Called a Meeting to Be Held This Evening, To Talk It Over.

The "meat boycott" which was started recently in several of the larger cities and which has reached such proportions that meat prices are almost daily being slashed, has taken on serious agitation here and the first steps looking to a "meat boycott" in Asheville will probably be taken by Central Labor Union at its meeting tonight. Leastwise a call issued today by officials of the C. L. U. for the meeting tonight specifies the meat question as one of the subjects for consideration. It is probable that in the event favorable action on the meat boycott is taken by the C. L. U. tonight the delegates to the Union will be asked to bring the matter before their individual unions for endorsement and that the boycott would not go into effect until all the unions composing the Central Labor Union have taken action.

The sentiment among the labor unions of the town as openly expressed favors an abstinence from the use of meat for 30 or 60 days. They maintain that the price of meat is too high and that by refusing to eat meat for a month or two the prices will be forced down. The meat boycott movement has been liberally discussed here for several days and those who are taking the initiative in the matter believe that once action is taken the movement will be joined by people in every walk in life.

Information received here from Knoxville, is to the effect that the meat boycott is on there; that the people of the town are refusing to eat meat; the movement is spreading rapidly and butchers are becoming alarmed over the falling off in trade. The meat boycott movement, which started in the northern cities, is directed primarily against the big packers and the meat trust. It is contended that these great meat packers have sufficient meat and poultry in cold storage to supply the country for a year and that the high price of meat is unnecessary.

CITY BAR ASSOCIATION MAY TAKE LAW BOOKS

Committee Will Recommend Transfer from Law Library Association.

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon of the committee of the Asheville Bar association appointed at the last meeting of the association to consider the matter of taking over the law books of the Asheville Law Library association and to assume the debts of that association, decided to recommend to the Bar association at its meeting tonight that the association take these books and debts, and it is probable that this recommendation will be adopted. In the event that this is done it is believed that the Bar association will be able to maintain the library more successfully than did the Law Library association.

The maintenance of this law library is of vast importance not only to the legal fraternity here but to visiting lawyers and the courts, especially the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which has held spring sessions here for several years past. In fact, it is said, that most probably the high court would discontinue holding sessions here if this library was not kept up. In view of the importance of the subject it is hoped that there will be a large attendance at the meeting of the Bar association tonight, when in addition to the consideration of the law library an interesting paper will be read by J. C. Martin on the subject: "What Changes in the Courts of North Carolina are Desirable?"

President Taft and Speaker Cannon have accepted invitations to attend the annual dinner of the Republican club in New York on Lincoln's birthday.

PROCEDURE IN FRANCE IS EUROPE'S PROCEDURE

French Paper Comments on American Criticism of French Courts.

The recent Steinheil trial in France led to a great many criticisms from leading lawyers and public men in the United States, many of which appeared in the form of interviews in the New York Herald. In view of the considerable public sentiment which has grown up in recent years in this country, that our own administration of justice is not quite what it should be, the following translation of an editorial which recently appeared in the "Courrier des Etats-Unis," may be of interest. The editorial is entitled "Connais Toi-Toi-meme." (Know Thou Thyself), and is as follows:

"Criticism is easy; this was said long ago. It is especially so when, in whatever country, one takes upon himself to criticize the laws, manners, and customs of a foreign country, in order to make for himself a cheap reputation as a thinker and philosopher.

"This is as the Chinese mandarins do. They gravely condemn, in the height of their oriental presumption, the barbarity of western nations. We regret to see that certain considerable persons in the United States, whose social positions or official functions give them prominence, adopt Chinese methods too much in speaking of France.

"In a series of interviews which the New York Herald has published, lawyers, judges and state governors, without a due consideration of the subject, have taken the Steinheil trial as a pretext for condemning, in terms frequently very severe, the French criminal procedure. However, we regret to see that these critics start from a point of view false and narrow. We will add that they seem inspired by a provincial spirit, which one is surprised to see manifest itself in a form so naive.

"It is told that a young American western woman, on her first visit to Europe, was unusually indignant, on arriving in Paris, because she could not have buckwheat cakes for breakfast. She ate them every morning in Chicago or in Cincinnati. How could people unacquainted with buckwheat cakes believe themselves to be at the top of civilization? The French have need of being Americanized. In the same manner, it is now said: How can one live without being ruled by the Anglo-Saxon laws? The point of view is identical. The French should be Americanized in regard to their criminal procedure as well as in regard to 'buckwheat cakes.'

"We will put aside certain criticisms which are really too childish. A 'sol-disant' lawyer has said gravely that in France the institution of jury trial does not exist! Another seems to think that the president of the court 'd'assises' wishes to make this particular trial an object lesson. We will not waste our time in discussing such absurdities.

"The majority of those who criticize French procedure do not seem to realize that this procedure is not only French, but that it is European.

"Only one country, in Europe, adopts the same criminal procedure as the United States. This is Great Britain. Everywhere else, throughout the continent, from east to west, from north to south, the law and criminal procedure are based, as they are in France, on the Roman law, as it was codified by the Emperor Justinian.

"If, then, one wishes to criticize French justice, he must apply the same criticism to German justice, Austrian justice, Italian justice, Spanish justice, etc.; for they all proceed from the same source and are based on the same principles.

"When one goes back to the German trial of the Count d'Eulenburg, and the famous Austria-Hungarian trial of Agram, it will be seen in these two historical cases, the president of the court questioned the accused exactly as president Valles today questions Mme. Steinheil.

"Do the inhabitants of nine-tenths of Europe consider themselves so unhappy because they do not live under the rule of the Anglo-Saxon law? By no means. We are persuaded that one will find with difficulty a German, an Austrian, an Italian, or a Spaniard—to say nothing of the French—who would consent to accept for his country this Anglo-Saxon procedure, which we are told is without equal in the world.

"We will go further. Europeans other than Anglo-Saxons who settle in the United States accustom themselves to the climate, to the manners, to the customs of the country. They never accustom themselves to the judicial proceedings, which they find barbarous and incomprehensible, or to the frequent attacks on individual liberty, which they regard as abominable.

"When one asks them in regard to these matters, this is about what they answer: 'In the United States, every one is at the mercy of the representatives of the law, except criminals. The slightest dereliction authorizes the policeman to throw you into a filthy cell. In Europe you would be discharged for a 'franc d'amende,' here you pass the night in jail, in company with the worst of blackguards, because you have shaken a rug out of a window. But if you have killed a man, immediately the law takes you under its protection; it surrounds you with a hundred guarantees, so well that ninety-six out of every hundred assassins escape punishment and four only are punished. In Europe, the proportion is reversed. That is why we regret nothing of Europe, except its justice and its laws.'

AMUSEMENTS

Florence Davis in "Are You a Suffragette?" at the Grand Tonight.

Florence Davis and her excellent company of funmakers will be the attraction at the Grand tonight in her latest comedy success, "Are You a Suffragette?" The following clipping is from Tuesday, January 25, Columbia, S. C. State:

Florence Davis Makes a Hit.

Florence Davis, in "Are You a Suffragette?" presented a very pleasing performance at the theater last night. The play is timely, in view of the tremendous agitation in both England and this country over the movement in favor of women suffrage—a movement, by the way, that has been a little injured by its enemies in their use of this term—"Suffragette." The real woman suffragist and the "suffragette," is well to bear in mind, are quite distinct. The suffragist fights quietly for her rights and privileges, while the suffragette fights to challenge the attention and notoriety of the world—to the general cause, the immediate importance of which she, possibly, overestimates.

However, this is very remote from a frivolous little play that does not get down even to the surface of the great movement. It dabbles with certain absurd notions that are popular buteraneous, and gets its laughs from points that have no relation to the subject or to the great principles involved.

Miss Davis and her company acted the play with a great deal of sincerity and feeling and delighted the audience with their interpretation of one of the persistent phases of our modern life. The "suffragette" is comparatively new to us, but she has come to abide with us, whether we like her or not and we shall have to get accustomed to her and her poses and arguments.

The scene in which Miss Davis addresses for the ball, where she abandons her suffragist notions and devotes herself to rewinning a husband, is very fine and alluring. The whole performance, indeed, was admirable and engaging.
