Interesting Home Wedding This Evening

One of the principal events of Asheville's social season will be the wedding this evening of Miss Adelaide Loughran, one of the city's most charming and popular members of the younger set, to James Gill of New York. The wedding will be a quiet home affair and the ceremony will be attended only by the families and a very few close friends of the contracting parties. A large wedding reception will be held at 8:20 o'clock, following the ceremony, and later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Gill will leave for an extended wedding trip. The points to be visited on the trip, however, have not been named by the young people, even to their closest friends. They will reside in New York. Father Marjion of St. Lawrence Catholic church will officiate at the wedding this evening.

Lee—Auld.
A wedding of interest of a number of Asheville people was that of Miss Katherine Lee of Knoxville to Frederick G. Auld of Columbia, which took place last Monday evening at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Gen. and Mrs. John T. Wilder, in Knoxville. The wedding was one of the social events of the autumn in that city and great preparations were made for it. Mrs. Auld will be remembered here by a wide circle of friends, as she spent her childhood in this city and attended the Normal and Collegiate institute for two years. The groom is a prominent young man of Columbia, where they will reside.

Quite a number of the friends of Miss Adelaide Loughran were invited to attend a party given in her honor yesterday afternoon by Miss Sarah Jones at her home on Haywood street. Each guest presented to the guest of honor a piece of linen of some kind and a card was attached to each. All were collected in a large basket and Miss Loughran was asked to take them out separately and read the verse before exploring the contents of the parcel. A prize, an autograph album containing the names of those present, was offered for the best verse and was won by Miss Lorraine Oates. A most enjoyable afternoon was spent by those attending the party.

The Associated Charities is issuing a call to the people of the city to lend a helping hand in carrying on the work of the organization for the winter. The winter months are the hardest part of the year in which to care for the sick and needy, and wearing apparel of all kinds is needed to help keep warm the poor of Asheville. It is a worthy work and deserves the consideration of everybody and a great deal more good can be accomplished if everybody will take a personal interest in it and give whatever they feel they can for the benefit of unfortunate people.

Miss Marie Brown will act as hostess of the Country club this afternoon and since there are no tournaments scheduled it is likely that she will find her time very much occupied by supplying the members who seek the club grounds, with tea. The weather does not indicate that there will be very much outdoor sport.

The Health and Honor club of the Y. W. C. A. met this afternoon at the Hamletta to be presented to Miss Florence Foster, the new physical director for the association.

LEADING DAIRY COUNTY IN STATE IS CATAWBA

Interesting Talk About His County by J. A. Gabriel, Farm Demonstrator.

J. A. Gabriel, the agricultural demonstrator for Catawba county, while attending the convention of the demonstrators here, had some interesting things to tell of the dairying industry in that county. He stated that Catawba is the leading dairy county in the state and now has some very fine herds of cattle.

He said that the people of the county went into the business gradually, influenced by the results obtained by some of the pioneers in the industry.

He related the experience of J. L. Shuford, one of the leading dairymen of the county, who now furnishes his butter to the State Normal college at Greensboro. Mr. Shuford started in the business, he said, with only a few cows and with very poor land. He soon realized that if he did any good he must get better stock, and he shortly began to weed the scrub out and introduce Jersey cows. Now, he said, Mr. Shuford has a herd of 40 or 50 cows that are not so surpassed as butter producers. To get rid of the skimmed milk, he began to raise fine Berkshire hogs and not long ago he sold a half interest in the increase of the stock for $5000. At the same time he has greatly increased the productiveness of his land.

MOUNTAIN AUTOMOBILE ROAD GIVEN PUBLICITY

Illustrated Articles in Two Trade Journals, on Mr. Grove's New 'Autoway.'

Two trade magazines have just published an article sent them by the board of trade about the automobile road to Sunset mountain built by E. W. Grove. These magazines are the Baltimore Manufacturers' Record, and the Tradesman, which is published in Chattanooga. In addition to the reading matter each carries four illustrations, showing different points of the road. These cuts are of "the intersection of autoway and carriage drive," "horseshoe curve, No. 1," and "horseshoe curve, No. 4, near the summit." The views in the Record take up a half page, and in the Tradesman about a quarter of a page.

The article calls attention to the fact that the autoway is an exclusive automobile road; that it is nearly all below three per cent grade, with no grade higher than five per cent; and that the entire surface is laid with Macadam. It is all written in a way to attract attention to this section and will no doubt draw tourists to Asheville. Besides the road article, the Record has three-fourths of a page more concerning Asheville industries, written by H. C. Caldwell, a special correspondent, who was here last week. Mr. Caldwell writes at length, giving particulars about factories that are already established and that are now being projected. He also devotes two columns to Hendersonville and tells of the improvements that are going on there.

ATTACK ON STEEL IS NOT POLITICAL

President Denies Administration Is Influenced in Move by Ulterior Motives.

HAS NO ALTERNATIVE UNDER COURT'S RULING

President Determined That Decree Shall Be Enforced, He Says in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—In a speech here last night, which is regarded as having a direct bearing upon the government's latest trust prosecution against the United States Steel corporation, President Taft denied in vigorous language that the administration was being influenced by political motives.

"I would rather cut off my right hand," he exclaimed, "than to do anything to disturb the business of this country, especially with a motive of cultivating political success."

The president said he wanted it to be understood for all time that he intended to enforce the anti-trust law to the letter.

"Statements as to what I may be responsible for in bringing about business troubles, however regretful it may be that it is so, cannot turn me from the duty that lies straight before me," continued Mr. Taft.

He spoke to an immense throng in the First Regiment armory and his anti-trust declarations called out a storm of applause and cheering. There was no doubt as to what was in the president's mind when he said:

"I come to the subject of the trusts at a time when the matter is boiling."

Railroads Within the Law.
The president had declared he believed the railroads of the country had brought themselves within the law and were conscientiously trying to keep within it.

"I hope that at some not far distant time the same thing can be said of the great industrial combinations," he said. "Mere bigness of plant, mere bigness of company or corporation, does not constitute a violation of the law. It is the purpose to restrain trade, to suppress competition, and control prices that transgresses the statute and the Supreme court has decreed that these practices must end."

"Throughout my career I have conducted myself with the idea of promoting business and promoting prosperity. If there is anything that arouses disgust in me it is the calamity, however the man who attacks business and seeks to arouse prejudice against it. Prosperity we all need. We are all in the same boat."

It was here that the president declared that he would rather cut off his right hand than disturb business for political motives.

"But," he added, "we have a condition of lawlessness to deal with. We had it for twenty years. We have come on a grand combination in violation of the anti-trust law on the theory that it either could not or would be enforced."

No Discretion in Executive.
The Supreme court has held that this lawlessness must be stamped out.

COLD CAUSED WRECK

Mrs. Mitchell Has Weary Search for Relief—Physicians State No Hope for Recovery.

Morganton, N. C.—"My health had been a wreck for years," says Mrs. C. Mitchell of this city. "When I was 14 years old I commenced to suffer. I caught cold, and it went into a fever. I stayed in bed for weeks, and though I used all kinds of medicine, I got no relief, until I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui cured me. It is the best medicine I ever used. I cannot praise it enough. Then, some time ago, I was taken down again very bad. The doctors all said I could not live, and they gave me up. I used Cardui and was greatly relieved. Now, I am entirely well. Cardui is a good medicine and worth its weight in gold! I will keep it in my home all the time, as I do not want to be without it."

Do you wonder why Cardui is so popular, when it has cured so many sick and ailing women, after other medicines had failed? The reason is that it goes to the spot that needs attention and does the work that is required.

All women need Cardui, the woman's tonic—at times. When you do, will you try it? Please do.

the case of Gus Hammett vs. Southern railway, Lewis Trexler, John Baumberger and W. L. Crouch. The individual defendants are specified as employees of the road and are charged with neglect of duty. The action is one for damages in the sum of $20,000 for the loss of the defendant's legs on the Asheville yards of the Southern railway.

The complaint alleges that the plaintiff was knocked down and dragged about 20 feet by a backing engine that carried no lights, and that Hammett was not warned of its approach by any signals. The loss of both the plaintiff's legs was the result of the accident. A judgment of non-suit was entered at the Jury term of Superior court here and the appeal is taken from this judgment. The arguments in the case will probably be heard before the Supreme court about December 4.
