provides that the judges within the various districts and that the judges of each of the districts shall hold the full term of court in 1913 in his own district, and thereafter they shall be in rotation according to the number of the districts.

The bill to be offered amending the existing laws regarding the summoning and selecting of jurors is a most interesting one. This provides that on or before July 1, 1913, the judges of the different courts appoint three jury commissioners for a period of two years and that these shall assume the duties heretofore held by county commissioners with regard to selecting jurors.

The bill further provides that 22 men shall be summoned at each term to serve as petit jurors and the same number as now for grand jurors. In case any of the petit jurors are absent or excused there is a provision whereby they may be immediately replaced, thus assuring a full panel all the time.

There is a provision made in this bill that whenever requested by either party to a civil or criminal action the sheriff shall make out a list of 20 jurors, numbering them, these to have been previously challenged by the judge in the usual manner, and a copy of these given to each side. Names of jurors will then be stricken from the list alternately until each side has stricken out four. No other peremptory challenge will be allowed.

list will be given to the two sides and names stricken therefrom alternately until the number is reduced to 10. These men shall then be summoned and shall receive pay whether they serve on the jury or not.

The proposed bill for expediting the trial of actions has for its principal point the placing of more authority in the clerks of the Superior courts, so that actions begun and not fully complying with the law may be thrown out without going into the court, and all actions in which no question of fact is raised may be decided by them.
