TONIGHT!—"The Bohemian Girl"
Thursday, Nov. 28—"The Girl of the Golden West," Matinee and Night.
Monday, Dec. 4—"Miss Nobody from Starland."

"The Bohemian Girl," "The Bohemian Girl," which comes to the Auditorium tonight, received the following criticism from the Jacksonville Metropolis of November 23: The Aborn Opera company in his own with any of the faunts that come here, while the lady is a singer that looks and sings well at all times. The two Etelvions are a pair of a good ring performers as any one would want to see and their act seems to please those who have seen it. Their work shows long and tedious training, and while it is one that is good for the health of those who do it, the writer prefers his health and digestion to come from some other source.

"The Girl of the Golden West," which plays a matinee and night engagement at the Auditorium Thanksgiving day, November 30, received the following criticism from "The Reading (Pa.) Tribune of November 13: Two performances of "The Girl of the Golden West," by Henry W. Savare's English Grand Opera company, at the Academy of Music Saturday afternoon and evening, brought two large audiences and gave Reading a

BLANCHE MORRISON, SOPRANO, With the Aborn Opera Company, in the Revival of "The Bohemian Girl," at the Auditorium, Tuesday Night, November 28.

Balf's great opera, "The Bohemian Girl," entertained a large and well-pleased audience at the Duval theater last night. With an excellent company of principals and a chorus of more than usual excellence with companies of the sort, the opera is well sung. Elaborate scenic features and a number of novelties are introduced and very successfully break what to the less musically inclined is sometimes monotonous.

But the spectacular features including the use of horses in several scenes, other animals and a real Arab troupe in the fair scene of the second act, do not mar the beauty of the music. On the other hand they lend local color to the opera that rather enhances the realism of this production.

The old favorite numbers—"The Heart Bowed Down," "Then You'll Remember Me," and "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls," were heartily received by the audience.

Miss Anna Hull, in the role of Arline, has a sweet soprano voice well-suited to the role and with enough volume to amply lead the entire company. Her tones were clear and her words well enunciated, something rather unusual in an opera singer. What she is a beautiful young woman and fitted well the role both as the gypsy lass and as the gorgeously dressed daughter of the governor.

John R. Phillips, as Thaddeus, repeats his success in "The Chocolate Soldier" of that year. His rendition of "Then You'll remember Me," called for several encores.

Harry Luckstone, as Count Arnhem has a full baritone and in "Heart Bowed Down" showed a true musical schooling that pleased.

Hattie Bell Ladd, as Queen of the Gypsies, has a rich contralto, that fitted the role admirably.

All the other members of the company are well cast and the chorus carefully selected.

The introduction of ballet numbers, especially that from La Gioconda, "The Dance of the Hours," in the marble hall of the governor's palace, were pleasing and well rendered.

The acrobatic number of the Hassan Arabs, known as the Tzigani Whirlwinds, was, while not a real part of the opera, a splendid attraction in the fair scene of the second act. This troupe introduced for local color is capable of furnishing amusement on any program, be it vaudeville, circus, or even grand opera as a feature of the scenic equipment.

The settings of such acts are works of art and the production altogether suggest the lavishness of Henry W. Savare. The audience was seemingly well pleased with the musical excellence and with the scenic and other features.

Crawford and Capman, a couple of singers and dancers who will make any kind of an audience pay attention to what is going on, present an act that shows them to be as clever in their line as any act on that order that has been seen here in a long time. The man in the act can hold

WHAT DOES STEAM POWER COST YOU?
Are You Carrying a Big Friction Load?
Do you know what it costs? Find out how much power your machines actually use. The difference between that amount and the total for which you pay represents the losses in the engine and transmission system, which must always be in motion. Nearly all work is intermittent; machines are idle or not working their full capacity more than half of the time; this useless engine and transmission motion becomes expensive. In fact, of every 100 horsepower at the engine shaft, from 30 to 70 horsepower is wasted in transmission.
Now Compare This With Electric Drive.
Herein lies the chief argument for the economy of electric power from a central station. Not the saving in labor and sundries are large items. 251-21
