TRANSPARENCY CAUSE OF HEAT

Remarkable Condition of Atmosphere Responsible for Heat Wave, French Scientist Says.

THE HUNTING SEASON NOW ON IN FRANCE

Plenty of Game—Talk of Substituting Brest for Havre as French Entry Port.

(Associated Press Cable.)
Paris, Sept. 4.—Claude Casimir Perier, son of the former president of the republic, is making a campaign in favor of substituting Brest for Havre as the French port for steamers from the United States. He admits that the inferior place held by French steamers in Atlantic traffic is due to the activities of the Germans and English in building larger and faster steamers but contends that the French could better their position by reducing the distance between France and New York which a change to the more westerly Brest would bring about. The distance from Brest to Paris is considerably longer than that between Havre and Paris. Nevertheless, M. Perier declares, the inauguration of a series of fast express trains would notably decrease the existing time between Paris and New York and would be at once a distinct advantage to French transatlantic traveling.

The remarkable and constant transparency of the atmosphere was the cause of the terrific heat wave in France, according to M. Deslandres, the director of the observatory of Meudon. M. Deslandres made this report to the Academy of Sciences. He added: "This transparency, long continuing, has brought about the high temperatures. I may add that if it has been an uncomfortable thing for man it has been a helpful condition for astronomers. We have been able to make some remarkably clear observations of the heavens."

The Catholic population of Savoie, forming an impressive procession of many thousands, has participated in the transfer of the ashes of Saint Francois de Sales and Sainte Jeanne de Chantal. The ceremony was held at the village of Anney. The ashes were taken from the old convent of the Visitation where they had reposed during three centuries and placed in the new convent which the sisters of the Visitation have recently built on the heights overlooking the beautiful Lake Anney.

Leon Cavallo, now staying at Montecatini, Switzerland, is well along in the composition of a new opera to be produced in Milan and New York. It is named La Foresta Momora and has only two acts. The story is from a romance by Korolenko. The libretto is by Enrico Cavacchioli.

French hunters have cleaned their shotguns for the annual hunting season opening during the closing days of August and which this year is particularly alluring. Game is abundant. Partridge, pheasant, hare, rabbits, roebuck and even deer have been sighted in unusual numbers in the considerable areas of woodland which do not come under the heading of private hunting grounds.

Of these private grounds there are many. M. Lebaudy, the so-called sugar king, pays $16,000 a year for the right to control the hunting in the famous forest of Fontainebleau. But even so, the forest is a public domain and any person who wishes may follow the Lebaudy hunts. In France hunting comes within the ambitions and reach of the masses of the people who may have a fancy for that form of sport. The only requisite after the gun and powder is a governmental permit which costs about $5.50 yearly.

Quantities of game are found within a short distance of Paris. Invitations are already out for the more pretentious hunts of the rich man on his private domain. In these custom dictates that the hunter shall be accompanied by two men, a valet and a guard. Sometimes there is even a third—the gun-carrier. The gun-carrier passes the weapon to the guard who gives it in turn to the valet, who then hands it to his master. This complication is a remnant of the magnificent hunts in the early days of France, when the joyous tumult of hound and horse, and valet and "piqueur" rang through the court of the chateau.

To the modern hunt many prominent Frenchwomen of today are ardent devotees. The young Duchess of Noulles is a clever shot, and the Countess of Cheygue, the Duchess d'Uzes, the Countess Le Hon, the Countess de Fels and Madames Georges Raoul-Duval, du Gast, and Brazier all have won their laurels as good markswomen.

Amusements.

AL. G. FIELDS, AUDITORIUM, SEPTEMBER 9, MATINEE AND NIGHT

The Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels are on their twenty-sixth annual tour and put forth the usual announcement. However, it is all embodied in five words: "Bigger and better than ever." To substantiate the claim, the following productions are promised:

The opening scene entitled "Night and Morning," or "Down Where the Cotton Blossoms Grow." A cotton field with male and female cotton pickers—a cotton gin in operation, a steamboat loading cotton, a steamboat under way—a beautiful tableau, "Down Stream," solo and ensemble "Darling Nellie Gray." "As the Sun Goes Down," "The Storm," "Night on the Bayou," "Moonlight on the River," "Morning," "The Florentine Festival," "The Flower of Beauty," "The Garden of Flowers."

"I'll seek a four-leafed shamrock in all the fairy dells And if I find the charmed leaves, oh! how I'll weave my spells."

—Lover.

A second transformation introduces the third and last scene of "Night and Morning." Nothing could offer greater contrast. From flowers of all hues to Forbes field, the home of the pirate crew, the Pittsburgh baseball team, the finest athletic park in the world. All the prominent players of the major leagues—Elynn Wagner, Ty Cobb, Roger Bresnahan, Christy Matthewson, John McGraw, Frank Chance, in review. The burlesque on our national game by the Black Hawks and the Daffodils, concluding with an empire-baiting bout which ends the first part, after which the most original and diversified of all musical episodes "Darktown Pomsander Walk." Not a burlesque on the play of Pomsander Walk but an original idea of a thousand ideas elaborated opening with Doc Quigley's greatest dance creation, "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party," followed by a myriad of musical mirthful specialties, a review of vaudeville and opera. The burlesque on Il Trovatore—Il Trovatore, the hand organ and the monkey—Herbert Willison, Jack Allman and Henry Nelsner, the animal impersonator, as the monkey—the sunshine of Paradise Alley, and the latest craze "Baby Lou," the trombone tourists, the dances of Dixie, the pantomime nightmare—Wry Hiball's fearful finish, Dantes Inferno. Darktown Pomsander Walk is one long list of laughs. There's not a breathing spell in the whole walk. Minstrelsy more modern than ever presented, musical stunts, comedy stunts all

In an effort to trace heirs who, unknown to themselves, are in positions to claim fortunes in foreign lands and this country, the International Claim Agency has established an office at 415 South Duquesne street, Pittsburgh, Pa., and is prepared to trace claims to foreign estates. While it is not generally known, there are many fortunes waiting American claimants, according to the data secured by this agency.

To aid in the work, the agency has issued a publication of 488 pages containing in alphabetical order names of persons who have been advertised for in the last 100 years, including many names from the chancery courts of England and Ireland and lists of lost relatives unclaimed bank dividends, etc. The volume of names appears in the book under the heading to have been mentioned.
