"METZ IN IRELAND" PLEASES
SMALL AUDIENCE LAST NIGHT
Al. H. Wilson's Work Was of High Order—Play Deserved a Much Better House.

Al. H. Wilson in "Metz in Ireland" played to a small sized but appreciative audience at the Auditorium last night. The play was good, while Mr. Wilson's work was of a high order. Especially catchy were his songs, particularly "Molly O," "My Queen of Dreams" and "Erin's Isle." He had a very fine voice. It was a play that deserved a better house. The company was good all the way through, but especially attractive was Mabel Wright as Kathleen O'Malley. "A Rose of Erin."

DR. FRED COOK ADMITS FRAUD

"What can I say, anyway?"
"Do you admit that you didn't find the pole?"
"Yes."
"Did you think you did when you first said you did?"
"I believe I must have."
"When did the conviction first strike you that you hadn't discovered the pole?"
"The Doc looked startled. He lost his grin for an instant.
"I don't know," he said finally.
"Do you think Peary got to the pole?"
"I always said I did."
"Won't Debate with Peary."
"Would you debate with Peary on a platform regarding your own performances?"
"Oh, that would be impossible," he said hastily. "That's not my number."
"You said when you announced the discovery of the Pole that you had complete and positive proofs and in later statements you admit that your proofs were not sufficient."
"Ah, well, no proofs can be positive," sighed the Doc, and began to back away.
"You still claim to have climbed to the summit of Mount McKinley?"
"Yes," came the answer, but the Doc began backing further away from the reporters.
"Prof. Herschel C. Parker of Columbia, one of your companions on the Mount McKinley climb says your claim is preposterous?"
"I'll answer that and a lot of other things, but in my own time and in my own way. I guess that is my right, isn't it?" jauntily demanded the Doc. But this little pleasantry was received in a silence in which could have been distinctly heard so much as a gumbop.
"Did you believe in your records when you sent them to the University of Copenhagen?" was the next question fired.
"Oh, certainly."
"Then why did you call Capt. August W. Loosse to aid you in compiling them?"
"That will be answered in the next instalment in the magazine."
"Dodges Refund Questions."
"You have also written, doctor, 'Most positively I am not a thief. Most certainly there was no plan to hoax the world to my own financial profit. But if you now admit doubt of what you spoke from the platform in your lectures, how can you keep the admission fees you received?'"
"That," smiled the Doc, "will also be answered in my next instalment."
"Why do you chose to make this statement to the public for money through medium of a magazine, rather than to the University of Copenhagen?"

hagen, which had honored you with a degree?"
"I wanted a medium that would be free from bias."
"Yet you accept the verdict of the University against you."
"Do you intend to recriminate Mount McKinley or make another try at the pole?"
"No."
"Have you any other stunts or discoveries in contemplation?"
"Not a thing in my mind except my writing."
"Are you staying here permanently?"
"This community is to be my home. I am through with exploration. There is no other place on the globe that I care to go to."
The Doc hustled down to his stateroom, No. 65, clapped on his black derby hat, put on his black overcoat and, picking up his umbrella, started down the gangplank, where on the wharf he met his milkman brother, William L. Cook, and his sister, Mrs. Lillian Murphy. Then he started for the Waldorf.
His wife and children he left behind in France.
The passengers who had been friendly with Cook say he showed no nervousness as he was approaching the scene of his remarkable reception as one of the immortal voyagers of the world. He posed for photographs all over the ship and with his hand out offered to shake hands in farewell when ever the opportunity offered.

MANUFACTURERS RECORD PAYS ATTENTION TO W. N. C.
Publication Has a Page Article on Timber Industries in This Section.
In this week's issue of the Manufacturers Record is a page article on the timber industries of Western North Carolina, showing a cut of the Champion Fibre company at Canton. The article, written by Albert Phenix, staff correspondent of the Manufacturers Record, is the first of a series which will appear upon the development of this section. All phases will be handled. Mr. Phenix also has an article descriptive of the various religious assembly grounds now being constructed, or already established. The Presbyterians at Montreat, Baptists at Blue Mount, northern Methodists near Black Mountain, and the Blue Ridge conference grounds, now being constructed near Black Mountain, and the Southern Methodist chataqua at Waynesville go to show how popular this section is becoming for such organizations.
Whatever the republican congressional campaign committee spent on the last election, it did not get its money's worth.—Charlotte Observer.
