SPECIAL PRICE OFFER AT PRINCESS THEATER

Special prices will be given at the Princess theater all this week between the hours of 11 a. m. and 6 p. m. A feature of today's program is the singing of Tom Sanders, the lyric tenor and the "Frisco Trio." The following pictures are on today and tonight:

Bell of Penance.
Henry Fitch, a young American, arrives in Spanish California in the year 1820, but hardly arrived when it was his good fortune to rescue two young ladies from a band of ruffians. Refusing to pose as a hero he goes on his way and presents a letter of introduction to Joaquin Carrillo, and much to his surprise again meets the young ladies he had so recently protected. "He is much impressed with the younger one, Donna Josefa, and as time goes on presses his suit, which is encouraged by the Spanish don. The young American is not to have a free field in his love adventure is soon demonstrated. Junipero Serra, a Spaniard of means, is also enamored of the fair Josefa. Serra learning that Donna Josefa is about to marry the American, attempts to prevent the ceremony by underhand methods. His schemes are frustrated and the sweethearts elope and are married.

"A year later Fitch and Josefa return to Josefa's home, where upon Serra's instigation Fitch is arrested and tried for violation of the laws of the church and territory, and condemned to imprisonment and banishment, unless he will produce penance and reparation that can be noticed through the whole of the Pueblo. The Good Father Vincent suggests to Josefa that Fitch secure a bell to place in the empty tower of the church, as the original one had been stolen many years before. A month later Fitch stands before the three judges. A sudden commotion goes through the whole court; everyone is listening to an unexpected sound. The bell that was silent now rings again. Young Fitch, addressing the court, says: "This is my penance and reparation, which I offer to the church. His voice can be heard and noticed throughout the Pueblo, and will, in time to come, proclaim the wisdom and clemency of this court."

Paid in Own Coin.
"Marguerite Moreland goes for a drive in her runabout. On her way she has to cross a railroad track; the gate is open and the train rushes by, destroying the machine and injuring the young lady.

"When the young lady is able to get around with the aid of a crutch, her father engages the services of Herbert Hammersly, a young lawyer, and in the association he loses his heart. A suit for heavy damages is instituted and the railroad attorney pretends to assist the plaintiff. He invites her to automobile rides and dances, which she is ill-fitted for, but she consents, thinking it will please him and assist her case. At the trial the lawyer shows his hand and brings witnesses to testify that the girl could not be much injured when she can enjoy the atmosphere of the ballroom.

"The case is lost and finally the young lady is restored to health by the aid of a famous surgeon, who performs an operation. The association between Hammersly and his client develops into a strong and beautiful love. After Marguerite is fully restored her beauty attracts the attention of the treacherous lawyer, and he falls madly in love with the girl he has tricked. She permits him to offer her moderate attention, until he can no longer control himself and he proposes to her. Herein is her reproof; she refuses him and scorns him and has the satisfaction of seeing him retire broken-hearted."

Cardinal Woolsey.
"King Henry the VIII is giving audience to his courtiers, surrounded by his chief advisers, including Cardinal Woolsey. Among the guests who attend this impressive reception is the Anne Boleyn, one of the young ladies-in-waiting to the queen, displacing the estimable and admirable Catherine. He confides his desire to call a special council, by order of the king, through which he divorces himself from Queen Catherine.

"In punishment for his refusal to accede to the king's wishes, the cardinal is exiled to Leicester abbey. He is a sick man when he enters the monastery, and he dies three days afterward, conscious that he had sustained the sacredness of his office, a martyr to his faith and of service to his king."

Panama Isthmus, 1912.
"In this film, which was taken under the auspices of the United States government, the auditor is taken on an intimate inside trip across the entire canal zone. The first scenes show the Pedro Miguel locks and the whole process of building these gigantic walls and gates of concrete and steel. We are shown huge cranes carrying sand, rock and cement to the mixers. Then the carrying to and dumping of the cement upon the locks. Miraflores locks, the top of the gates at Gatun, the huge conveyors and cranes at Gatun, and an interesting panorama of Gatun lake and locks gives us a thorough understanding of this phase of the great project. Then we are taken to the Culebra cut region, where we follow the work as the program rapidly under the perfect system directed by the most skilled U. S. A. engineers. The drills, steam shovels, spreaders, trains, dumpers, etc., are all shown and we leave Culebra after viewing an interesting panorama of the entire cut. We are now taken to Panama City, on the Pacific coast, and after viewing the track shifter and its almost human functions, we can indeed say that we have seen the canal zone and its vast work under better conditions than most of those who travel to the zone in person."

Two Cars Parked Last Night for Accommodation of the Old Soldiers.

The special train bearing the Confederate veterans of this section to the annual reunion in Macon, left the city this morning at 7:30 o'clock, accompanied by District Passenger Agent J. H. Wood. The train will reach Macon at 8:30 o'clock tonight. There was quite a large number of the veterans aboard when the train pulled out from Asheville and they all seemed happy at the thought of an outing and a chance to revive some old time memories of the days of '61-'65.

Two coaches of the train were parked on the yards here last night so that any who wished might spend the night there, and this courtesy of the railway was taken advantage of by a good many of the old soldiers. They assembled at the coaches early and a few hours were spent in story and song before they prepared for a little rest before the long trip today.

THE MARKETS

New York, May 6.—Aente weakness was shown in the stock market's opening prices today. The general tendency was downward.

Further recessions were recorded in the first hour.

United States Steel was apparently singled out by the short interests and was steadily offered down to 65 1/2, a loss of 3 5/8 points from Saturday. The low level on the early trading resulted in a complete loss of a majority of the gains made during the rise of the past six weeks. A feeble rally in the second hour was followed by renewed offering of United States steel in blocks of 1000 shares at further loss. Some improvement was noted in the noon hour, market leaders holding better. Selling pressure showed signs of relaxing generally.

Cotton Advances; Market Nervous.
New York, May 6.—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 15 to 19 points and before the first hour ended sold 22 to 25 points higher or nearly half a cent above last week's low level on active general covering and bull support. The tone was nervous.

Trading was rather less active late in the forenoon and the market ruled 4 or 5 points off from the best.
