TRUSTEES REFUSE TO RELEASE DR. WEAVER

Recently Elected President of Emory and Henry College Cannot Accept.

Dr. Charles C. Weaver, who has been called to the presidency of Emory and Henry college at Emory, Va., to succeed Bishop R. G. Waterhouse, is a son of Rev. J. H. Weaver, D. D., formerly presiding elder of this district and later pastor of Central Methodist church. Recently he resigned as president of Davenport college at Lenoir to accept the position of vice president of Centenary college, Cleveland, Tenn. The board of trustees of that school yesterday, however, refused to release him so he could accept the presidency of Emory and Henry.

The trustees of Emory and Henry are having a time to elect a president who will or can accept. They first decided upon Dr. J. W. Perry, pastor of the Methodist church at Morristown, but Dr. Perry declined the call, preferring to remain in active ministry. Finding in Dr. Weaver a man who would accept they are stopped by the trustees of Centenary college.

Dr. Weaver was a student at Weaverville college while his father was presiding elder in this district, later entering Trinity college, then Vanderbilt, and taking his Ph. D. degree from Johns Hopkins.

A FACT PROVEN.

Should Convince Even the Most Skeptical of Its Truth.

If there is the slightest doubt in the minds of any that Dandruff germs do not exist, their belief is compelled by the fact that a rabbit inoculated with the germs became bald in six weeks' time.

It must be apparent to any person therefore that the only prevention of baldness is the destruction of the germ—which act is successfully accomplished in one hundred per cent. of cases by the application of Newbro's Herpicide.

Accept no substitute. "Destroy the cause you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. One dollar bottles guaranteed. Smith's Drug Store, special agents.

CHARITY.

How often it is difficult to be wisely charitable—to do good without multiplying the sources of evil. To give alms is nothing unless you give thought also. It is written not "Blessed is he that feedeth the poor," but "Blessed is he that considereth the poor." A little thought and a little kindness are often worth more than a great deal of money. —Ruskin.

SHERMAN PLEADS WITH INSURGENTS

In Address Delivered at Milwaukee Today Vice-President Urges Them to Return to Fold.

HE REBUKES AND THEN PLEADS; INSURGENCY ALWAYS TO FRONT

"What is a Republican?" He Asks, and Answering Says: "A Man Who Always Votes the Ticket."

Milwaukee, Wis., June 9.—Hearing insurgency in its native habitat, Vice President James I. Sherman today in a speech before the Republican State convention of Wisconsin pleaded the cause of regular republicanism and urged the "insurgents" to return to the fold.

From the time the Vice President uttered his salutation to the "Badgerettes of Republican Persuasion," until the last word was spoken, he kept insurgency in mind, now rebuking the breaking away from party and then pleading for harmonious and concerted action.

"What is a Republican?" was the first subject the Vice President Sherman dealt with after he had paid a glowing tribute to President Taft, as the leader of his party.

The speaker recalled that Congressman Champ Clark recently said the devil himself could not answer that question.

"What is a Republican?" "This question may stump the devil, who may naughtily be assumed to be a democrat," said Mr. Sherman, "but I'll venture the assertion that every twelve year old boy in Wisconsin can answer it and that the simple, but comprehensive reply would be: 'A man who votes the republican ticket at the polls and votes for republican measures in congress.'"

The Vice President asked that if this was the correct answer, if the converse was not true—"that a man who does not vote the republican ticket, who does not support republican measures and republican policies is not a republican?"

Growth of Republican Party.

The growth of the republican party former the theme for the speaker, as he continued his address. He had gotten down to Lincoln's time, when he returned to the question of insurgency for a moment.

"Four years later," said he, "we were in the throes of a civil war and Lincoln was again voted for, this time by nearly two and a quarter million republicans, because they believed that the Union should be preserved and that slavery must cease. In that year we find the beginning of insurgency. A small band attempted to prevent the re-election of Lincoln. The movement was not successful and he obtained 212 out of 233 electoral votes."

The vice president spoke of insurgency near, when he recalled that "in 1872 a new insurgency had arisen with the cry of 'Anything to Beat Grant.'"

Then when he had said a word of praise for Roosevelt and Taft, at the conclusion of this review of party history the vice president once again returned to the subject of insurgency.

Stronger After Insurgency.

"For over fifty years the republican party has been steadily increasing in numbers and gaining in power," said he, "seemingly to grow stronger after every insurgent movement and in each instance gaining more numbers than we lost. In 1884 another element of insurgency arose and seemed to be temporarily successful, though its duration was short and without result. In 1896 another kind of insurgency arose and seemed to be temporarily successful, though its duration was short and without result. In 1896 another kind of insurgent came to the front in the guise of the so-called 'Silver Republicans' who manfully and courageously, when they saw they could not endorse the republican platform and the republican candidate of that year, left the national convention in a body. The place of every year was filled by at least two so-called gold democrats, most of whom have since remained with the party of financial integrity and stability."

"We are now confronted again by insurgency in the party, though it is by no means a united movement, as it may be said that there are nearly as many kinds of insurgency as there are insurgents. I believe, however, that the strength of the republican party will in no way be weakened, but that it will go to the polls next November and record a victory and again be successful when it votes for its candidate for president in 1912."

The vice president then reviewed the accomplishments of the republican party.

What Party Has Accomplished.

"It is not a matter of surprise, however," said he at the conclusion of this review, "that in a country of such vast domain; such wide territorial boundary and with such diversified interests as can be found from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the lakes to the Gulf, the members of a great and dominant party should not always be in accord regarding every act of legislation. It has been the strength of the republican party that leaders in thought and judgment and wisdom should have been among its members. It is so today as it has been since 1856 and 1860." In matters of legislation, he declared some sacrifices must be made; some retreat taken in order that harmony shall prevail.

The vice president said that no better illustration of what he had just been saying could be pointed out than in the passage of the so-called Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

Find a Common Ground.

As a government of parties, a government by majorities and to an extent a government by compromise, he said, the past must be studied in order that all may be liberal in opinion and willing to find a common ground upon which we as republicans can always stand in support of those who have been elected to make our laws and our great leader who has been chosen to execute them."

"I believe," said the Vice-President, "when deceit and falsification shall have had their day, when the present tariff law is known and understood in detail, when its true effect is realized, there will follow unstinted commendation of our president and those in both houses of congress who have striven to carry out the pledges of the last national platform; to comply with the desire on the part of all to continue the policies of him who, for years, was indefatigable in his eagerness to advance the interests of the whole people and who, having received the acclaim and plaudits of rulers and people all over Europe in a few days we shall, with an earnestness and zeal that will leave him no room for doubt as to his place in the hearts of the American people, welcome again to our shores. I believe that with the people's better understanding of the real purposes and interest of our great and sincere president, who is striving with all his energy which he possesses to keep the promises made by himself and his party; I believe when truth and facts have displaced falsehood and fiction, people, not only in Wisconsin, but throughout the United States, will give their hearty endorsement to that party which has during all these years stuck like a bulwark for liberty, for honor and for progress."

"The republican party has made our civilization the highest, our progress the greatest, our prosperity the fullest, our government the model of free government the world over, and our place foremost in the procession of the nations of the world, with none to question our right to be there and none to doubt our ability to stay there."

THE MARKETS

The Leading Stocks on New York Exchange—Cotton Market Quotations.

New York, June 9.—The opening prices of stocks today irregularly changed from last night; volume of dealings light. Reduction in Bank of England discount rate helped London market and affected some international stocks here.

Slight reactions developed; resistance tendency was upward on dull trading. Professionals hesitated to operate on account of divergent views of prospect announced by railroad officials. Bonds regular.

Business contracted greatly and fluctuations unimportant during noon; below best prices.
