PATENT MINE DOOR

Invention of Fred C. Todd to Be Manufactured and Sold by Mr. Swift.

Mr. Swift of Oklahoma has recently closed a contract with Fred C. Todd of this city, to manufacture and sell the patent automatic mine door, which Mr. Todd invented some time ago, and the model of which has been exhibited in the window of the Southern Coal company's office on Pack square. The door has recently been improved so that it will now work on a curved track, which is an advantage not possessed by other doors of this character, it is said.

Mr. Todd has a letter from the Mosshannon Coal-Mining company of Osceola Mills, Pa., where one of his doors has been installed, saying that it has given entire satisfaction and has paid for itself many times in the time saved, by rendering unnecessary the services of trapper boys.

TRUSTS' HEAD IS INDICTED

(Continued From Page One.) The governor replied it was not the duty of his office to supply evidence. Meanwhile the attorney general consulted with several shoe men, but Governor Foss again urged the legislature to take action, accompanying a second message with a letter from the president of a large Massachusetts shoe manufacturing company relating conditions in the industry.

A state hearing on the matter followed and Representative Bogus from the big shoe center of Lynn introduced a bill in the house of representatives providing for a recess committee to begin a probe in Massachusetts.

At the hearing Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, who has assisted the government in some of its trust cases, presented a bill, drawn up, he said, for Attorney General Swift, which provided for drastic regulations, prohibition of royalties and leases, with prison penalties for the violation.

President Charles H. Jones, president of a large shoe company, in reading the bill at a hearing declared that if it was enacted into law it would mean the saving of five cents on each pair of shoes manufactured. At the hearing Charles S. Choate, an attorney, declared that the United Shoe Machinery company had been doing everything in its power to aid the government agents in their investigation.

The order providing for the recess investigation was killed in the house, on the ground that the government was already conducting an investigation against the Shoe Machine company.

A Marine Band.

The affection of Washington for the United States Marine band, which appears at the Auditorium September 29, is said to be as historic as Washington itself. The bond between the old organization and the capital city grew firm in the days when they contributed the only safety Washington knew, away back during the administration of John Adams. Year by year the band added its splendid music to the life of the capital at every function of importance, until it is considered "impossible to give any affair without the band."

THE MYSTERY MORE BAFFLING

(Continued from page 1) indicates that the body was placed in the lake before Saturday night. Statement by Mrs. Hawkins. It is understood that the detective, Mr. Bradford, has secured a written statement of some sort from Mrs. Hawkins, mother of the dead girl. It is hardly to be doubted that this will throw light upon the case, but at this time the only question is as to when the nature of the statement will be divulged.

MOST PITEOUS SCREAMS SHE HAD EVER HEARD SAYS MRS. R. WRIGHT

Hendersonville, Sept. 19.—It is learned that revelations that will indeed be of a startling nature, indicating an aspect of the Myrtle Hawkins tragedy hitherto but little considered, or if ever considered lost to sight in the vast mass of speculation along different lines, will be made. It will almost certainly be revealed that a man was conversant in the culminating events of Myrtle Hawkins' life, whatever those events may have been, in its final hours.

When the inquest was resumed Coroner Kirk made a statement regarding a lot of the newspapers; some, he said, had been very unfair to the officers of the law, and had printed false statements about them, and if they did not return in this particular they would be excluded from the hearings. This, he said, did not apply to all the papers.

MRS. WRIGHT'S TESTIMONY.

Mrs. Rebekah Wright was the first witness called. She was interrogated by W. C. Rector. She said that she lives near Osceola lake. On Wednesday night, a week ago, she said, she heard the most piteous screams of a woman that she ever heard in her life. This was between 10 and 11 o'clock. The sounds came across the lake. This would have been in the general direction of the barn belonging to Dan McCall, where Robert Waddell said he saw a peculiar, intensely disagreeable odor, and where he testified to having found sacks that appeared, as if a body had laid on them. Questioned by Mr. Rector whether she was sure this was Wednesday evening, she said she was, because her children went to prayer meeting that night, and prayer meeting is always held on Wednesdays.

A week ago Saturday, the day before the body of Myrtle was found floating in the lake, Mrs. Wright said her little daughter found the little clock in the spillway of the lake, which afterwards proved to be Myrtle Hawkins'. It had stopped, with the hands at 9:30.

Miss Mary Granger, the next witness, said she lives a mile and a half from Hendersonville. She saw Myrtle walking by her house Thursday afternoon. This was between 4 and 5 o'clock. She was accompanied by a young man, whom Miss Granger did not know. She was positive this was Thursday afternoon.

The evidence that will show the connection of a man with the case, in a manner hitherto no more than suggested, was disclosed in the autopsy.

Other Witnesses.

Miss Rose Sunofski said she saw Myrtle Hawkins Thursday afternoon before her death, walking on the Bradley road with a man who resembled George Bradley. She had seen them pass in the same direction once or twice within the past five or six weeks. Miss Sunofski's home is on South Main street, and the couple were walking toward Myrtle's home. She is positive that it was Myrtle. Miss Maggie Brock, who lives on the outskirts of the town, saw Myrtle going toward home alone Tuesday evening. She had heard her talking to a Miss Thomas, whom she told that George Bradley's wife had treated her (Myrtle) coldly. She saw Myrtle and Bradley, together, pass several times in the past six weeks.

Mrs. Dan McCall said she had no recollection Saturday before the discovery of the body. She went to church Sunday and did not hear of the finding of the body until afternoon. Myrtle had often visited at her house, but only once in the past six weeks. Was at home Wednesday evening and slept as usual that night. Thursday night Bob Waddell was not in the house at 11 o'clock. She had no idea what time he came in. Her husband came in about 11. She was at home Friday, went to church Friday night, returning about 12. Her husband was at home Saturday night. Waddell was not. Heard of Myrtle's disappearance Thursday, but no more of it until Saturday. Myrtle was often at Ab. McCall's; there Wednesday but not Thursday. Was not familiar with every movement of Ab and Bradley.

She had heard no conversation that night to throw light on the case. No sacks had been taken from the new barn to the old. She had noticed no unusual odor. Visits the old barn daily; went into the loft Friday, found nothing unusual. Did not tell Waddell not to feed the stock Wednesday.

Andrew Finley said he saw Myrtle Thursday shortly before noon going in direction of lake and McCall's house. She was riding a bicycle.

E. L. Anders saw Myrtle with a man, going toward the lake one day in the early part of the week. Was not certain what day. Lucy Wright told of finding Myrtle's watch in the dry spillway Saturday.

John Cox had seen Myrtle and Bradley walking and riding together three or four times in past six weeks.

Wallace Reddin met Myrtle alone on the lake road about 4 p. m. Wednesday. He saw George Bradley with a small woman near the lake about sunset Thursday. He did not know the woman. He knew Myrtle Hawkins. Bradley and the woman were talking earnestly, but he could not hear what they said. The woman was bareheaded. He met Miss Hawkins on the road the day before.
