VOCATIONAL EDUCATION THAT PAYS FOR ITSELF

Industrial Work in Gary School Was Worth More Than It Cost.

"Industrial work in the schools of Gary, Ind., made money instead of costing money during the past year," says Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education. "When the school authorities in Gary came to sum up the results of the work in the trade courses they found that the three departments of printing, cabinet work, and painting had in their credit a profit of $575.43. This is real value, too; the pupils made articles that were needed in the school; if they had not made them in the school shops the authorities would have had to purchase them in the open market at a total price of seven or eight thousand dollars."

The commissioner then gives the figures for each of the trade classes in the Gary schools, as reported by G. E. Williams, in charge of the industrial instruction. In the printing department the value of the work produced was $1872.32. The salary expense was $1442.45 and supplies cost $134.

TURKISH CAPITAL DURING THE WAR

Dr. Gates Writes Interestingly of Events Responsible for Turks' Defeat.

By Associated Press. New York, Jan. 2.—Scenes in and about Constantinople, and conditions resulting from the Balkan war are interestingly described in a letter addressed to the Associated Press by Dr. Caleb F. Gates, president of Robert college at the Turkish capital. The letter follows: "This has been a war of surprises to most people. The Turks themselves were among those most surprised. They had expended some 42 million pounds upon their army. They supposed that whatever else they had not done they had at least prepared an army, but that army has failed them. The principal reason seems to be lack of organization. The officers of the army were not in touch with their men. The committee of union and progress had gotten rid of the old officers, who had risen from the ranks and who knew their men, and substituted officers trained in the military schools of Turkey and Europe. Unfortunately these officers have been devoting too much time to politics and too little time to their work with the army. So they did not adequately know their men. Turkey at the opening of the war strained every nerve to bring her soldiers to the front. They came in by ships which passed down the Bosphorus every day, the soldiers cheering and the bands playing. The soldiers were put into cars and sent to the front, often without their officers. When they arrived at the station where they were to leave the railroad officers were in waiting who took them and placed them in their companies. All corps and division formations were lost. It was confusion. These soldiers went to the battle under bad conditions. They needed a month at least to train with their new officers and get to know one another and their leaders. Failure of Commissariat. Then the commissariat failed. It soon became evident to us here in Constantinople that the government was bringing in men much faster than food. They gave money to the soldiers and told them to go and buy food for themselves, but often they could not find food to buy, and many of the soldiers were suffering from hunger before they saw a battle or heard a gun. When fighting actually began all their difficulties were increased. It is painful to contemplate. Under these conditions the Turkish army ought never to have advanced beyond the line of Lule Burgaz. They should have taken up strong positions there, waited to get all their army together, trained their men and put them into sympathy with their officers. By this time all the world knows that the Bulgarian army did not pursue the Turks beyond Lule Burgaz. They waited nearly a week before they made their demonstration to try the strength of the Turkish army at that place. There has never been a pitched battle there, and now peace negotiations are going on. The Turk is not driven out of Europe, nor do I believe that he will be now. Constantinople will remain under the Turkish government, and a strip of territory the size of which will be determined by negotiations. While the newspapers have been filled with accounts of the condition of Constantinople, filled with refugees and soldiers driven back upon the city and while they have been describing scenes here "only rivaled by the scenes in Dante's Inferno," we have been living in Constantinople in peace and quietness. There has been no bloodshed here, and the government has maintained order with great firmness. We should remember that Kiamil Pasha's government took up the work after the committee of union and progress cabinet had been turned out, soon after the beginning of the war. And least that we can say about the committee of Union and progress is that its name is a misnomer for the committee stood neither for union nor for progress. No Serious Disorder. Kiamil Pasha's cabinet had a hard task. They inherited the war, the war was what the committee of union and progress had made it, and the country was filled with their disappointed in office. There has been no serious disorder in this city during the war. Robert college has not missed one day of lessons. The greatest danger was in the provinces. As of old, when any trouble arose in the Roman empire, they cried, "The Christians to the lions!" so in the Turkish empire the Christians have usually suffered when things went wrong. The Armenian patriarch and his council have been in great anxiety for their people in Adana, in the Bilis and Van Region, and in other parts, and they had reason to be anxious. We all shared their anxiety and do yet. But there has been no general massacre in the Asiatic provinces. There have been disorders and some lives have been lost, but nothing like what we feared had taken place, and we who know the country are sure that there would have been very serious massacres there had not the government exercised a strong control over the turbulent population. This war is saddening to all who love Turkey and the Turk. It has drawn upon our sympathies and has shocked us with its horrors, but there is a bright side which has not appeared in the newspapers, and that is the dignity, strength and wisdom of the government, struggling against tremendous difficulties to keep order and accomplish its task. There is one other thing I must speak of, though I find it difficult to write about it. When things were so congested that the government could not even feed its soldiers, it was not to be expected that the hospital service and the care of the wounded would be perfect. The hospitals that were organized in Constantinople at the outbreak of the war were well equipped, clean and ready for their work, but when the wounded filled these, and they had to provide more, they took barracks which were very dirty, and the people who had charge

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant. The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula. The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled. A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CHOLERA EPIDEMIC

There was lack of system in the reception of the wounded at the station where the trains came in from the front, and often they remained many hours without care, without water, suffering severely. But the worst scenes were perhaps at St. Stephano. This station is on the railroad between the Chataldja Lines and Constantinople. It became a sort of receiving station for the sick. Cholera prevailed, though I think much what was called cholera was not true cholera. Those sick men were taken off the train at St. Stephano in order not to bring contagion into the city, but pains were not taken to see that arrangements were made for caring for them. Sick men, wounded men lay around the ground without shelter. The dead were not buried. Often a sick man was found with his head pillowed upon a dead man. The sick were calling for water. It was a sickening scene, and many were afraid to help these sufferers from fear of contagion, and many knew nothing about the sad conditions prevailing there. The American Red Cross discovered this place, first through Mr. Hoffman Philip, first secretary of the American embassy. Mr. Philip, the Rev. Robert Frow, and Dr. Ford, with two Swiss ladies went there and set to work. They buried the dead; they cleaned up the place and disinfected it. They fed the sick and gave them drink. When they went there 150 died in 24 hours. After a week's work there was a day with no deaths.

PRINCE OF PILSEN

WINNER IN CHARLOTTE. "The Prince of Pilsen," which will come here Saturday for a night performance at the Auditorium, is being lauded in every city where it appears and each boost is stronger than the others. The latest appears in today's Charlotte Observer, the production has been shown in Charlotte last night and is given here in full. The rejuvenated "Prince of Pilsen" as presented here yesterday was one of the most enjoyable entertainments of the year. To resurrect a play after several years' reclining on the shelf and offer it again to the public on an elaborate scale was a daring thing to do, but thanks to publicity given its merit, the venture is winning hearty approval all along the line. Its revival may be regarded as a commentary on the scarcity of new plays or on managerial timidity (in view of photoplay inroads on the theatrical treasury) and reluctance to risk a fortune in fitting out a brand-new musical comedy one whose career would be a doubtful game. "The Prince of Pilsen" is a tuneful affair and partly because its music is familiar to the public it made a hit. One of its most beautiful numbers is "Heidelberg," sung by Arthur Hall the real prince, and a bevy of students. "The Message of Violets," by Miss Mary Murphy and Frederick Lyon, won repeated applause. Jess Dandy as Hans Wagner, the Cypriote, a natl brewer who is mistaken for the prince and takes kindly to the mistake, is execrably funny. Arthur Hall the prince, looks the part and plays it with animation. None of the feminine roles are sensationally taken but all are satisfactory. The chorus is unusually good-looking from the standpoint of the tenth row and mayhap would stand a closer inspection. The aggregation carries its own orchestra, and the work of the latter is a distinct feature. Large audiences witnessed both performances here.

POLICE COURT

There were few other cases in court today. Will Rosebud was charged with assault, but judgment was not entered against him. G. H. Paddock was found not guilty of "lying to give the proper signal at a street crossing with his automobile, and John Rash was fined $5 and the costs for being drunk.

Physicians declare he is suffering considerable pain and remains in a feverish condition. Y.M.C.A.-Y.W.C.A. HAVE SUCCESSFUL RECEPTION

Various Forms of Entertainment Enjoyed—Many Games Played and Witnessed

From 7 to 10 o'clock last night the New Year spirit of happiness and optimism prevailed in the Y. M. C. A. building, where the annual New Year's reception was being held by the members of the Young Women's and Young Men's Christian associations. The guests of the evening enjoyed themselves to the fullest and were received by the ladies' auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. Those in the receiving line were: Miss Grace Foster, Mrs. Lance, Miss Hannah Salley, Miss Lottie Salley, Mrs. M. L. Stevens, Mrs. Jeter C. Pritchard, Mrs. Harry M. Dill, Miss Willie Schartzle, Mrs. C. B. Webster, Mrs. J. T. Sevier, Mrs. Ed. B. Brown and Miss Jessie Williams.

The entertainment afforded the guests was varied. There were refreshments, including sandwiches, coffee, cake and fruit punch, served in the writing room of the lobby, and everyone-present partook of the dainties that had been prepared by the ladies and then enjoyed the sports of the evening. The Boys' orchestra played throughout the entertainment and contributed much to its success. The pool tables were used extensively by those who enjoy the game, and for those who wished merely to look on at some sport there was sufficient amusement. An excellent game of basket ball was played between the teams of Wheeler and Boling of the class A league, and following this game, which was won by the followers of Boling by the score of 21 to 20, there was a volley ball match of three games between the teams of Collier and Dennison, the latter winning all. There was also several bowling matches much enjoyed by the enthusiasts of this sport.

The reception was considered by all who attended to have been the best of the annual events ever held at the association building.
