PONY OUTFITS WILL BE SEEN ON SATURDAY

Sight of These Rigs Will Please Both Young and Old People.

The Shetland pony outfits that The Gazette-News is giving away in the contest are now in Asheville. Both grownups and children are the admirers of these dandy little rigs when seen on the streets Saturday. Everywhere they were the joy of all, for if there is anything that will bring a smile of pleasure and admiration to the countenance of the most serious and solemn individual it is a pony outfit.

Man and horse have always been firm friends. On the smaller scale child and pony are associated in a strong and lasting affection. Every grown person remembers when he or she was a child, and has not forgotten by any means the emotions that stir the childhood breast; and they remember that of all the vain wishes and unsatisfied desires that ever stirred their young hearts the longing to possess a pony outfit was the greatest and made the most lasting impression on memory.

Then it is hard to find a grown person who is not closely interested in some child, and the sight of these pony rigs will make him to think, "Oh, would he like to have that." So the smiles come to the faces of grown folks.

That thought can be translated into fruitful action if those grown folks who think this in connection with some of their little friends will give to these their subscriptions and the votes which go with it. The contest department at The Gazette-News office will explain how this can be done, or if handed to these little folks themselves or their parents, they will do the rest.

WOMAN NOTARY CASE IN DOUBT

From State Supreme Court's Traditional Attitude Toward Women Many Doubt Her Success.

OPINIONS ON QUESTION DIFFER, HOWEVER

Justice Clark Known to Favor Women's Side and Judge Brown May Vote With the Chief Justice.

(By W. T. Bost).
Raleigh, May 14.—The Supreme court now has before it a question that in a day of great excitement is creating the most widespread comment throughout North Carolina, the issue affecting the competency of women to serve as notaries public.

Persons who are willing to stake their reputations upon a per curiam opinion of the court, bestowing this right by sanction of the legislative enactment are not quite informed as to the traditional attitude of North Carolina's Supreme courts upon questions affecting women. One of the most noted law writers of one of the great western states has declared North Carolina's Supreme court decisions the most hostile to women among all the courts of the land and the notary bill will hardly get through without a dissent, in the opinion of many.

But it is believed that the court will concur in the legislative act. One of the most prominent lawyers in North Carolina said yesterday that women are eligible under the constitution of the United States to any office from president of the United States down to Supreme court justice just as they are in England eligible to any office from queen of England down to constable. This attorney declared that women are not only postmistresses but collectors of internal revenue and hold other important positions.

In making his argument before the court this week, Attorney General Bleckett agreed with the counsel for Mrs. Nolan Knight that the legislature might authorize women to fill notarial positions and at least three court opinions have been handed down declaring that the notary public is not an office. This attorney, who did not want the laugh on him should the court not decide the way that Judge Clark has held often and out vote the chief justice, gave the three cases in which the state Supreme courts have held that the notary public is not an office. In Lawrence vs. Hodges, 92 N. C., 681 it was held that the statute which made the clerk of the court a notary public also was valid, a thing impossible under the law if the notary's position is an office because two positions could not be held.

In Worthey vs. Barrett, 63 N. C., the attorney general of the United States gave as his opinion that among those not public office holders were notaries public, commissioners of affidavits and lawyers. The state court adopted this opinion.

LOOK TO GERMANY FOR PROMPT ACTION

ordinary circumstances of the present war and the measures adopted by their adversaries in seeking to cut Germany off from all commerce, to adopt methods of retaliation which go much beyond the ordinary methods of warfare at sea, in the proclamation of a war zone from which they have warned neutral ships to keep away. This government has already taken occasion to inform the Imperial German government that it cannot admit the adoption of such measures or such a warning of danger to operate as in any degree an abbreviation of the rights of American shipmasters or of American citizens bound on lawful errands as passengers on merchant ships of belligerent nationality, and that it must hold the Imperial German government to a strict accountability for any infringement of those rights, intentional or accidental. It does not understand the Imperial German government to question those rights. It assumes, on the contrary, that the Imperial government accept, as of course, the rule that the lives of non-combatants, whether they be of neutral citizenship or citizens of one of the nations at war, cannot lawfully or rightfully be put in jeopardy by the capture or destruction of an unarmed merchantman, and recognize also, as all other nations do, the obligation to take the usual precaution of visit and search to ascertain whether a suspected merchantman is in fact of belligerent nationality or is in fact carry contraband of war under a neutral flag.

"The government of the United States, therefore, desires to call the attention of the Imperial German government with the utmost earnestness to the fact that the objection to their present method of attack against the trade of their enemies lies in the principal impossibility of employing submarines without disregarding those rules of fairness, reason, justice, and humanity, which all modern opinion regards as imperative. It is practically impossible for the officers of a submarine to visit a merchantman at sea and examine her papers and cargo. It is practically impossible for them to make a prize of her; and, if they cannot put a prize crew on board of her, they cannot sink her without leaving her crew and all on board of her to the mercy of the sea in her small boats. These facts, it is understood, the Imperial German government frankly admits. We are informed that in the instances of which we have spoken time enough for even that poor measure of safety was not given, and in at least two of the cases cited not so much as a warning was received. Manifestly submarines cannot be used against merchantmen, as the last few weeks have shown, without an inevitable violation of many sacred principles of justice and humanity.

"American citizens act within their indisputable rights in taking their ships and in traveling wherever their legitimate business calls them upon the high seas, and exercise those rights in what should be the well-justified confidence that their lives will not be endangered by acts done in clear violation of universally acknowledged international obligations and certainly in the confidence that their own government will sustain them in the exercise of their rights.

"There was recently published in the newspapers of the United States, I regret to inform the Imperial German government, a formal warning, purporting to come from the Imperial German embassy at Washington, addressed to the people of the United States, and stating, in effect, that any citizen of the United States who exercised his right of free travel upon the seas would do so at his peril if his journey should take him within the zone of waters within which the Imperial German navy was using submarines against the commerce of Great Britain and France notwithstanding the respectful but very earnest protest of his government, the government of the United States. I do not refer to this for the purpose of calling the attention of the Imperial German government at this time to the surprising irregularity of a communication from the Imperial German embassy at Washington addressed to the people of the United States through the newspapers, but only for the purpose of pointing out that no warning that an unlawful and inhuman act will be committed can possibly be accepted as an excuse or palliation for that act or as an abatement of the responsibility for its commission.

"Long acquainted as this government has been with the character of the Imperial German government and with the high principles of equity by which they have in the past been actuated and guided, the government of the United States cannot believe that the commanders of the vessels which committed these acts of lawlessness did so except under a misapprehension of the orders issued by the Imperial German naval authorities. It takes it for granted that at least within the practical possibilities of every such case, the commanders even of submarines were expected to do nothing that would involve the lives of non-combatants or the safety of neutral ships, even at the cost of failing of their object of capture or destruction. It confidently expects, therefore, that the Imperial German government will disavow the acts of which the government of the United States complains, that they will make reparation so far as reparation is possible for injuries which are without measure and that they will take immediate steps to prevent the recurrence of anything so obviously subversive of the principles of warfare for which the Imperial German government have in the past so wisely and so firmly contended.

"The government and people of the United States look to the Imperial German government for just, prompt, and enlightened action in this vital matter with the greater confidence because the United States and the Kingdom of Prussia.

"Expressions of regret and offers of reparation in case of the destruction of neutral ships sunk by mistake, while they may satisfy international obligations, if no loss of life results, cannot justify or excuse a practice, the natural and necessary effect of which is to subject neutral nations and neutral persons to new and immeasurable risks.

"The Imperial German government will not expect the government of the United States to omit any word or any act necessary to the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens and of safeguarding their free exercise and enjoyment.
