'POLLY OF THE CIRCUS' WAS WELL PRESENTED

The Fine and Wholesome Drama Played by an Excellent Company.

Miss Ida St. Leon, as "Polly," in "Polly of the Circus" captured the hearts of the two large audiences that witnessed the matinee and night performances at the auditorium yesterday. Miss St. Leon carries the title role so well that one could be led to believe that it was she, and not Margaret Mason, who created the part. She is a winsome little lady, and her acting is without a flaw. It is hard to conceive of anyone better portraying the stages of evolution in conversation and knowledge of things, outside the circus, from a riding girl to a minister's wife, better than she. Her acting comes with such a natural grace and her manner is one of such unalloyed innocence that she touched the hearts of everyone hearing her. Joseph Harris as "John Donahoe," the minister, is a good man for the part and presented the character of the broad-minded parson in a most commendable way. The received reputation of Miss St. Leon, as a dramatic actress, is well known to the patrons of the theatre. Her performance in "Polly" was very touching and handled most admirably. The circus scenes were probably the best and were true portrayals of circus life. The final tableaux of the circus leaving town was a fitting finale to this most excellent show.

The scenes were all well staged and this added greatly to the strength of the show. The auditorium was to the person's home, upon the occasion of his first talk with "Polly" was very touching and handled most admirably. The circus scenes were probably the best and were true portrayals of circus life. The final tableaux of the circus leaving town was a fitting finale to this most excellent show.

NEGRO BOUND TO COURT UNDER SERIOUS CHARGE

Corpening Goldsmith Tried for Entering the Residence of George Pelales.

A case which proved to be of a serious nature, after the trial had progressed a little way, was that against Corpening Goldsmith, called in police court this morning. The original charge against Goldsmith, who is a young colored man, was house breaking, it being alleged that he was found in the residence of George Pelales by Mrs. Pelales. The charge was changed to first degree burglary after the hearing of the state's witnesses, and no further testimony was heard, as Judge Adams ruled that there was probable cause and he would leave it to a jury to decide. The man was held without bail, as the crime charged is a capital one.

Mrs. Pelales testified that she had gone to visit a neighbor Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock, and returned about a half hour later. She then prepared supper and shortly afterwards prepared to go to bed when she found a man under the bed. She swore that Goldsmith was the man.

It was further in evidence that the latter was seen near the house a short while before and that he inquired if Mr. Pelales was at home. At this stage of the proceedings the court decided that there was probable cause and that it was unnecessary to hear the defendant's witnesses, as a jury would have to pass on the matter anyway. The defendant was therefore held for the October term of criminal court without bail.
