An area of high pressure which overlies the northeastern portion of the country has caused cooler weather in the north Atlantic states while in the rear of this area the temperature is somewhat higher. ness. He spent about a week in various sections of those counties, most of the time being spent in Henderson. He was accompanied by Charles W. Mason of the land and industrial department of the Southern railway. They visited Hendersonville, Fletcher, Horsehoe, Dana, and Brevard, and Mr. Flannery stated that they found the farmers to be very willing to entertain any suggestions that they thought might prove valuable in advancing the business. The primary object of the trip was to induce the farmers to build silos, to keep better cows and to use better methods in dairying. They had many personal talks with the farmers and investigated the possibilities, which, Mr. Flannery stated, are very favorable in this section for this industry.
Mr. Flannery said that Curtis Byrum has just completed the rebuilding of his creamery, which burned down some time ago at Fletcher, and that his business increased during the past month by about one-fourth; that he will soon be able to handle all of the cream that may be shipped to him.
Mr. Flannery will spend several days around Asheville, after which he will go to Raleigh. He intends to return here, however, and make other trips in this section.
