Made With Cottolene

Saratoga Chips made with Cottolene are never greasy, as are those made with lard. The reason for this is that Cottolene heats to about 100 degrees higher than either butter or lard, without burning, quickly forming a crisp coating which excludes the fat. Your Chips, therefore, are crisp, dry and appetizing.

Cottolene costs about the price of lard, and will go one-third farther than either butter or lard.

TRY THIS RECIPE: Peel the potatoes and slice thin into cold water. Drain well, and dry in a towel. Fry a few at a time in hot Cor-tolene. Salt as you take them out and lay them on a coarse brown paper for a short time.

"Then you admit?" I asked, smiling. "Candidly. There is no question. Yet I could have sworn yesterday that was attending Mr. Cameron. It is the most remarkable resemblance I have ever seen.'

I drew out a chair for him. "And how do you find the patient? I inquired, when he had sat down. "Quite normal in every respect save He is in a highly nervous state. He is endeavoring to maintain the fiction that he is the gentleman we supposed he was. He evidently learned his lesson from Mr. Bryan, before we suspected anything. It is really wonderful how well he does it, considering that he never saw the man he is trying to impersonate."

drew back the door, and he was push-ed forward into the room, instead of seeking, he imagined himself sought. and with bowed head and eyes on the floor, stood shrinkingly ill at ease.

To this misunderstanding is proba bly attributable all that followed. Had Evelyn asked him to be seated and Soy known that McNish was regarded, equally with himself, as an aggressor, he might have controlled his outbreak and permitted the law to wreak its tardy justice. But Soy did not know, and the tide of events met sudden change.

It is, indeed, scarcely conceivable, how rapidly it was all enacted. For fust a moment the weazened figure stood still, while behind him crowded the rest of us-the three detectives, the two Chinamen and myself.

I saw McNish struggle for an instant to maintain his pose of indifference, and then I saw his cheeks blanch, and his little eyes widen in craven terror as he recognized the shabby, silent thing before him. His lips parted, his bared teeth clicked together, and his hands, like talons, rancy that the merchant would at once clutched tensely his chair arms. In that strained moment the room was strangely hushed. I know scarcely breathed, as nervously intent I watched those two miserable creatures; the one keenly conscious, the other blind to everything save the rug pattern at his feet.

Then, like a flash, Soy stole a glance at his supposed accuser, and I saw him quiver into steel. It was as though an electric bolt had shot brough his shrinking frame and limp limbs. He seemed to grow out of him-self, to rise inches taller, towering with stiffened neck and lifted head. To describe with any degree of ac-
