Coburn's Greater Minstrels.
With Coburn's Greater Minstrels next Monday matinee and night at the Auditorium one of the feature musical offerings of the season is the metropolitan singing four, the best quartet in minstrelsy. There probably is not a patron or lover of minstrelsy and vocal music whose preference would not be quoted in favor of this enjoyable form of musical entertainment. Lester Lucas, basso, whose powerful voice has been heard and enjoyed with this attraction in past seasons has been promoted to the position of interloper in the big new first part production, in which capacity his pleasing personality, clear enunciation and dramatic ability individualize him as master of ceremonies. William Church, counter tenor, with a splendid and powerful voice, having a range of E above high C, makes him a star soloist and top tenor feature. "Billie" is also the comedian of the quartet as well as fills it capably. Justin McCarthy, Celtic tenor lead, and soloist, and Joseph Maguire, robust baritone soloist has lost no time.

ist and the latest addition to this pleasing specialty. The solos, harmony numbers and comedy bits used this season by these singers demonstrate their right to the title claimed for them, and no patron of Coburn's Minstrels will be disappointed in the result of their combined efforts to please. The matinee prices will be 25 cents for children and 50 cents for adults. Night prices will be from 50 cents to $1. Tickets are now selling at Allison's.

a summer mountain resort. The time is dead of winter and the hotel is closed. The caretaker has a telegram from the owner announcing the arrival of a friend who is to remain 24 hours. Enter the friend, William Halliwell Magee, a popular novelist of the George Barr McCutcheon type. He has come from New York to the loneliest spot on earth, a summer hotel in winter, to write a 10,000-word novel in 24 hours, and thus win a wager of $5,000. The caretaker assures him that he will not be disturbed, for there's not a person within miles and none can get in as there's only one key. The caretaker then gives him the only key to Baldpate, and leaves him to his task. The curtain goes down as the clock strikes midnight and the tap, tap of the typewriter upstairs shows that the novelist has lost no time.

In Act 1, the writer has not been long at work when there is a rattle at the lock of the door, and the owner of the second key to Baldpate enters. Complications follow fast, and it develops that there are seven keys to Baldpate. Hermits, safes, robbers, reporters, graft, politicians, police, pistols, blackmail, murder, love, ghosts—we defy any man to remember one-tenth of the details of the plot, for Mr. Cohan has spared no pains to make his satire on the "best seller" a real satire. Arthur Marchmont and Louis Joseph Vance in their palmist days have nothing on this piece for melodrama. Yet the author has so skillfully introduced his laughs that the play never has a chance to get serious, and the audience is perplexed up to the last, not knowing whether they are viewing a farce, a melodrama, or a satire.

GOOD RESULTS FROM THE AGENTS' ADVICE
Field Agents of Southern Railway Advise With 100,000 Farmers Past Year.

Special to The Gazette-News.
Washington, March 13.—Substantial results are shown by the annual report of the Agricultural agent of Southern Railway company and associated companies for the year 1914. During the year the field agents of the companies gave advice to a total of about 100,000 farmers. They received detailed reports from 3,512 farmers covering 32,466 acres in cotton, 24,287 acres in corn and 11,333 acres in miscellaneous crops.
The average yield of cotton per acre on fields cultivated in accordance with their advice was 1,255 pounds of seed cotton, as compared with the average of 513 pounds per acre in fields where their advice was not followed. The average yield of corn per acre in fields grown in accordance with their advice was 50 4-5 bushels, as compared with 18 2-5 bushels per acre in fields where their advice was not followed. Equally good results were obtained with other crops.
A striking feature of the report is the good showing made in boll weevil territory where many farmers, notwithstanding the presence of the weevil in their fields, averaged a bale or more of cotton per acre. The agricultural development work of the companies is carried on in co-operation with the United States government and the agricultural agents of the states and counties. The services of the agricultural agents of the companies are free to all farmers along their lines wishing to avail themselves of their advice.
The work heretofore done by the companies for the development of live stock, dairying and poultry raising along their lines has been consolidated with the general agricultural work under the direction of the Industrial and agricultural commissioner of the companies and plans have been adopted which it is believed will make all of the agricultural development work of the companies even more efficient in the future than it has been in the past.
