

A Welcome Change

Smoke curling up from the farmhouse chimney as the men are coming in from the fields, gives a pretty suggestion of a good supper and a comfortable home. But it also means a hot, tired woman, working hard over a blazing fire.

Your wife can escape this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

A New Perfection keeps a kitchen many degrees cooler than any other range, yet it does all a coal or wood range can do. It saves time, labor and fuel. No wood to cut; no coal to carry; no ashes; no soot. With the New Perfection oven it is the best cooking device you can find anywhere.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Hand-somely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

REMOVAL OF STAINS.

How to Clean Soiled Clothing by Simple Methods.

Pretty frocks are apt to pick up soil from grass and stains from fruit in summer, and, though white may be restored to their original condition, this is not always the case when the material is in dilapidated colorings.

It is not generally known that lukewarm water and a little good white soap will remove many different stains if the remedy is applied in time. From personal experience I have found that new paint will disappear if the material stained is rubbed together exactly as one might wash goods. I once stood close to a large pillar that had just been painted a light yellow and transferred most of the paint to a long brown broadcloth wrap. I was in despair, but a man standing by simply rubbed and rubbed until not a trace of stain was evident. No agent beyond the rubbing was used, but the paint must be taken before it is dry.

Acid stains will usually respond to an alkali treatment. One part of ammonia, borax or washing soda to twenty parts of water is the proper proportion. A stain caused by an alkali may be neutralized with one part citric acid, vinegar or lemon juice to twenty parts of water. In both cases chlorine will usually restore the original color, supposing colored goods have been treated. One should keep away from the fire during the process.

Drops of blood should be treated with soap and warm water first and then be covered with a paste made of raw cornstarch, exposing it to the sun for some hours. It may then be brushed off and the spot washed again.

Stains from coffee, tea or chocolate should first be treated with hot water if the goods can stand it. If obstinate the stain should be soaked in glycerin. A stain of this kind on silk should be treated with glycerin mixed with cold water.

In the case of fruit stains on colored fabrics apply equal parts of glycerin and alcohol. Allow the solution to dry and then rinse in warm water.

In the case of white goods javelle water is a sure—and if carefully done—a perfectly safe remedy for fruit stains. To make javelle water take one part chlorine of lime and ten parts water, then one part of washing soda dissolved in four parts of water. Allow this to settle, then pour off the clear fluid into a jar or bottle, throwing away the sediment. When needed for use, heat well and lay in the goods to be bleached. Rinse in several waters, and if the fabric is very sheer it might be well to rinse finally in a solution of hyposulphite of soda one part and water ten parts. This is to neutralize the effect of the lime, which, if left in the fabric, might injure its strength.

Stains caused by orange or lemon juice will usually respond to an application of one part ammonia to twenty parts of water. This is good in the case of either white or colored fabrics.

Grass stains on white goods may be removed by covering them with molasses, and some people use the same remedy on colors. In my opinion, just keeping the stains wet with alcohol is the better plan, afterward gently sponging with a little warm water and soap.

Rust stains on white goods are not difficult to remove. They may safely be steeped in a solution of citric acid one part and water twenty parts. When the rust marks have disappeared the goods should be washed in warm water.—Elizabeth Lee in New York Telegram.

How to Make a Liquid and an Oil Paste Variety.

A fine liquid blacking is made as follows: Put one gallon of vinegar into a stone jug; add one pound of ivory black, well pulverized; half a pound of loaf sugar, half an ounce of vitriol and one ounce of sweet oil. Mix by stirring. This blacking is highly recommended as producing a fine jet polish and is less injurious to leather than most of the pastes and liquid blackings in common use.

A fine oil paste blacking is made thus: Take a quarter of a pound of oil of vitriol, ten ounces of tanner's oil, four ounces of ivory black and ten ounces of molasses. Mix the oil of vitriol and the tanner's oil together and let stand for one day. Then add the ivory black and molasses and the whites of two eggs and stir well together until there is a thick paste.

How to Preserve Pineapple in the Sun. Sterilize the jars and utensils. Grate the pineapple. Fill the hot jars with it and pour in enough sirup to fill the jars solidly. Place the jars in the sun for an hour, then fill the jars again with boiling sirup. Wipe and seal. Place the jars on a board and out of a draft of air. If the screw covers are used tighten them after the glass has cooled.

How to Blacken a Hot Stove. Take any kind of blacking powder and any kind of oil and mix as thick as cream (lard will do). Apply with a cloth, and the oil burns off and leaves the blacking in the iron, which lasts longer than when blacked the usual way. Do not blacken the sides of the stove with this mixture, as it will not burn off. It is for the top only.

LOOPED THE LEAP.

His Act Delighted the Audience, but Enraged the Star.

"My father in his youth," said E. H. Sothen, "was once playing in a romantic drama wherein he made a tremendous leap—a leap from his lady love's tower to a mattress behind a wooden rock on the stage far below. It was a thrilling leap, and my father no doubt enjoyed the applause it won him. But one night he sprained his ankle and vowed he would leap no more.

"So the manager hired a professional acrobat to do the leap made up as my father's counterpart, while my father would slip back under cover of the tower wall and descend to his dressing room by means of a hidden ladder.

"The afternoon the acrobat came to the theater to rehearse he made the leap, and then he set up a loud complaint.

"What's the matter?" asked a young member of the company who happened to be in the theater.

"Why," said the acrobat in a disgusted voice, "this here leap is too tame. It's too easy. A man with glass eyes and cork legs could do it. Now, if they'd let me throw two flip-flops in the air as I came down—

"Splendid!" cried the young actor. "The very thing!"

"You don't think the boss would mind?" said the acrobat doubtfully.

"Mind? Why, man, he'll be tickled to death. Ten to one he'll raise your salary."

"That evening when the great leap scene began my father was gratified to see the acrobat, a perfect picture of himself, crouching in the shadow of the window.

"Love, good night, good night!" my father cried.

"Stay!" moaned the heroine, and she threw herself on his neck. "Stay! That leap is death!"

"Nay, nay, my own; 'tis honor. I leap, 'tis true, but there is that within my heart will bear me up—this image, love. And so good night, good night."

"He kissed her nimbly on the brow, tore himself from her clinging arms and rushed across the open space into the shadow.

"Jump!" he hissed to the acrobat between his teeth.

"And out, straight out into the air, shot the acrobat. Twice his lithe shape whirled round like a great flywheel. Then he lit lightly and easily on the topmost point of the wooden rock.

"Rounds of laughter and thunders of applause shook the theater. The acrobat bowed stiffly and strutted off into the wings with his arms folded. But the remarks of my poor father on his ladder have not come down to us."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Could Be Trusted. The late Lord Young of the Scottish bench was responsible for enlivening many a dull case. One of the best remarks that ever fell from his lips was the reply to a counsel who urged on behalf of a plaintiff of somewhat bibulous appearance:

"My client, my lord, is a most respectable man and holds a very responsible position. He is manager of some waterworks."

After a long look the judge answered: "Yes, he looks like a man who could be trusted with any amount of water."

His Secret Sorrow. Some brothers are an embarrassment. Take the case of Miss Smith of Ogontz, who has a brother who works in the same office with young Burlington. Miss Smith was very much impressed with her brother's friends, and the two fell to discussing the young man.

"He's such a charming fellow," said the girl, "and I like his melancholy ways. He's so solemn he must have had some great trial that he's trying to conceal."

"Yes, indeed," said the brother. "He asked for a raise in salary a month ago, and the boss told 'im he wasn't worth it; that he was being overpaid now."—Philadelphia Times.
