JUDGE STEVENS TRIED

ONLY A SMALL DOCKET

Today's Session of Police Court Was Short—Assault Cases Continued.

One extreme follows another in Police court these days. Some days the sessions continue nearly all day and probably the next, the court will only work 10 or 15 minutes. Today's docket was very short, and substitute Judge H. B. Stevens disposed of the cases in a very few minutes. The following cases were up for adjudication: Algie Wilson was taxed $1 and the costs for driving an automobile past a street car, while the passengers were transferring; and the same was made in a case charging him with driving a machine without a state license.
