FABLE OWNED BY NAPOLEON ON EXHIBITION

THE HISTORIC JURTOUT DE TABLE

Notable among the numerous objects of art on exhibition in New York is a historic surrout de table in gilt bronze of the First Empire period. It was the property of Napoleon and passed into the possession of the late Duke of Cambridge, who caused English arms to be inserted in the corners of the pedestal in the place of Bonaparte's insignia. It was purchased at a sale of the Duke's effects by an American.
