HARMON AND CLARK

Nominated by Col. S. A. Jones for President and Vice President—His Reasons.

Editor of The Gazette-News:

I am just reaching the end of a long needed rest at one of my mining camps, while the financial interests of the Transcontinental railroad have been completing their arrangements to double up the construction forces along the line, to push the work to completion.

While resting I have been reading national politics, and before I take up my railroad work again, I wish to say that I note with interest and pleasure, that the hope of constitutional democracy is looking up bright with hope along the political horizon. One of the most favorable signs of the times is the honest, progressive and independent element of the republican party, through Senator LaFollette, have unfurled their banners to the breezes in opposition to the Taft program of donatism and violated pledges.

Mr. Taft was elected on a platform of a pledge for tariff revision downward, and the first downward schedule submitted to him, on some of the most important necessities for the comforts of life, when passed by congress, was vetoed by him. He did not seem to realize that if those downward schedules were bad, as he said they were, that under Taft's theory they would be republican capital honestly procured with which to fight democracy, nor did he seem to realize that if they were good and honest schedules for the relief of the people, that they would have been honest earned republican capital to sustain him in his advocacy of a downward revision of the tariff.

His tariff commission will prove a farce just as the monetary commission of 1893 did, and just as the present monetary and tariff commission will, a monetary commission whose chairman was the head of the money trusts and composed of lame ducks and back numbers in the political arena. They can accomplish nothing, for they are without constitutional authority, and while congress permitted their appointment, congress will pay no more attention to their reports if they are not in keeping with the majority view of that great body, than they will to the zephyrs that ripple the bosom of the Potomac river, when the breezes drift in upon it from the Atlantic ocean.

His dream that he will win victory for the republican party by a tariff commission revision appointed by him that will relieve the toiling masses of the nation, will be one that he will never realize. Nor will he be able to retain the republican party in power by any executive appointed commission, as long as the people of this nation are permitted by a free ballot, to name the men, that they wish to investigate the needs of the nation and make its laws.

The party in power for the past half century is the party that rebelled against the state rights provision in our constitution, and were able by being in control of the machinery of the government to overpower right and temporarily overthrow this great southland, and practically confiscate and take from it without law or justice unnumbered millions of dollars of value, because it fought for the preservation of its rights under the constitution.

And thank God the men that wore the gray, many of them, are living today to see New England, who precipitated the cruel war, trying to rid herself of graft and trusts, struggling and crying out for the protection of her rights under the constitution, and under those very provisions of the constitution under which they precipitated a fanatical war against this southland.

And its refreshing to the old constitutional democracy, to see those that participated in that war that were true Americans in trying to crush the south, have seen the error of their way, and today they are hanging garlands and wreaths of flowers on the monuments of the southern dead, and writing music and songs in honor and praise of the bravery and valor of the great heroes of this southland that stood for the nation's honor and for its constitution.

And their shed blood, like the shed blood of the saviour of the religious constitution of the world, is growing to be more perfectly understood and is becoming brighter every day, and is filling the pages of history with the truth about an unselfish and patriotic heroism, such as is unparalleled in its growth from the close of that cruel war save in the crucifixion of the Saviour of the world, whose believing hosts are as numberless as the sands of the seashore and increasing as time goes by.

So the blood shed by the brave men of this southland, is watering the plant of Christian, and human justice, human right and human intelligence, and it is growing and flourishing, and it will live as long as time lasts.

In the age of the world there are no two occasions in recorded history or in the acts of men, that have been handed down, and will pass on to the generations to come that have been laden with the cause of right, like that of the life of the master which was short, and though he was crucified by his enemies, yet his life performed the object of purpose, and the life of the Confederacy which was also short, but is rapidly winning its purpose for which it fought.

The great Master only began to live by His spirit in the hearts of men, to never die, after the day of His crucifixion, and the purity and of the purpose and the righteousness of the cause of this great southland never began to truly live in the hearts of the brave men throughout the nation and the world until after the day of the crucifixion and the final shedding of the south's blood at Appomattox, and in less than half a century from the watering by that blood, the progress of civilization, of Christian development, and industrial progress, has never been eclipsed in the history of the world except in the progress of Christian civilization.

And he who thinks the south is not still democratic and will not remain so, and that the democracy of the south is not the foundation stone on which the constitution was founded, and has been maintained, will find when true history is complete and the scroll is sealed that he has been but a dreamer and a worshipping of Mammon.

As true as daylight comes and goes is the saying give the calf sufficient rope and it will hang itself. So today we at last see good men have become nauseated, disgusted and tired of the unjust robbing of the American people by the party in power and their most progressive republican party. There is no occasion for another republican or radical party in America, no matter what inscription it may place on its banner, it is sure to develop into the same old party. So the time seems to have arrived for the good men in the republican party that were sick and tired of the graft that has been sapping the American people since 1866 should find a lodgment and home, in the old constitutional democratic party of the nation.

Grover Cleveland came as near burying the democratic party of this southland as Roosevelt and Taft have come in burying the republican party of the nation. There should be no more Cleveland democrats in this southland or nation. It took the blood, the energy, and the eloquence of a young Bryan, to bring the constitutional democracy back in line from its worship of the golden calf.

Cleveland was elected by democrat votes, but he gave us a republican administration, and was a friend of the money interest at heart, and fastened the infamous gold standard on the nation and placed the control of the nation's currency issuing power in the hands of the national banks, which makes it easy for them to bring a panic on the nation at their sweet will and pleasure. And inasmuch as Mr. Taft is going to canvass the great west in the interest of his own re-nomination for the presidency I think it is time that the democracy should bring forward stalwart, true, tried, and experienced men in business and political economy of the nation. And I am going to suggest two names for the consideration of the American people. On whom I believe the constitutional democracy can unite and the disgraced, the sick, and the tired honest element of the republican party can unite for president and vice president, for it seems to me that the time, that is here of the nation from which comes the great supply of the chief necessities of life, meat and bread, and wool for clothing, should be recognized.

And to my mind there is no more safe and conservative man, and one who has had experience as attorney general to this great nation in which position he became familiar with every portion of it and has manifested high sound and conservative executive ability in every position he has occupied, and has been a true democrat from the constitutional view point all his life long. And that man is the Hon. Judson Harmon, governor of Ohio and ex-attorney general of the United States and a man that will be a credit and an honor to the nation as its chief executive and president.

His running mate should be chosen west of the Mississippi in that vast, rich, agricultural section that yields food for the nation, and I know of no man in the public eye that has had long legislative experience, in the national halls of congress, that would lend more strength to the united democracy, and to secure the support of the honest progressive element of the republican party as candidate for the vice presidency than the present speaker of the house, the Honorable Champ Clark.

So if there ever was a time for the constitutional democracy to present a solid front that time is here for the republican party with its leaders is left high and dry on the sand banks of unfulfilled pledges and broken vows; and I respectfully commend these two gentlemen, who are known in every household on the American continent, to the consideration of the American people, as in my humble judgment are the two men above all other names now before the public eye, or that may be brought before it for the coming campaign as the men to lead the democratic hosts to victory. ## JOHNSON CONFESSES; GIVEN A LIFE TERM

Says He Dragged Little Girl from Bed, Beat Her to Death, Threw Body Into the Lake.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 14.—John Johnson, known as "Dogskin" Johnson, last night confessed to the abduction and murder of little Annie Lemberger, the seven years old child whose body was found in Lake Monona last Saturday. He was immediately sentenced to Judge Anthony Donovan to life imprisonment. A few minutes afterwards Johnson was taken in an automobile by Sheriff Andrew Brown to the state prison at Waupun. It had been feared that Johnson might be lynched.

Johnson said the deed was the result of sudden impulse. He had watched through the window the little girl and her sister undress at bedtime on numerous occasions and on the fatal night, shortly after the children had fallen asleep, he raised the sash and watched little Annie from the bed, dragged her through the window and struck her unconscious so there would be no outcry. He then took her to the railroad bridge and after beating her until life was extinct threw the body into Lake Monona. Johnson would not make a detailed confession. He wanted to be on his way to Waupun to avoid mob violence, which he feared, and promised to make a written and full confession after he had been lodged in prison.

MISS CAROLINE WEBB

Aged Lady of the Haw Creek Section Died Yesterday Morning.

Miss Caroline Webb, of the Haw Creek section, died yesterday at her home after an illness of some length, at the age of 85 years. She was familiarly known as "Aunt Carrie" and she had a number of relatives in this city, including two nephews, W. Webb and D. H. Webb; and a sister, Mrs. J. M. Jones. The funeral services are arranged to be held this afternoon at the Haw Creek Methodist church, of which she was a member.

Farmers Break Blue Law.

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 13.—Staid New England communities are slowly recovering from surprise occasioned by the action of hundreds of shrewd-going Connecticut valley farmers who, fearing frost, harvested tobacco Sunday from dawn to dusk.

"I regret that so-called Christians," said one clergyman today, "returned to their homes clutching their Bibles in one hand and a dog's wagging tail in the other."

"I didn't believe God wanted me to take a chance on the frost and acted accordingly," is a farmer's explanation of the unwonted Sabbath activity.

Catch Shark by the Nose.

Narragansett Pier, Sept. 13.—A Point Judith fisherman said that a 26-foot blue shark poked his nose into a fishing net near Indian Rock and he's fast there until captured. The shark was killed after some difficulty and was towed to Newport.

Several days ago a seven-foot blue shark which tipped the scales at 250 pounds was captured in the bay here by a local fisherman, who also captured a good-sized bluefish. Both of these trophies were towed into the south pier dock at Narragansett.
