

Indigestion Remedy Free

To any victim of indigestion the offer is made that if he or she will send name and address, a free sample of a remedy that is daily curing indigestion will be sent. This remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Instead of taking the advice of your friends, or using lozenges, peppermints and such things, write for this free sample and see what that will do for you. There is no remedy that has been more successful in the cure of indigestion, sick headache, heartburn, etc. than this grand laxative tonic, because instead of being simply a breath perfume it goes to the root of the trouble, which is poor bowel movement, and cures that. Once the bowels are relieved the stomach has a better chance to do its work. Thousands in the past have accepted the offer of a free sample and later became steady users of Syrup Pepsin. All that Dr. Caldwell desires is that you allow him to prove to you, at his own expense, that his remedy will do as claimed. When you have used the sample and are convinced, you can buy a further supply of your druggist at fifty cents and so clear a bottle, just as others are doing who once sent for a free sample. You will learn to abandon "peppermint cures" for indigestion and cathartic pills and salts for constipation, for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a permanent cure, while these are but temporary reliefs. Here is a mild, pleasant, non-irritating remedy that can be given to a child with perfect safety. In fact, it is especially adapted to children's use. Read the many letters of recommendation that are everywhere written for Syrup Pepsin, then try it yourself and you will see that these claims are justified. Thousands of the best American families have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house.

Use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

Dear Sir:

I was highly pleased with the sample sent me by you, and will give it a trial. I have been suffering with indigestion for some time, and I am convinced that your Syrup Pepsin is a permanent cure, while these are but temporary reliefs. Here is a mild, pleasant, non-irritating remedy that can be given to a child with perfect safety. In fact, it is especially adapted to children's use. Read the many letters of recommendation that are everywhere written for Syrup Pepsin, then try it yourself and you will see that these claims are justified. Thousands of the best American families have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house.

DR. CALDWELL PERSONALLY WILL BE PLEASED TO GIVE YOU ANY MEDICAL ADVICE YOU MAY DESIRE FOR YOURSELF OR FAMILY PERTAINING TO THE STOMACH, LIVER OR BOWELS, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE. EXPLAIN YOUR CASE IN A LETTER AND HE WILL REPLY TO YOU IN DETAIL. FOR THE FREE SAMPLE SIMPLY SEND YOUR NAME AND ADDRESS ON A POSTAL CARD OR OTHERWISE. FOR EITHER REQUEST THE DOCTOR'S ADDRESS IS DR. W. B. CALDWELL, R-355 CALDWELL BLDG., MONTICELLO, ILL.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Beautiful Madeleine Van Norman, owner of the Van Norman mansion at Mapletown and heiress to her uncle's immense fortune is about to be married to handsome Schuyler Carleton. Among the guests are her cousin, Tom Willard, and two girls, Kitty French and Molly Gardner of New York. Madeleine flirts with her cousin and surprises her friend. Her friend, Bob Fessenden, is to be best man at Schuyler's wedding. Madeleine receives a letter from a Miss Morton announcing the latter's coming.

CHAPTER III.
A Cry in the Night.

"Help!"

"The loud cry of a single word was not repeated, but repetition was unnecessary for the sound rang through the old Van Norman house, and carried its message of fear and horror to all awake or sleeping, within its walls."

It was about half-past eleven that some night, and Coedy Dupuy, still half-dressed, flew from her bedroom to the hall.

She ran light downstairs, and heard the servants' bells, one after another, as if rung by a frantic hand, she hesitated a moment only, and then ran downstairs.

In the lower hall Schuyler Carleton, with a dazed expression on his white-drawn face, was uncertainly pushing various electric buttons which, in turn, flashed lights on or off, or rang bells in distant parts of the house.

For a moment Coedy stared straight at the man. Their eyes met, their gaze seemed to concentrate, and they stood motionless, as if spellbound.

This crisis was broken in upon by Marie Madeleine's French maid, who came running downstairs in a hastily donned negligee.

"Mon Dieu!" she cried, "you est Mademoiselle?"

With a start, Carleton turned from Coedy, and still with that dazed look on his face, he motioned Marie toward the wide doorway of the library.

The girl took a step toward the threshold, and then, with a shriek, paused, and returned to the room.

Coedy, as if impelled by an unseen force, slowly turned, and followed Marie's movements, and as the girl screamed, Coedy grasped her tightly by the arm, and the two stood staring in at the library door.

What they saw was Madeleine Van Norman, seated in a chair at the library table. Her right arm was on the table, and her head, which had fallen to one side, was supported by her right shoulder. Her eyes were partly closed, and her lips were parted, and the position of the rigid hand left no need for further evidence that this was not a natural sleep.

But further evidence there was Miss Van Norman still wore her yellow satin gown, but the beautiful embroidered bodice was stained a dull red, and a crimson stream of blood ran down the front of her dress, and the shimmering brooches of the trailing skirt.

On the table, near the outstretched white hand, lay a Venetian dagger. This dagger was well known to the onlookers. It had lain on the library table for many years, and though ostensibly for the purpose of a paper-cutter, it was rarely used as such. Its edges were too sharp to cut paper satisfactorily, and moreover, it was a wicked-looking affair, and many people had shuddered as they touched it. It had a history, too, and Richard Van Norman used to tell his guests of dark deeds in which the dagger had taken part while it was still in Italy.

Madeleine herself had had a horror of the weapon, though she had often admitted the fascination of its marvellous streamer, and had said upon several occasions that she was fairly hypnotized by, and some day she would kill herself or somebody else with it.

From an instinctive sense of duty, Marie started forward, as if to help her mistress, then with a convulsive shudder she screamed again and clamped her hands before her eyes to shut out the awful sight.

Coedy, too, moved slowly toward the silent figure, then turned and again gazed steadfastly at Schuyler Carleton.

There must have been interrogation in her eyes, for the man pointed toward the table, and Coedy looked again, to notice there a bit of paper with writing on it.

She made no motion toward it, but the expression on her face changed to one of bewildered surprise. Before she had time to speak, however, the other people of the house, all at once began to gather in the hall.

Mrs. Markham came first, and though when she saw Madeleine she turned very white and seemed about to faint, she bravely went at once toward the girl, and gently tried to raise the fallen head.

She felt a firm grasp on her shoulder, and turned to see Miss Morton with a stern, set face, at her side.

"Don't touch her," said Miss Morton, in a whisper. "Telephone for a doctor quickly."

"But she's dead," declared Mrs. Markham, at the same time bursting into violent sobs.

"We do not know; we hope not," went on Miss Morton, and without another word she led Mrs. Markham to a sofa, and sat her down rather suddenly, and then herself straight to the telephone.

As she reached it she paused only to inquire the name of the family physician.

Harris, the butler, with difficulty articulated the name of Doctor Hills and his telephone number, and without further inquiry Miss Morton called for him.

"Is this Doctor Hills?" she said when he was answered. "Yes; this is the Van Norman house. Come here at once—it is very important—a matter of life and death... I am Miss Morton. I am in charge here. Yes, come immediately! Good-by."

Miss Morton had an imperious air, and instinctively the servants obeyed her.

But Coedy Dupuy was not so ready to accept the dictum of a stranger. She stepped forward and facing Miss Morton, said quietly, "Mrs. Markham is housekeeper, as well as Miss Van Norman's chambermaid. The servants are accustomed to take their orders from her."

Miss Morton returned Coedy's direct gaze. "You see Mrs. Markham," she said, pointing to the sofa, where that lady had entirely collapsed, and with her head in a pillow, was shaking with convulsive sobs. "She is for the moment quite incapable of giving orders. As the oldest person present, and as a life-long friend of Mr. Richard Van Norman, I shall take the liberty of directing affairs in the present crisis." Then, in a softer tone and with a glance toward Madeleine, Miss Morton continued, "I trust in view of the awfulness of the occasion you will give me your sympathy and cooperation, that we may work in harmony."

Coedy gave Miss Morton a curious glance that might have meant almost anything, but with a slight inclination of her head she said out, "Yes, madam."

Then Kitty French and Molly Gardner came downstairs and stood trembling on the threshold.

"What is it?" whispered Kitty. "What's the matter with Madeleine?"

"Something dreadful has happened," said Miss Morton, meeting them at the door. "I have telephoned for Doctor Hills and he will be here soon. Until then we can do nothing."

"But we can try to help Maddy," exclaimed Kitty, starting toward the still figure by the table. "She is she hurt? I thought she had fainted!"

As the two girls saw the dread sight, Miss Gardner fainted herself, and Miss Morton bade Marie, who stood shivering in the hall, take care of her.

Relieved at having something to do, Marie took the girl and dashed water in her face until she regained consciousness, the others, meanwhile, paying little attention.

Schuyler Carleton stood leaning against the doorpost, his eyes fixed on Madeleine's tragic figure, while Kitty French, who had dropped into a chair, sat with her hands tightly clasped, also gazing at the sad picture.

Although it seemed hours to those who awaited him, it was but a few moments before the doctor came.

Doctor Hills was a clean-cut, alert-looking young man, and his quick eyes seemed to take in every detail of the scene at a glance.

He went straight to the girl at the table and bent over her, only the briefest examination was necessary before he said gently, "She is quite dead. She has been stabbed with this dagger in the right breast, just over the heart, and she died—Who killed her?"

Then as he spoke his eyes fell on the written paper which lay on the table. With one of his habitually quick gestures he snatched it up and read it to himself, while a look of great surprise dawned on his face. Immediately he read it aloud:

"I am wholly miserable, and unless the clock strikes I must end my life. I love S, but he does not love me."

After he finished reading, Doctor Hills stood staring at the paper, and looked utterly perplexed.

"I should have said it was not a suicide," he declared, "but this message seemed to indicate that it is."

This written in Miss Van Norman's hand?"

Miss Morton, who stood at the doctor's side, took the paper and scrutinized it.

"It is," she said, "Yes, certainly that is Miss Van Norman's writing. I had a letter from her only a few days ago, and I recognize it perfectly."

"Let me see it," said Mrs. Markham, in a determined, though rather timid way. "I am more familiar with Madeleine's writing than a stranger might possibly be."

Miss Morton handed the paper to the housekeeper without a word, while the doctor, waiting, gazed so out of sympathy with each other.

"Yes, it is surely Madeleine's writing," agreed Mrs. Markham, her glasses dropping off as her eyes filled with tears.

"Then I suppose she killed herself, poor girl," said the doctor. "She must have been desperate, indeed, for it was a strong blow that drove the steel in so deeply. Who first discovered her?"

"I did," said Schuyler Carleton, stepping forward. His face was almost as white as the dead girl's, and he was scarcely able to make his voice heard. "I came in with a latch-key, and found her here, just as you see her now."

"Practically," said Carleton, "I don't believe her dead, and I tried to rouse her. Then I saw the dagger on the floor at her feet."

"On the floor?" interrupted Doctor Hills.

"Yes," replied Carleton, whose agitation was increasing, and who had sunk into a chair because of sheer inability to stand. "It was on the floor at her feet—right at her feet—I picked it up, and there was blood on it—the blood is on it—and I laid it on the table. And then I saw the paper—the paper that says she killed herself. And then—and then I turned on the lights and rang the servants' bells, and Coedy—Miss Dupuy—came, and the others, and—that's all."

My Corns Don't Hurt A Bit.

Tired, Ailing, Swollen, Smelly, Sweaty Feet, Corns, Callouses and Bunions, TIZ Cures Right Off.

Say good-bye to your corns the very first time you use TIZ. You will never know you have a corn, bunion or callous, or sweaty, tired swollen, aching feet any more. It's just wonderful the way the pain vanishes. Rub the corn—hammer it with your fist if you wish—no more pain after TIZ than if there had never been a blemish on your feet. Doesn't that sound good to you? Doesn't it? Then read this.

"The corns on either of my toes were as large as the tablets you make to cure them. Today there is no sign of corns on either foot and no soreness. It's an up-to-date Godsend.—Sam. A. Hoover, Progress, N. C."

Just use TIZ. It's not like anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principal of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luthor Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.
