THERE WAS NOT A STALL LARGE ENOUGH

New York, Nov. 24.—In the eyes of the Custom house officials there is no distinction between a pair of fine Pomeranian dogs and a case of cheese. This may be a startling statement, but he who seeks to import one must go through the same routine as he who seeks to bring the other into the United States.

There are bonded warehouses for cheese and similarly there are bonded warehouses for dogs, and all other sorts and varieties of animals which are imbued with the spirit of immigration, voluntarily or involuntarily. In Manhattan there are two bonded stables where all sorts of animals are kept awaiting their bills of lading or the decision of the appraisers as to their value. Hoboken boasts of one such place. Robert Stoddard is credited with a vast knowledge of horses than almost any man in Greenwich village. The hand that patches up a broken horse must be extremely cunning to evade the piercing eyes of the Stoddard brothers. "Yes," said Mr. Stoddard, "the government gives us a lot of peculiar boards. Whenever an animal is imported into this country it must be accompanied by a bill of lading, just the same as any article of commerce. "If after two days the animal is still on the pier, unclaimed or uncalled for, it is sent to us. We will keep it for three weeks if, in the case of dogs, it is a poor animal, and then notify the Custom house. If the dog is one of value, we will let it remain for a month or six weeks. Then, if no one has come to claim it, an appraiser comes and sets a value on the animal, notice of an auction sale is posted and the dog soon finds himself with a new master.

"We had an English bull terrier here about two years ago that was a wonder. His pedigree name was too long for every day use, so he was called Spike. Spike was a beauty, white and pink, and every inch of him a regular dog. He got into some trouble with the Custom house men, and came up here to wait for his bill of lading, which was floating about somewhere in England.

"But dogs are not the only animals we have kept here. There's scarcely a living thing you could mention that hasn't been a boarder here—everything from elephants to snakes. Some of them have just been kept here in bond waiting for another steamship to take them to Canada or South America."

ings at 8:15. The reading room is in the Electrical building, 62 Patton avenue, room No. 23 and is open every day except Sunday, from 10 to 12 and from 2 to 5. All are cordially welcome to the services and to the reading room.

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. Sold by all dealers.

Force of the Imagination.

There is a story of a man who was tied up in a dark room and informed that he was to be put to death by bleeding. His tormentors made a small incision in his neck and arranged for a stream of lukewarm water to trickle down his back for 15 minutes. At the end of 15 minutes the man died of exhaustion. He had not lost a drop of blood, but he thought he had. Such is the power of suggestion.—London Saturday Review.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

It Might Have Been Otherwise.

An old Pennsylvania German living in the mountains had a hard three hours' dusty walk to accomplish one morning and he rose very early to make his start. He had gone but a little way when he was overtaken by an automobile, which was probably the first that had passed along that way. The driver picked up the old man and they were at his destination in about 20 minutes. "Danks so much awfully mit de ride. If I had know myself to be here already two hours in front of de clock yet I vud be at home fast asleep already to start unless I knew you vud not have picked me up since."—Housekeeper.

An inmate of the poorhouse at Trieste, Austria, died the other day, at the age of 76. An investigation of the effects of this supposed pauper, an Albanian called Sterio, revealed the fact that he owned over $250,000 in investments and bank deposits. He had made a fortune in Egypt before the British occupation and added to it by living at public expense.
