THIS WHISKEY CASE HAS NEW FEATURES

Constable Jones Star Witness in Case Against Wiley P. Black.

Judge Adams in Police court now has the task thrust upon him of unravelling another whiskey case that is making a name for itself in Asheville in the past and probably has more sides for solution than any other. A few developments in the case came out this morning in the hearing against Wiley P. Black, charged with keeping more than two gallons of whiskey on hand for sale. Just enough evidence was taken today to make it interesting and the case will be concluded tomorrow morning.

Constable Mack Jones was the star witness this morning and it developed from his testimony that since last May six barrels of whiskey have come to Craggy station consigned to L. H. Revis; further than the mere arrival of the whiskey Mr. Jones testified to some rather interesting facts. It seems that as each barrel of the spirits arrived Wiley Black went before Justice of the Peace F. N. Waddell and made affidavit that Mayo Brothers of Cincinnati, from whom the whiskey was shipped, owed him a certain sum of money and he made application for claim and delivery papers on the barrels separately, naming the value of each at $75.

The papers were issued each time by Squire Waddell and turned over to Constable Jones who proceeded to Craggy with a dray and removed it to a barn in Woolsey owned by J. C. Moore, the key to which was furnished him after the whiskey was stored. There was no evidence that there has ever been any adjudication in any of the matters since the whiskey was sold.

It was at this point that the case was continued until tomorrow morning and the court instructed Mr. Jones to report some time during today or by 9 o'clock tomorrow morning the exact whereabouts of the six barrels of whiskey. Then a deputy sheriff and two policemen went to the barn in question and made a search which resulted in their finding one gallon of the spirits instead of six barrels, and besides this they also discovered 24 empty jugs and demijohns. Explanations from somewhere will therefore doubtless be expected at tomorrow morning's session of the court.

It might be of interest to the whole proceeding just here to state that in law a justice of the peace has no right to issue claim and delivery papers for goods exceeding in value $50 and so the whole proceedings before Squire Waddell are void since the affidavit distinctly state that the consignments were worth $75 and he had no jurisdiction in the matter. Squire Waddell will be one of the principal witnesses at the hearing tomorrow morning, when he will be asked fully about what disposition he has made of the case in the premises.

Constable Jones was asked rather pointedly this morning why he had not brought the whiskey into the city, where it would have been placed in the jurisdiction of the Police court, but he gave no reason for this action.

Other Police Court Cases. There were two cases docketed that promise to prove interesting if there are any grounds for the actions. Charles Hancy and Donner Shipman are charged in these cases with the larceny of $24 from E. C. Williams by holding him up on the public highway at the point of a gun, one man manipulating the gun and the other going through his pockets. The cases will probably turn on the identification of the two men by the victim, Mr. Williams. The cases went over for a day.

John Finger was on the docket charged with retailing to Susie Jones but when the case was called he failed to respond and a capias was issued for his arrest. The Jones woman was before the court the previous session for being drunk in the city and she made affidavit that she had bought the whiskey from Finger.

Willie Kyle was found guilty today of an assault with a chair on Mary Spears and was fined $10 and the costs.

Zeb Coche was taxed with a penalty of $4 and the costs for being drunk in the city.

The case against E. C. Taylor, charged with driving an automobile on the wrong side of a street car while it was discharging passengers, was continued.

In the case of Mrs. Nelson, who had been found guilty of disorderly conduct, a judgment of not prosequere with leave was entered.

FOUR AUCTIONEERS BUSY OUT AT JACKSON PARK

Throughout the day people have been coming and going to the Jackson park, where Robert R. Reynolds is developing a residence addition to the city and today is having the lots sold at auction. There are over 200 lots, and it is expected that the sale will continue until the late afternoon. It is a very busy place. Besides the numbers that are attending the sale there are crowds of laborers working on the streets which have been laid out through the property and in clearing up the lots. There is a brass band which helps to keep things lively; and a barbecue dinner was served just after noon to those attending. Four auctioneers are employed to cry the bids.

At 1 o'clock today not half of the lots had been sold, as the bidding on most of them was very lively. The bidders seemed to think that they were getting the lots at reasonable prices, although some of them had already brought as high as $150.

Among those who had purchased lots were Dr. H. B. Weaver, Frank Lindsey, Mrs. J. D. Bowers, W. P. Howard, Miss Mattie Stines, I. G. Sarason, G. L. Farnor, W. P. Abner, G. Stiklother, Mrs. Kate Mohler.

SUPERIOR COURT

Argument is heard in Oscar Sams vs. Charles F. Williams, Trustee, and W. H. Revis.

The entire morning session of Superior court for the trial of civil cases has been consumed in the hearing of the case of Oscar Sams vs. Charles F. Williams, trustee, and W. H. Revis, which was taken up yesterday afternoon. The evidence was finished this morning; the arguments will be this afternoon.

The plaintiff alleges that he bought a piece of land from the defendant Reeves, giving four notes for $200 each; that after he had paid nearly all of three of these notes the defendant Reeves refused to make an accounting and thereafter refused to accept payment for the balance of the notes; and had the trustee, the defendant Williams, to advertise the land for sale.
