"The New Bohemian Girl."
 The big spectacular presentation of Raff's masterpiece, announced for next Monday, Nov. 11, at the Auditorium for a matinee and night performance, is the same massive production which the Aborn Opera company made at the Boston Opera house last September, and which proved one of the truly big successes of last season in Asheville, and is now announced as being "bigger, brighter and better than ever." This particular production has proved the crowning effort of the Messrs. Aborn's career as producers of grand opera in English. To the lovers of "music worth while" the melodious quality of Raff's score, which contains such gems as "I Dream I Dwelt in Marble Halls," "The Heart Bowed Down," "Then You'll Remember Me," etc., will ever hold its charm, but in the present spectacular form "The Bohemian Girl" takes on new life and makes a strong appeal to all classes, for in addition to the charm of its music, in their effort for realism, Messrs. Aborn now gives us some of the thrills of Melodrama, some of the best circus features ever witnessed outside of a tent, real gypsies, horses, acrobats, etc. Particular care has been given to the selection of the principal singers and the big chorus of this year's presentation. The matinee prices are from 50 cents to $1.50, and the night prices will range from 50 cents to $2. Ticket sale opens Friday morning.

"Louisiana Lou."
 The musical comedy that holds the season's record for the number of performances given, "Louisiana Lou," will be played for the first time in this city on next Tuesday, November 12, in the Auditorium. The musical comedy will be given here by a special cast under the management and under the guarantee of Harry Askin, the managing-director of the LaSalle Opera House company, which operates the La Salle Opera house, Chicago, and its traveling companies.

 "When that day comes," said Mr. Austin when he took possession of the La Salle, "that I cannot give on tour as good a show, at least, as I give in the La Salle, that day I will take my name down; for I should be ashamed to have one of my enterprises compared disadvantageously with another."

The Most.
 Before the days of artillery the moat was an effective means of defense, particularly when filled with water. In very large forts or castles it sometimes assumed the dimensions of a lake, being often 100 yards wide and ten to twenty feet deep. The moat was crossed by a drawbridge, which could be raised at an instant's notice. When the moat was too wide to permit of this bridge covering the entire distance a slight wooden bridge was employed.
