How prone is the physician to crit-leise adversely the things that are new, and how inexplicable is human nature in general in this respect. was forcibly reminded of this seemingly innate characteristic of all man kind when several years ago I had the temerity to attack the old accepted pathology of a recognized incurable lesion chronic Bright's Disease And how nearly fatal it proved to my medical aspirations until, by persist-ent and extended clinical work, the dark clouds of adverse criticism were replaced by the sunshine of honest investigation. Let us look further into how electro radio does its work. There is no one here today who would doubt after the elaborate and conclusive ex-periments of Schiff, Dubois Raymond, D'Arsouval and others, that we have electric currents traversing our bodies in every direction, and that the nerves are the carriers of these currents. It treatment he said that positively he is also true, that everything that acts h wire becomes so disturbed by the viin time it may be broken like a piece vision was seriously impaired. The rate of vibration is peculiar to the kind of current came carried by the nerve. Whenever a nerve loses its normal vibratory tone its function is destroyed and degenerative changes occur. The patient taking electro-radio is subject to a rate vibrations from a few to many milin the body will find a rate to which it statement personally to me that he must cease. The main floor of the big convention hall and playhouse was filled with ladies and gentiemen; distinguished citizens of Asheville and Juniors high in the councils of the order in North Carolina were seated on the stage; the folds of Old Glory, one of the emblems of the order, were draped about a flagstaff and gracefully spread out over a convenient table; the Book of Books hay nearby, while Stewart's orchestra occupied a pluce in the pit and added to the pleasures of the evening with several selections. The program of the evening was made still further pleasure-able by the excellent quartet singing of J. G. Statelenther, C. T. Carv. Frank 8. Smith and W. E. Moore, who
