AMUSEMENTS

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, Matinee and Night, "The Little Millionaire." WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, "Little Boy Blue." THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, "Robin Hood." "The Little Millionaire." George M. Cohan's musical farce, "The Little Millionaire," which is to be presented here at the Auditorium, matinee and night, on Monday, September 22, is a typical Cohan show in which there is action aplenty, a fine cast, and, as usual, a very attractive chorus; also there is a very interesting story, the opening scenes of which are laid at Huntington, L. I., where Robert Spooner, Jr. "The Little Millionaire" is about to give a dinner to celebrate his engagement to a lady of the Zig Zag company's chorus. Mr. Spooner, sr., happens along quite unexpectedly and as neither the father nor the son can penetrate matrimony without the consent of the other, the son is sore perplexed until it is shown that the father is off to Europe, then the party proceeds and ditto the unfolding of the plot. "The Little Millionaire" is written in three acts, and whizzes along at the lightning speed usually found in Cohan pen productions. It is garnished with many melodious song numbers, the charm of which lies in the fact that to the usual fascination of his melodies Mr. Cohan has added lyrics that tell an interesting story.

TRAIN OVER MILE LONG.

Wonderful Home of Barnum and Bailey Travels in Five Sections. When the Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth is packed away for the night and speeding over the rails to its next point of exhibition, it lives in a rolling home over a mile in length. This wonderful train is divided in five sections. It is a congress of nations on wheels, a Noah's Ark of animals and a world's fair of a thousand charms. When the show lies spread out for a day's business it covers fourteen acres of ground. Over it waves a sea of canvas, spotted with ten thousand flags and banners. No other show can compare with it in size, wealth or variety. The spirit of P. T. Barnum, the greatest showman who ever lived, still animates its faultless policy. The wonderful system of James A. Bailey, that has made the handling of the gigantic proposition possible, is still in evidence, urging it on from year to year to better and grander achievements. This circus has spent many of its fifty-five years in touring Asia and Europe. This has kept it in constant touch with the lands whence come all wonders. Material for this year's street spectacle was gathered in this way. Agents have searched savage lands, artists and designers have worked for months in the foreign workshops of the show, experts have ransacked the art galleries of France and Italy, and the looms of China and Japan have been busy since early last fall making the silks and satins to clothe the people of the pageant. It has taken two years to turn out the equipment, and the management has spent $1,000,000 on it. All strange types of the human family are found in the three-mile procession, together with their characteristic costumes, weapons, war vehicles, their music, and their idols. Rich and fantastic carriages of state, gorgeous tabeau floats, fairy chariots bearing the myths of childhood, richly draped howdahs, engines of warfare, Javanese imitations, Italian statuary, horse fairs, fairy carriages, brass bands, barbarian orchestras, tom-tom players, weird pipers, silver chimas, cathedral organs, siren pipes, chanters, dervishes, custard ballets, kirmis scenes, fete day pictures, mardi gras scenery and a thousand other spectacular sights unfold themselves before the eyes of spectators for an hour or more. The show carries its own dynamo plant, where power is generated for the various shops and for 7000 incandescent lamps, flaring arcs and a battery of spotlights. There is also a circus postoffice, where mail is received daily from every country in the world. The circus grounds are a city in themselves, with doctors, lawyers, barbers, detectives and artists and artisans of every description. In the canvas hotel 4000 meals are cooked and eaten every day in the week. A

HOTELS AND BOARDING HOUSES

The performance in the main tent begins this year with a wonderful spectacle of "Cleopatra," enacted by a cast of 1250 characters, ballet of 350 dancing girls, grand opera chorus, horses, elephants and camels and a trainload of special scenery. The production is mounted on the biggest stage in the world. A program of foreign novelties and sensations follows the spectacle. There are many thrillers and a company of fifty clowns supplies the comedy. In the menagerie will be seen the only baby giraffe on exhibition in the world. The circus will be seen here on Saturday, September 27th. It
