NUISANCE HEARING NOW IN PROGRESS

Numerous Witnesses Testify as to Character of J. K. Boynton's Place.

An interesting hearing is in progress today before Judge C. C. Cooke in city police court. The hearing has to do with a charge against J. K. Boynton, familiarly known in Asheville as "The Duke." It is alleged by the state that Mr. Boynton in the conduct of a soft-drink place on West College street is maintaining a nuisance and this alleged nuisance the state is seeking to abate. The case was called originally for Monday but by consent the hearing was postponed for today. The warrant charging Mr. Boynton with maintaining a nuisance has a number of witnesses, including five or six members of the police force. The warrant, drawn by Corporation Counsel Bernard, representing the state, contains charges against Mr. Boynton of everything, almost except capital crimes. It is what might well be termed a "fulsome" bill of indictment.

When the case was called for trial this morning that versatile attorney and shrewd criminal lawyer, Judge Thomas A. Jones, appeared for Mr. Boynton with Corporation Counsel Bernard representing the state. "The Duke" pleaded not guilty to the lengthy bill of indictment and the hearing was on. The state's witnesses testified to the character of the place; some of them told of brawls and disturbances; of swearing and disorderly conduct in general that had occurred; while one witness, a lady, testified to a specific instance, an instance that had to do with her brother coming out of the place drunk. This witness was cross-examined at some length and finally in specifying the "place" said her brother came out of that "place at the corner of South Lexington avenue and West College street. "This bit of evidence created some amusement in the court since it is known that Boynton has nothing whatever to do with the place referred to. Another witness referred to the place as a nuisance and when questioned closely gave a specific instance of "nuisance." This specific instance had to do with a hand-organ and a monkey that, in charge of a Dago, had made Asheville headquarters for a time. It was to this music and this disturbance objected. Incidentally, it was noted out by counsel for "The Duke" that the defendant had nothing whatever to do with monkeys and hand-organs; that anything pertaining to hand-organs and monkeys and their presence on the streets must be "referred to the city authorities and especially to the tax collector."

The witnesses this morning were examined at considerable length and those who witnessed the hearing and heard the evidence were at least no few of them, of the opinion that the state had failed to make out a case.

This afternoon the defendant is having an ining. A number of witnesses, including citizens and taxpayers on the street and in the vicinity were summoned to testify and tell what they know, if anything, about the maintaining of a nuisance at the Boynton soft-drink place.

"I beg pardon," responded Mr. Aldrich, "but that is not true. The senator from Texas is mistaken as to the purpose of the proposed law as is the senator from Iowa."

Mr. Cummins would not admit that he could be mistaken.

Senator Elkins undertook to refute this contention by reading the provisions regarding the agreements and in so doing broadly asserted that every one must know the railroad violate challenge by several senators but the West Virginia senator held to his position, and asked: "Now why embarrass the railroads?"

"True," responded Mr. Cummins, half under his breath.

Mr. Elkins contended that even though the agreements were authorized by the pending bill the commission still would have control of rates, and even more comprehensive control than under the present law.

Mr. Aldrich referred to a supposed alliance between the insurgent republicans and the democrats and then after a brief protest from Mr. Cummins, resorted to the method of presenting his matter, the Rhode Island senator declared it to be his opinion that no schedule of the roads, whether under agreement or not, could go into effect without the approval of the commission.

"If that is not made clear in the bill I am perfectly willing to have it made so," replied Mr. Aldrich.

The president's name was then brought into the discussion. Mr. Cummins still was discussing the terms of the alleged anti-trust repeal, and referring to some of the provisions when Mr. Aldrich stated that "such was the purpose of the president and the attorney general."

This statement brought Mr. Nelson to his feet with strenuous protest, and the president's name hid behind the president's name, and it won't do. That is not the way to legislate."

Mr. Aldrich was also somewhat excited when he replied.

He disavowed any intention of taking refuge behind anyone.

He declared that he had not said what the president had wanted but only that the bill had been prepared by the attorney general by the direction of the president. He again reiterated his independence as a senator, of any outside interference.

Mr. Root called attention to the provision of the constitution requiring the president to recommend legislation to congress and he contended that the president's action on the pending bill had been in accordance with this provision.

Mr. Bacon took issue with Mr. Root as to the effect of the constitutional requirement, declaring the recommendation of legislation to be a different thing from undertaking to control the action of congress.

THIS COUNTY PAYS THE LION'S SHARE

Assessment (1908 Figures Just Issued) Nearly a Million Dollars in Excess of That of Any Other County in the State—Only Charlotte and Wilmington Exceed Asheville in Listed Value of Real Estate.

The real estate in Buncombe county assessed for taxation exceeds by nearly a million dollars—$979,619, to be exact—in valuation to that of any other county in the state, according to figures compiled by the state tax commission, for the year 1908. This report has just been issued. And this is more remarkable from the fact that Buncombe is not the largest county, nor has it the largest city within its boundaries. This state of facts leads to two conclusions, either that the people of Buncombe are more honest in making their assessments for taxation, or else the land is worth more per square inch than in any other county. The fact that Buncombe with its 326,091 acres of farm-land, valued at $5,826,956, exceeds any other county of the state in valuation leads to the belief that the latter conclusion is correct. Robeson county, the largest in the state, for example, has 728,829 acres of land, valued at $5,656,327, while Mecklenburg county, known as a fine agricultural county, has 214,317 acres, is valued at $2,947,855, and Guilford, with 401,297 acres has a valuation of $3,861,895.

Gaston county has 215,154 acres of land, valued at $5,523,037. Valuation of City Property. Another interesting fact is shown by the valuation of city property. Buncombe, with Asheville as its center, has 6528 town lots, valued at $7,291,634, while Mecklenburg, of which Charlotte is the center of attraction, has 12,795 lots, valued at $8,901,128; more than double the number of lots in Buncombe, with only 11,609,429 more valuation. New Hanover county, of which Wilmington is the chief city, has 4,500 lots valued at $7,721,648, exceeding the lots of Buncombe in value by $459,014. Wake county, which centers about Raleigh, has 5253 lots, valued at $7,121,479, while Guilford, with its Greensboro, has 7,622 lots, valued at $6,258,649. The real estate in towns of Durham county, with Durham as its manufacturing center, is valued at $4,792,220, while that of Forsyth, in which his situated Winston-Salem, is valued at $4,798,220. Thus it appears that Asheville and Wilmington exceed Asheville in listed value of real estate, while Charlotte claims about 40,000 people, while Asheville has a population of about 30,000. But it is in the sum total of real estate values that Buncombe exceeds. Mecklenburg coming next, with Wake, third, and Guilford fourth. Arranged in the counties in order of total valuation the following table speaks for itself:

County.	Acres.	Value.	No. of Lots.	Value.	Total Value.
Buncombe . . . . .	326,091	$5,826,956	6,528	$7,291,634	$12,928,692

THREE SORTS OF NOVELS.

Modern Society, Old Fashioned and Real Life Brand. Our modern society novels get away with this sort of thing: Her—You're just like all other men—you're the earth. Him—I acknowledge it. You're all the world to me, and I want you. Her—As a bit of real estate I may come higher than you'd want to go. Him—At my price you'd be dirt cheap.

And in the old fashioned novels they talked this way: Farnese—You must pardon my ignorance, sir, if I appear to misinterpret your expression of regard, I cannot but think, however, that you presume too much in thus addressing me at so early a period of our acquaintance. Leonardo—Believe me, dearest madam, when I say that if I seem too impetuous it is only the depth of my feeling that overcomes my natural reserve for the conventionalities. Ah, do not turn aside, fair maid! My heart is not torn aside, fair maid! My heart and my fortune are lying at your feet!

But in real life would not the phonograph reveal something like this: "Why, Jack Peters, how dare you?" "Ah, now, you ain't point' to get mad about that, are you? Honest, Sadie, I couldn't help it!" "Well, I'll have you understand that!"

Getting a Raise. A year ago a manufacturer hired a boy. For months there was nothing noticeable about the boy except that he never took his eyes off the machine he was running. A few weeks ago the manufacturer looked up from his work to see the boy standing beside his desk.

"What do you want?" he asked. "What me pay raised?" "What are you getting?" "Three dollars a week." "Well, how much do you think you are worth?"

"Four dollars." "You think so, do you?" "Yes, sir, an' I've been thinkin so for three weeks, but I've been so blamed busy I ain't had time to speak to you about it."

The boy got the raise.—Success Magazine.

As It Is Today. "Got any country cousins coming to your reception?"

"Two of them." "I'll bet you're worried to death."

"I certainly am. But then we can't all wear diamonds and come in a special train. We're not all lucky enough to be farmers' wives."—St. Louis Star

ATTEMPTED TO SWINDLE SOUTHERN RAILWAY CO.

Someone Cut Marks Off Cross-Ties Sold by J. H. Stephens at Saluda.

Special to The Gazette-News. Saluda, March 17.—But for the keen eyes of the Southern railroad's employees the company would probably have been badly swindled in the cross-tie business here. It was found several days ago that someone was guilty of cutting the marks off the ends of the ties, placed there after they had been purchased by the company through their local representative. These ties were originally sold to the agent by J. H. Stephens, a farmer, and he is accused of trying to resell them. He will be charged, at the next term of court, with stealing cross-ties. The mark was cut off several hundred ties.

REVENGE WITH KNIFE FOR LOSS OF HIS LAND

Henry Alston of Asheville Badly Carved—Alex Gamble Said to Be Assailant.

Special to The Gazette-News. Sylva, March 17.—Henry Alston, a negro from Asheville, lies here at the point of death from the effects of a knife wound received by him, it is alleged, from Alex Gamble, a negro of this place, several days ago. The affair is said to have resulted from the fact that Alston had foreclosed a mortgage which he held on the Gamble negro's land and Gamble, becoming angry at the sight of Alston, drew his knife and inflicted several serious cuts upon the body of Alston. For a while the doctor gave very little hope of Alston's recovery, but later the patient was reported to be doing well. Gamble was placed in the county jail in Webster, where he now remains. Alston is well known and said to be of excellent repute in Asheville, where he owns some property.

Railroad Talk.
The talk of a railroad from this town to Tuskegee for which a charter was granted several days ago has created considerable interest among the citizens. It is said that the proposed route has a good grade and indications are that the railroad will be started in a short time. However, real estate has not advanced materially in the past few days.
