

COTTON PRICES STILL TUMBLING

August Contracts Off 34 Points, July 42 Old Crop Positions Lose $4 to $4.80 a Bale Since Saturday.

THE NEW CROP POSITIONS SUFFERED LESS SEVERELY

Rumors That Formerly Successful Bulls Have Lost Heavily—Markets Tone Somewhat Better.

New York, July 19.—There was a continuation of yesterday's activity and excitement in the cotton market this morning, and a further sensational break in prices, particularly in the old crop months, which were entirely depressed by the renewal of bull liquidation.

Inside the first half hour August contracts sold off to 13, or 34 points under the closing figures of last night, while July broke from 13.70 at opening to 13.28, a net decline of 42 points, and old crop positions at this level showed the tremendous loss of $4 to $4.80 per bale from closing prices of Saturday and of from $12.75 to $14.25 per bale from the season's high records.

New Crop Position Declines. New crop positions suffered less severely today but October and December contracts sold off to 12.13, a net decline of from 9 to 12 points and nearly $2.50 per bale below the closing figures of last week. It seemed the opinion around the ring that the scales interest liquidated a very large line of new crop contracts yesterday and that the leading old crop bull interests, including the copper people, are heavy sellers of many months today, both in Liverpool and New York.

Port au Prince, Hayti, July 19.—The revolution progresses. The government troops were routed at Trou and have returned in disorder to Cape Haytian. The situation is calm here, but if the government fails it is feared there will be disorders on this part of the peninsula as all the disciplined troops are in the north.

CHOLERA CARRIERS INCREASE DANGER

It May Be Necessary for Health Officers of the Entire Country to Help Repell Invasion.

New York, July 19.—The health officers of the whole country may be asked to help repel the threatened invasion of Asiatic cholera. The discovery of five "cholera carriers" among the 600 immigrants undergoing bacteriological examination at quarantine emphasizes what Health Officer Doty said about the difficulty of confining the disease to the quarantine hospitals of ports of entry.

The case of the cholera "carriers," who harbor the germs while themselves free from their ill effects, creates a puzzling situation. Since the isolation of the cholera bacteria many cases of these "carriers" have been recorded.

A COMMISSION OF REGULATION

Advanced Stand Taken by Wick-ersham Little Short of Sensational—Speaking for the Administration?

POWER TO FIX PRICES OF GOODS IS SUGGESTED

Low of Supply and Demand no Long-er Holds—Interstate Commerce Commission Cited as Precedent.

DULUTH, MINN., July 19.—Attorney General Wickersham before the Minnesota state bar association today took an advanced stand on the further federal regulation of corporations, declaring that a government commission to regulate the great industrial organizations in the same way that the interstate commerce commission regulates railways was certainly most desirable, and that it might be an absolute necessity.

Wickersham's speech was a little short of sensational in many features. He declared it was a serious consideration whether it would be practicable to give to the proposed interstate corporation commission power to fix prices. This in theory would simply require the extension of the principle by which the interstate commerce commission controls the rates on railroads.

Ancient Law No Longer Holds. The law of supply and demand, Wickersham said, no longer controls prices in the United States. For years, he declared, prices in all the great staple industries have been fixed by agreement between principal producers and not by the normal play of free competition.

Many of Wickersham's declarations were the most radical he has made since his entrance into official life. With the weight of an administration officer behind them his remarks made a deep impression. There was nothing in the speech, however, to indicate how far the attorney general reflected the views of the president. On several occasions in the past he has been regarded as the administration's spokesman.

The Aviator, Bud Mars, Describes Plunge That Nearly Cost His Life

Thinks He Must Have Got in a Pocket or Hole in the Air—Still Improving.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 19.—With his head swathed in bandages, Jr. C. ("Bud") Mars, who was hurt in the fall of his aeroplane last Friday, sat up for several hours in the Hamot hospital today. He is about at the roller-chair stage. He complains little of soreness and presents a cheerful demeanor. He is confident he will be able to leave the hospital by Saturday.

The aviator has no very clear idea of just what caused the plunge which so nearly cost him his life. "I was planning to make a six lap flight," he said. "I remember having made the circuit of the field once and that then, for some reason, I began to fall. I suppose I must have gotten into a pocket or a hole in the air. The machines did not respond to my efforts and refused to ascend. I recall seeing the line of spectators in front of me and I also saw the long stretch of soft white canvas which screened the side lines of the field. I had only an instant to make a choice and I naturally chose what seemed to be the softer object to hit. That is all I know about it."

Herewith is printed a photograph taken at the instant when "Bud" Mars was making that fateful decision. It shows the perilous slant of the aeroplane as the aviator brought it around toward the canvas obstruction.
