LABOR PARADE A GREAT EVENT

Thousands of People Watched Procession of Floats, Many of These Very Hand-some.

WALLACE'S EXHIBIT AWARDED FIRST PRIZE

Second Went to I. A. B. of L. E.—Sports at Riverside Program for Rest of Day.

Thousands of men, women and children this morning thronged the streets of Asheville to view the mammoth Labor Day parade of the mechanics, the professional and business men of the town. The parade of floats and men on horseback and in vehicles had been heralded as something well worth seeing. The people believed that the Labor Day parade and the after-events would prove interesting and they turned out en masse.

That they were not disappointed was evidenced by the keen interest taken in each float as it passed. In review and of the complimentary remarks made about the affair. The parade really ushered in the day. It was in charge of a committee from Central Labor Union that for weeks had worked industriously to make it the best ever. The merchants of the city and other commercial enterprises joined heartily into the spirit of the affair and as a result the Labor Day parade today was about the best if not in fact the best that has ever been seen here. The floats were artistic and evidenced that much time and money had been spent in their get-up. There were some more pronouncedly artistic than others, but all in all each and every float in the big parade, that required approximately one hour to pass over the route selected, a short route, bespoke the interest and the enthusiasm manifest in labor's great holiday.

About 100 Represented.

The parade started from the Auditorium with about 100 firms of the city represented either by float or in some other manner. All along the line of march were great crowds of people and frequently hearty applause for some particular float. The committee named to decide the best float was composed of W. R. Whitson, John M. Campbell and John W. Neely. The committee found that J. C. Wallace was entitled to first prize and the International Auxiliary of Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers was entitled to the second prize. The first prize is $10 and the second $5. The report of the committee follows:

"We, the undersigned committee selected to pass upon the merits of the different floats do unanimously report that we find the exhibit of J. C. Wallace entitled to first prize and the International Auxiliary of Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers entitled to second.

"We also desire to report as entitled to special mention the floats of Rebecca Indor, O. P. A. G. McLean, E. W. Grove, J. R. Rich Co., Carpenters' union, C. L. Brown and others. (Signed) "W. R. WHITSON, "JOHN M. CAMPBELL, "JOHN W. NEELY."

Hard to Decide.

Members of the award committee, declared after the parade that it was hard to decide the winners, that all the floats were representative and reflected much credit upon those responsible for them but that since it was their duty to decide they had performed the task and that they felt gratified that the winners had been unanimously selected. The committee declared that the Labor Day parade today was the best that has ever been witnessed in Asheville. They were enthusiastic over the effort of Central Labor Union with the co-operation of the business people of the town to make the affair a great success.

The crowd that witnessed the parade was about the largest that has thronged the streets on any similar occasion during the past several years. Long before the parade started there were thousands of men, women and children lined along the sidewalks and overflowing into the streets to see the passage of the floats. Following the parade the cars for Riverside park were crowded with patrons bound for the resort along the French Broad river and the first ball game of the day. This afternoon there were numerous sports at the park in addition to the ball game while tonight there will be moving pictures, a band concert, fireworks and other attractions.

MOTHER IS DEPRIVED OF SON AND DAUGHTER

Clerk Erwin Orders That Children of Anna Davis Be Placed in Children's Home.

Clerk of the Court Marcus Erwin Saturday ordered that the children of Anna Davis be put into the children's home of the county, after he had heard evidence tending to show that the mother was not a proper person to bring them up and after the woman's father, J. H. Ducker, had made complaint to the same effect.

The children are a boy and a girl, aged 11 and nine years, respectively, and their grandfather stated that they were surrounded by evil influences and were not given the proper care. This statement was supported by other evidence, while the mother contended that she is able to support the children and that the testimony derogatory to her was false.

A public hearing, at which the children were taken away from their mother.

YOUTHFUL OFFENDERS

Several Such Cases in Police Court and Continuances Had—Other Cases.

There were about 30 defendants in police court this morning but not all of the cases were disposed of. There were several youthful offenders charged with various offenses and their cases were continued until a special session of the court at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Wiley Banks and Harrison Stewart were charged with selling whiskey but both cases were continued.

Clyde Melton was charged with three offenses. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly, with an assault on Jennie Wright and with an assault on an unknown man. He was acquitted on the third charge, was given 20 days on the roads on the first charge and 60 days for the assault on Jennie Wright. He collapsed in both cases.

There were several other cases tried including assaults, gambling, abusive language, and miscellaneous charges.

Certain residents of Swannanoa have brought suit against four fire insurance companies to collect the sum of $3600 which they allege should be paid to them on account of some insured buildings which were destroyed by fire at Swannanoa several months ago. The fire insurance companies involved are the Shawnee Fire Insurance company, the Peoples' National Fire Insurance company, British-American Insurance company, and the Caledonian Insurance company. There are five separate complaints.

PRISONER TELLS STORY TO JURY

always leave it to the prisoner himself to determine whether or not he shall do this. Beattie has been abundantly insistent from the first that he tell his own story in his own words.

The prosecution is prepared to attack the prisoner's story with a mercenary fire. Prosecutor Wendenburg is primed for the occasion with dozens of letters and statements with which to rebuff the accused, and in the rebuttal which will follow tomorrow, the commonwealth will bring to the stand many a witness which it has purposely withheld until the story of the accused is before it. It will not be surprising to see Beulah Binford, the so-called "girl in the case," on the stand confronting the prisoner.

Various surmises have been rampant as to what kind of testimony she would give.

"Whether Beulah is called to the stand or not," said Mr. Smith, "will depend on the revelations made by Henry in his testimony. If she is called it probably will be by the commonwealth and we wish they would do so."

A story of the alleged effort of the prisoner to communicate with the Binford girl while she occupied a nearby cell in a Richmond jail and of a packet of letters discovered on a prisoner released from the jail, was characterized as trivial by Attorney Smith.

"The letters which the prosecution have," explained Mr. Smith, "were personal letters from members of the family of the prisoner to him, and in no way concerned the Binford girl. Henry told me that he hoped the prosecution would produce them, as it only would show the kind of tactics they have been using to try to convict him."
