 Winston-Salem, April 25.—The home team took the game from Asheville yesterday with little trouble, the score being 11 to 2. Waymack was rather wild and received some lively tans, while Millman could not do effective throwing to bases and was finally replaced by Frye. The Mountaineers were not able to do much timely hitting. They made their two runs in the second and third; but the Twins began scoring in the fourth and kept at it.

Tie End of Eleventh.

New York, April 25.—New York and Philadelphia played an 11 inning tie game here yesterday, neither side scoring. Both Demaree and Alexander pitched great ball, McGraw's record doing the Meador down that he was not in position and called for the game to go on. Many of the players had started to change their clothing and it took more than a quarter of an hour to clear the field. When play was resumed McCormick hit into a double play and Snodgrass was thrown out by Loolan. IN PILOTHOUSE WITH A MANIAC

Steersman Ordered to Ram Another Vessel.

RUSE BEAT THE LUNATIC.

Riverman's Quick Wit Told Him How to Use Big Wheel to Knock Out His Dangerous Visitor, a Big Man With an Ax.

"A lunatic man who got into my pilothouse and tried to force me to run down and sink another boat gave me the narrowest squeak of my life," said the captain of a North river ferryboat. "Sunday I was working extra and was given the job to run an excursion party from West Forty-second street, New York, to College Point. We had on board 1,500 excursionists. The boat was one of the old sidewheelers.

Intruder in the Pilothouse.
 "I was alone in the pilothouse when I heard some one enter the door behind me, and a man's voice asked: "How many people have you on this boat?" "Thinking he was one of the government inspectors, I answered that the boat was not overloaded, for she was rated to carry something over 2,000 people. "Well," said the man, "1,500 isn't many, but we'll send that many to the bottom of the river anyway."

Big Man and Crazy.
 "At that the man stepped up beside me and I got a look at him. He was a big man, about six feet two inches in height. As soon as I got a look into his eyes I knew that he was not an inspector, but an insane man. I knew instinctively that I was no match for him physically, but I didn't show any fear. In his hand the man held a fire ax.

"See that boat coming up the river?" asked the crazy man. "The boat which is pointed was another excursion steamer bound up the North river. "I want you to ram that boat."

Pilot Has a Bright Idea.
 "Just then I got an idea. The boat was equipped with steam steering gear and an auxiliary hand gear. The steam gear was hooked up to the little steering wheel, which is right up in the forward part of the pilothouse. Five feet behind this is the big hand wheel, which is only used if the steam gear breaks down. The hand wheel was about eight feet in diameter, and two feet of it was under the floor, a slit being cut in the floor for it. Even at that the hand steering gear stood up six feet above the floor. It is made big, you see, so that the captain can have plenty of purchase in swinging the big rudder.

"Being hooked up together, every time the little wheel attached to the steam gear is turned the big wheel also spins around. If the big hand gear ever struck a man when it was swung over it would knock him ally.

Stunned by the Big Wheel.
 "I'm ready to sink that boat coming upstream," I told the crazy fellow, "but I've got to have help. This wheel turns very hard. Take hold of that big wheel behind me and hold on tight. Get ready to heave it over, and when I shout you press down with all your might."

THE BIG WHEEL HIT HIM.

"He snatched the big wheel, and I held the steam gear wheel very steadily so that he wouldn't suspect. "Heave," I shouted, "heave hard!" The man pressed down on the spokes of the big wheel, and I swung my steam gear hard over in the opposite direction. Well, sir, the big wheel spun around, lifted that fellow with it and threw him against the opposite side of the pilothouse. The shock stunned him. I rang for the engineer to stop the engines, and when the crazy man woke up I had him tied up with rope so that he couldn't move. We tugged him over to the police. I don't know what became of him."—New York Sun.

RICH MAN KILLS SELF IN CROWDED STREET

In Throng of Girls Real Estate Man Fires Bullet in Brain.

Man Fires Bullet in Brain.

(By Associated Press)
 New York, April 25.—Edward W. Gaines, a wealthy real estate operator, walked into a group of young women leaving a commercial school on Lexington avenue late last night, stood there for a few minutes twirling his silver headed cane and then crossed the street, where in sight of all the young women he pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired a shot into his right temple. He died in the hospital less than an hour later.

The man was driven to his act by tortures of an illness which had paralyzed him and which threatened his life. He had left his wife in the early evening without any signs of the depth of his despondency. A letter found in the man's pocket indicated that he had been promised treatment by Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute, who recently won the Nobel prize for distinguished work in surgery. There were eight other letters, three of them addressed to persons in St. Louis, his former home.

CAMPAIGN STARTED FOR LIGHTING STREETS.

A campaign among the business men of the city will be started shortly to secure funds for the installation of lights on Patton avenue and North and South Main streets similar to those already installed on Pack square. A sketch is being made of these streets now, showing just how they would appear with the lights installed, and the campaign will be started as soon as this is completed. There was a meeting yesterday afternoon of the light committees of the board of trade and board of aldermen, together with representatives of the Asheville Power and Light company, to devise plans for establishing a "white way" for Asheville and the plans submitted that seemed to meet with the greatest approval was to have the wooden trolley poles removed, the trolley wires to be supported from the tops of the light standards. There will be 110 feet apart and there will be a standard of lights between the lighting company signified its willingness to bear the greater part of the expense of installation.
