Tomorrow will be another big day for the Western North Carolina fair. During the day the Confederate veterans will be admitted to the grounds free of charge as they were during the afternoon of the opening day.

A big feature for tomorrow is the automobile parade and obstacle race in the afternoon. The parade will form up town and will proceed to the fair grounds. Reaching the grounds the obstacle races will take place immediately. There will be two events, the forward and the backward races. Moving obstacles will be placed in front of the competing machines. Three prizes will be given in each event.

Mrs. Gibson won with her orange marmalade; Mrs. Stephens' home made hard soap was a prize winner.

One of the best exhibits to be seen at the Western North Carolina fair is that of the Union Plumbing company in the Machinery building. This exhibit is a completely equipped bath room, with the most ingenious fittings imaginable. Everything is in white and is necessarily sanitary. The equipment is either made of enameled steel or enameled vitreous earth, and the fittings and pipes are nickel plated. The whole is connected with the city water, and there is a heating stove by which the bath tub and lavatory are provided with hot water. Over the tub is a shower arrangement with water falling continuously. In connection with the exhibit is a heating plant in working order. It took a great deal of trouble and no little money to perfect the exhibit.

FREE FOR ALL FIGHT AT RIVERSIDE PARK

A Number of Defendants Were in Court—The Cases Disposed of.

From evidence that came out in Police court this morning it seems that there was a free-for-all fight at Riverside park last night, where the Western North Carolina fair is being held. It was rather hard, however, to find out just who took part in the affray. There were a few unknown equations, or persons, rather, to be found out, and the policeman who quelled the riot were unable to recall all who took hands. One of the policemen, W. H. Watt, stopped a part of the scrap on his own person.

Miss Jones appeared to be in the spot light and the evidence brought out the fact that he made several effective passes at one, Clem Sawyer, also at Patrolman Wyatt. For the first offense he was fined $20 and the costs and for the second he was sentenced to a term of 30 days on the county roads. He appealed from both judgments and was held to Superior court under bonds of $100 and $150 respectively for the two cases.

Ben Morris, another participant, or bystander, was accused of assaulting some unknown person but was found not guilty. Sawyer, who received some of Jones' punches, was charged with a counter-assault on Jones and also with an assault on Ott. Brown but was found not guilty on both counts.

Annie Pickens was before the court charged with disorderly conduct, and upon conviction was sentenced to a term of 15 days in the county jail.

D. H. Sharp was fined $5 and the costs for interfering with a funeral procession.

The following were found guilty of being drunk in the city and fined accordingly: Frank Pressley, $2 and costs; Mack Young, $3 and costs; J. L. Robinson, $4 and costs; John Capps, continued.

Fred Wilkins was fined $1 and the costs for expectorating on the sidewalk.

SYRUP OF FIGS IS BEST FOR CHILD

Cleanses It's Little Stomach, Torpid Liver and Constipated Bowels.

Every mother immediately realizes after giving her child delicious Syrup of Figs that this is the ideal laxative and physic for the children. Nothing else regulates the little one's stomach, liver and bowels so promptly, besides its delectable taste.

If your child isn't feeling well; resting nicely; eating regularly and acting naturally it is a sure sign that its little insides need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or your little one has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, tongue coated; give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs and in a few hours all the foul, constipated, clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, it cannot be harmful.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little figure today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious, soothing, genuine reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

Memphis club of the Southern league and will be given a tryout in faster company. T. M. Duckett has just received through Secretary Ferrall of the national commission a check for $5000 draft prize for the class D league players. The Memphis league is in class A.

The average fan would no doubt have named two-thirds of the players before guessing that Waymack had been drafted. While he was considered a good pitcher here, he was so erratic and so generally unsteady that his work was not effective. At the same time he was very popular with the fans.

On the whole it is likely that the local management are just as glad to get $200 for Waymack as for any man on the team.

Some weeks ago Hart was drafted by the Toledo league, but he had been released according to agreement and could not be made to go unless he wished. There is little doubt that he will work with Asheville next year.

What a Boy With "No Chance" Can Do.

We have just been reading in a Northwestern farm paper about a boy—a smart man, money-caller, David David has recently taken charge of one of the largest dairy farms in the United States at a salary "the equivalent of $4000 a year when judged by its standards." It isn't this salary that makes his case remarkable, but he was worked up to it.

His family was poor. As a boy he herded cows for his father in the summer and went to school in the winter. At sixteen he took a notion to go to a business college and asked an older brother who had a college education and what David thought a good job to help him. But the brother also had some of his college debts to pay off, and he advised David to take the little money he had and study agriculture at the University of Wisconsin.

David did so, and by the end of his first term of fourteen weeks was so much in love with his work and had shown such aptitude that ex-Governor Board, who visited the college, hired him for the summer as a barn boy.

Remember that this boy was at this time working in the dairy barn to pay his way through college and that the job offered him was by no means a big one. He took it, however, and made good, steadily working his way from one position to another and studying the work he was doing all the time. It was hard work, and may it times have seemed slow; but the "business" of work consists mostly in one's attitude towards it and this young man's progress, to important positions and good pay was really rapid.

There is nothing especially remarkable about this story. David was, according to Governor Board, "a born 'taker and dairy farmer' and was evidently much in love with his work, but to see Mr. Board again he was 'a plain, practical, truthful farm boy. All he did to win this distinction was he exercise of those simple, old-fashioned qualities, which too many young men cast aside—honesty, faithfulness, and a vigilant care over the animals entrusted to him."

This took place in the North-west, but it might just as well have taken place in the South. David's story of success might be duplicated by many a southern boy who feels that he is handicapped because he has not the money to pay for a college course. The demand for men who really know agriculture, for capable dairymen, stockmen, horticulturists, farm managers in the south is steadily increasing, and better by far than any chance of employment by others—the opportunities for young men who have this training to begin in a small way and grow up into successful farmers are almost unlimited. And any boy who has energy, persistence and a real love of farm work can realize on these opportunities. The agricultural colleges of the south give even the poor boy a chance to get the fundamentals of agricultural education, and after he has a start, any ambitious boy can keep on adding to his store of knowledge and to his ability to do work. If only one of the four-week or six-week courses can be taken the next year, this will almost certainly give any boy who is a good student a chance to earn sufficient money before the next course begins to take it.

Every winter there should be hundreds of our farm boys—and of grown up farmers as well—taking these short courses in every southern state and as

RAKED THE LAWYERS.

A Cabarrus Woman Got Satisfaction But Lost Her Case.

The small crowd that happened to be in the court room late Saturday afternoon, just before court adjourned for the term, was vastly entertained and amused by the unusual spectacle of a woman pleading her own case. Mrs. M. A. Hinson of Concord was the lady in question. Mrs. Hinson was the wife, at the time of his death, of the late Hugh M. Ingram, who lived near Wadesboro. The land in question lies about two miles north of Wadesboro and belonged to Mr. Ingram at the time of his death. The land, after Mr. Ingram's death, was sold under foreclosure proceedings and some of it has changed hands several times.

Mrs. Hinson has been working on the case several years and during this time has consulted a number of lawyers. She and her lawyers could never agree long at a time, and she finally decided to cut loose from them entirely.

When the case came up for trial Saturday afternoon Mrs. Hinson announced that she was her own lawyer, as well as her own witness. Judge Peebles then told her that he thought she ought to have some assistance and as Mrs. Summers, the court stenographer, was the best lawyer in the room he would appoint her to assist in the conduct of the case. Mrs. Summers blushingly denied the soft impeachment but did help Mrs. Hinson every now and then.

During the progress of the case Mrs. Hinson, much to the amusement of the court and spectators, proceeded to rub it in on the lawyers she had employed, stating among other things that Mr. Hartsell of Concord was the only honest member of the profession she had ever had anything to do with. Her speech to the jury occupied about 20 minutes and was delivered with as much ease as if she had been a professional talker. The jury found in favor of Mrs. Hinson and the defendant did not introduce any testimony.—Wadesboro Messenger and Intelligencer.

Swimming Strokes.
One really fails to understand how so many can still look upon the tradition and crawl, our most modern racing strokes, as unfitted for any but trained athletes. They are no more difficult to master than the awkward and complicated breast stroke, they are far less tiring, and they enable one to plow the water more swiftly and even more comfortably. Why then should they be deemed beyond the ken of the average person?—Outing.

"HAIR THAT GIVES FATHER TIME THE LAUGH"

We are just about as old as we LOOK

People judge us, by the way we LOOK.

The man or woman with grey hair is beginning to get in the "Old Timer's Class."

This Twentieth Century does NOT want GREY hair—it wants the energy of Youth.

The big things are being done by the YOUNGER generation.

There's a sort of "Has Been" look about those "Grey Hairs." There is always one to criticize and smile scornfully.

Father Time is a stern disciplinarian. Get the best of him. Give him the laugh. Do not be a "Has Been." It's impossible. Use the HAIR-REAR-HEALTH.

It is not that you are old, but that you are not looking your age. The secret is in the hair. The hair is the life of the face. The hair is the life of the body. The hair is the life of the soul. The hair is the life of the world. The hair is the life of the universe. The hair is the life of everything.
