

Affairs in Mexico

Mexico City, Oct. 16.—Tax officials of Mexico are inclined to think that the national treasury has been drained of a considerable amount of money, but just now there appears no means whatever of knowing, for scores of little fires have consumed the evidence. Acting upon telegraphic instructions, government dispensers of revenue stamps in all parts of the republic destroyed to the last little lithograph all their old stock, only to discover that the order was a forgery.

It is the custom of the tax department to call in every two years what remains of an old issue, sending new stamps in return for those turned in. In the present instance the reports of the officials of their compliance with the order was the first intimation received at the capital of what had been done. An investigation was hastily made and developed the fact that a telegraphic circular, bearing what appeared to be the proper official seal, had been submitted to the telegraph company for transmission. Now the government's secret service agents are evolving theories and seeking clues as to the identity of the criminal or joker.

The popular theory is that one or possibly a number of stamp distributors created and carried out the deception. In order to cover a shortage, the police pointing out that a man might easily report that he had burned—upon instruction—$1000 worth of stamps and received credit for that amount, when in reality he had consigned not more than $100 worth to the flames.

Under American management, the capital's big racing plant, inaugurated last year and scene of the first Mexican Derby, will be operated this winter along American lines. The plant has been leased from the Jockey club, Mexico's most fashionable and exclusive organization, by Matt J. Winn, an American, and his associates. The local track, widely known as the Condasa track, was the realization of a dream of many years on the part of that organization, although members of that organization are for the most part not racing men, despite the name of their club. To that fact is attributed their failure to make racing a success. Under the new arrangement the club will yet have an advisory interest in the track, but the active management will lie with the Americans. It is proposed to open the track during the latter part of October, racing on three days a week, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

Mexico soon will be represented in the consular service by none but Mexican citizens. Some two months ago the state department issued a circular stating that the custom of permitting minor consular posts to be filled by foreigners would be discontinued, but adding that a vacation would be granted all such incumbents if they cared to come to the capital and take out papers of naturalization. A number availed themselves of the offer.

many being here now, waiting for the necessary time to elapse when they can return to their posts as Mexican citizens.

To determine some of the resources the government has in Lower California, the Geologic Institute has named, with the consent of the department of fomento, a commission to visit the peninsula and make a minute survey. Only in rather vague way is the government familiar with this portion of the national territory. One of the cherished plans of the new regime is to secure the colonization of Lower California, and the government wishes the information the commission is expected to procure, in order to place it at the disposal of prospective settlers.

Governor Rivero of the federal district has sent a message to the department of justice, requesting that all haste possible be used in the proceedings relating to prisoners in Belem, the big local jail, who are now under sentence of death. He explains that the jail is too crowded and that the cells these men occupy are needed for others. Plans have been made and accepted for a new jail, but realizing that it will be a long time before the historic and notorious prison Belem can be abandoned, the governor has urged that it be enlarged and remodelled in order to make better sanitation possible and to afford more room. The average number of prisoners confined there is about 3500.

HENRY D. LAW

Father of J. H. Law Died Yesterday at Mission Hospital—Was Resident of Winston-Salem.

Henry D. Law of Winston-Salem died yesterday morning at 7:30 o'clock at the Mission hospital, where he had been quite ill for 10 days. He was taken sick a few days before he was removed to the hospital, having been in the city on a visit to his son, J. H. Law, for some time.

Mr. Law was 83 years old, was born in Dublin, Ireland, and came with his parents to this country when he was eight years old. He had lived in Winston-Salem for the past 20 years. His son, J. H. Law, is a resident of Asheville and the deceased had visited him every summer for a good many years and during that time had formed numbers of warm friendships. His death came as a shock to these old friends.

The funeral services will be conducted this afternoon from Trinity church at 4:30 o'clock. Rev. H. Fields Saumeng and Rev. A. H. Stubbs will conduct the services and the vestry of the church will act as pallbearers.

GASCARETS FOR A SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Gently but Thoroughly Cleanse and Regulate Your Stomach, Liver and Bowels While You Sleep.

That awful soreness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means indigestion; a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they cure indigestion, because they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended forever. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

WALSH, PAROLED BANKER, OUT OF "HIGH FINANCE"

Chicago, Oct. 16.—John R. Walsh, ex-banker and former head of a score of railroad enterprises in this vicinity, who was paroled Saturday from the Fort Leavenworth federal prison after serving part of a term of imprisonment, following conviction of the infraction of national banking laws, spent Sunday at his home here and last night he outlined his plans for the future.

The course he has mapped out does not comprise plans for another fight for financial prominence; it does not contemplate any campaign for supremacy in the coal business of the middle west, as had been reported, and does not embrace a scheme for a recovery of the position Walsh once held in the business world of Chicago.

"I do not contemplate any sensational financial fight; I do not apprehend my entry to the business world again will be a matter of apprehension or anxiety to those now engaged in business," he said. "I have quit fighting."

"All I want to do now is to get a little rest at home, get a new line on the tangled threads of the business enterprises I am interested in since the adjustment of the clearing house note and get those enterprises in what shape I can. After things have been straightened out, I do not know just what I shall do. Certainly I shall not make any attempt, as has been reported to become the 'coal king of the west.' I take it the coal 'dynasty' is rather complete as it is.

"I simply am going to straighten out my affairs as well as I can, and after that will engage in such enterprises as present opportunities. I haven't another 30 years to spare in going in for another struggle for financial prominence."

The former banker arrived in Chicago from Kansas City and went directly home, where he was welcomed by his wife and the families of his children. The day was spent quietly at home, where several of his friends visited him.

TRADITIONS IN MARRIAGE.

Novelist's Wife Writes Her Ideas on the Divorce Problem.

Meta Fuller Sinclair, in the World Today.

Children are far more sensitive to the attitudes of their elders than the latter often realize, and a discordant marriage must in the end influence the child perniciously, even though the immediate result is not always evident. So those uncongenial couples who remain together merely for the sake of their children are accomplishing a very uncertain result, and those who feel that it is society that they are serving thereby will usually find that they are very deficient in services rendered either to society or to themselves.

Having duly listened to the hue and cry that is always raised when any established institution is attacked, one wonders if, perhaps, the hubbub is not an attempt to drown the wee small voice of truth and to distract attention from those who suffer through the inadequacies of the old regime, so that the lazy and complacent ones may continue undisturbed in their established positions. One also wonders if it is really the altruistic impulse after all that causes us to uphold traditions that no longer apply to the existent facts and to close our eyes to the actual conditions growing out of those facts.

We talk a lot about individual initiative, the family, and social service, and yet do we make any effort to find out what is our real duty to ourselves, our children, and society—according to the growing need as it actually exists, and not according to the precedent which no longer applies to the need? Are we not more dominated by the fear of what society will do to us than by the desire to do something for the benefit of society? And so we are continually trying to fit our impulses and our ideals into the forms already established, forgetful of the fact that human nature is in a continual state of flux and evolutionary development and that institutions were made for society, and not society for institutions. If we continue to tolerate this attitude of expediency, we will resemble somewhat the Maoris of the south seas who, finding in their possession an assortment of shoes, cut off their toes to fit them, instead of seeking out the sizes that might be adapted to their feet.

WHEN THE STOMACH STOPS Working Properly, Because There is Wind in It, Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to Set it Going Again.

A Trial Package Free.

The doctors call it flatulency, but unprofessional folks know it as "wind on the stomach," and a most distressing state of things it is. It is a serious condition of this great motor organ. Always annoying and painful in the extreme, at times often leading to the most fatal results. The stomach embarrassed and hampered with wind cannot take care of its food properly and indigestion follows, and this has a train too appalling to enumerate. The entire system is implicated—made an active or passive factor in this trouble and life soon becomes a questionable boon.

All this is explained in doctor books; how undigested food causes gases by fermentation and fermentation in which process some essential fluids are destroyed—burnt up—wasted by chemical action, followed by defective nutrition and the distribution through the alimentary tract of chemically wrong elements and as a consequence the stomach and entire system is starved. Plenty of food, you see, but spoilt in preparation and worse than worthless.

A deranged stomach is the epitome of evil; nothing too bad to emanate from it, but the gas it generates is probably its worst primary effect and the only way to do away with this is to remove the cause. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets go to the root of this trouble. They attack the gas-making foods and render them harmless. Flatulency or wind on the stomach simply cannot exist where these powerful and wonderworking little tablets are in evidence.

They were made for this very purpose to attack gas-making foods and convert them into proper nutriment. This is their province and office. A whole book could be written about them and then not all told that might be told with profit to sufferers from this painful disease, dyspepsia. It would mention the years of patient and expensive experiment in effort to arrive at this result—of failures innumerable and at last success. It would make mention of the different stomach correctives that enter into this tablet and make it faithfully represent all.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not alone intended for the sick, but well folks as well; for the person who craves hearty foods and wants to eat heartily and run no risk of bad effects, they act like a charm and make eating and digestion a delight and pleasure. They keep the stomach active and energetic and able and willing to do extra work without special labor or effort. Don't forget this. Well people are often neglected, but the Stuart Dyspepsia Tablets have them in mind.

A free trial package will be sent any one who wants to know just what they are, how they look and taste, before beginning treatment with them. After this go to the drug store for them; everywhere, here or at home, they are 50 cents a box and by getting them at home you will save time and postage. Your doctor will prescribe them; they say there are 40,000 doctors using them, but when you know what is the matter with yourself, why go to the expense of a prescription? For free trial package address F. A. Stuart Co., 150, Stuart Building, Marshall, Michigan.

New Streets for New York.

New York Herald.

Stating that it is waste of money for the city to keep on patching pavements and that it would be economy in the end to rebuild 200 miles of old and worn out streets, George McAneny, borough president of Manhattan, asked that the board of estimate set aside $4,500,000 for that purpose, and carry the work to completion as fast as possible.

While it would not be practicable to spend the entire appropriation in the next year, Mr. McAneny estimates that a maximum of $4,500,000 should be allowed for immediate use, and the borough officials permitted to do all the work that can be accomplished without waste.
