PRESIDENT A THOROUGH FAN

His "Baseball Smile" Tells How He Stands on That Schedule.

In connection with President Wilson's interest in wool schedules, sugar schedules and other things of that nature it is not amiss to remark that the baseball schedule is another to which he gives some attention when he has time.

In brief, the president is a thorough "fan," and if you don't believe it just look at his "baseball smile" illustrated here.

A photographer caught that smile while the president stood in his box at the opening game in Washington. The New York and Washington American league teams were the contenders, and President Wilson pitched the first ball of the game.

The president always has taken a great interest in athletics, which is quite natural, considering his long career as a college man.

At President Wilson's left in the illustration is his secretary, Joseph T. Murphy. Immediately in front of T. Murphy sits the president's daughter, Miss Eleanor Wilson.

President Wilson probably will spend the greater part of his time in Washington until congress is adjourned, which may not be till August.

Although the tariff bill and many other important measures will demand his close attention for many weeks, it is expected that when he has a bit of leisure corresponding to an event on the Washington baseball calendar he will be seen at the big league park.

Former President Taft took a great interest in baseball while he was in Washington. The indications are that the present occupant of the White House will prove a worthy successor to Mr. Taft as chief fan of the nation.
