Gudger-Baker Marriage.

Miss Maud Gudger, daughter of the late H. Lamar Gudger and Mrs. Gudger of Asheville was united in marriage last evening with Freeman Ruggles Baker of this city. The ceremony was performed in Central Methodist church which was beautifully decorated and was thronged with guests for the event. Rev. Dr. R. P. Pell, president of Converse college performed the wedding ceremony assisted by Rev. J. H. Barnhardt, pastor of the church.

The decoration of the church was unusually elaborate and artistic. Several friends of the bride had undertaken the matter of the church arrangement with a view to making the occasion even more lovely on account of the setting. Tall white lilies used with roses and interspersed with lighted candles and all about a profusion of greenery made the scene one of great beauty. The music for the wedding was charmingly selected and well rendered. At the organ Miss Max Hill of Washington, Ga., presided and preceding the hour at which the party entered Miss Hill rendered "De Koven's 'O, Promise Me," and Mrs. Arthur Pritchard, who is well known for her beautiful voice, sang "Because," by Gounod.

At the appointed hour the bridal party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, which was used by Miss Hill as a processional for the entire bridal party until the presence of the bride was announced by the Lohensia bridal chorus. First in the bridal party came the ushers, two by two, entering from the main doorway of the church and going by two down the main aisles of the church. First came Kendall Northrup with Bernard Elias and next Perry Cobb with Clinton Hughes. After the ushers came the bridesmaids, singly, down the aisles followed by the groomsmen. The line of attendants from each of the aisles crossed at the foot of the chancel and formed a semicircle in front of the altar. Miss Sarah Booe of Winston-Salem and Miss Lula Baker, a sister of the groom from Goldsboro, entered with R. Williams of Asheville and Sullivan Booe of Winston-Salem. Miss Lillian Fletcher with Miss Annie Kate Smith of Farmville, Ga., next entered with Willard Northrup of Winston-Salem, formerly of Asheville and Harry Theobald of this city. After these attendants came the first bridesmaid, Miss Esther Gudger, a sister of the bride, who entered with N. N. Beadles. The first bridesmaid was followed by the maid of honor, Miss Myrtle Gudger, after whom came the dainty little flower girl, little Miss Elizabeth Brown, the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Brown and little Miss Eugenia Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Brown. Then down the right aisle just preceding the groom and his best man came the small ring bearer, Mark Brown, Jr. Mr. Baker entered attended by Daniel Glennan of Norfolk, Va., with the entry of the ring bearer, the groom, the bride and his best man. The little flower girl, Miss Sarah Booe, the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Brown who made her way slowly in the bridal procession down the left aisle of the church strewn the pathway of the charming young bride who here entered on the arm of her brother, Vonno Gudger, who gave her in marriage. The bride was met at the chancel by the groom and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Pell and Rev. Mr. Barnhardt.

The bride's costume was beautiful but simple and girlish in effect. She wore a gown of white satin en train embroidered in roses and trimmed in real lace. Her veil was of diaphanous tulle edged with duchesse and rose point lace. Miss Gudger's veil was arranged in a cap effect with the lace falling to her shoulders and a wreath of orange blossoms at the back of the veil making the cap effect. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses with lilies-of-the-valley.

The other costumes worn by the various attendants were also graceful and attractive. The maid of honor, Miss Myrtle Gudger, wore a gown of white satin with green chiffon and Princess lace. Her bouquet was of pink roses. Miss Esther Gudger, the first bridesmaid was crowned in figured taffeta of exquisite pink and carried bridesmaid's roses of white. The other bridesmaids were modestly gowned in pink taffeta, pink being the prevailing color motif of the wedding, and combined with their gowns of pink soft cream lace. These toilettes were given an added charm and note of youth and freshness in the bridesmaid bouquets of fragrant sweet peas in tones of pink. White accordion pleated or-gande frocks were worn by the pretty little flower girls, these dainty little dresses being trimmed in lace, made with angel sleeves and worn low in the neck. Mark Brown, junior, the small ring bearer, looked very handsome in a suit of white and carried with much poise the wedding ring concealed in the petal of a flower. The little flower girls carried baskets of sweet peas. An interesting point in connection with the wedding party was that all members with the exception of Miss Baker, sister of the groom, were former classmates of the bride while a student at Converse college.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. O. L. Baker, of Goldsboro, mother of the groom, Miss Susie Hill of Washington, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Russell, of Sunburst, formerly of Philadelphia, Rev. Dr. R. P. Pell, president of Converse college, Mr. and Mrs. James Atkins, junior, of Waynesville, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Sloan of Waynesville, Miss Josephine Gilmer of Waynesville, Mrs. Charles Quinlan of Waynesville, a sister of David Gudger of Asheville, and others. Following the wedding an elegant reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. H. Lamar Gudger, on Montford avenue. The spacious residence was thrown open and beautifully decorated in quantities of pink flowers, Dorothy Perkins roses prevailing in the decorations. In the receiving line were: Mrs. H. Lamar Gudger, handsomely gowned in black crepe-de-chine trimmed in white chiffon and silver lace; Mrs. O. L. Baker of Goldsboro in black crepe-de-chine and point lace, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Ruggles Baker, and the bride's party. Mr. and Mrs. Perry Cobb and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gudger received the guests in the spacious room halfway in the rear of which Miss Catherine Beadles and Miss Myrtle Rollins received and entertained.

The popularity of the young contracting parties was attested in the unusual number of handsome wedding presents which were on display in one of the large rooms of the lower floor in which Miss Anne Carr, Mrs. Charles Russell and Dr. and Mrs. Pritchard received. In one of the parlors Mr. and Mrs. Canby Brown were among those assisting in the entertaining. On the large verandahs Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Davis assisted in the receiving. Punch was served by Miss Bettie Sites and Mrs. Silas G. Bernard, an interesting point in connection with the serving of the punch being that the silver ladle used was a gift to the bride from the groom's mother and had been in the Baker and Ruggles families for more than 100 years. In the dining room Miss Opal Brown and Miss Ruth Brown were assisted by Miss Lola Hughes, Miss Christine Lee, Miss Carolyn Brown, and Miss Isabel Harris. In one of the parlors Mrs. N. N. Beadles, Miss Minnie Rolison and Mrs. Ted Rolison entertained, and the guest register was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Taylor. The wedding was a notable event of the month as the bride is a member of one of the oldest and largest families of western North Carolina.

anners, pennants and insignia to protect them from attack by sea or air, and finally the unloading of the cargoes in the port of Holland's metropolis—at present one of the biggest in the world.

"An interesting scene is shown portraying the executive offices of the commission in New York city, with the vice chairman, London W. Bates, at work directing the vast operations of the commission; the great maps and blackboards by which the daily movements of the 'fleet of mercy'—as the commission's ships are called—are shown with absolute accuracy."

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Hinton and daughter, Miss Ruth will leave today for Saluda, where they will make their home in the future.

that the merchants association had been identified with many great movements for the benefit of the people of every community; they had worked to bring about more satisfactory relations between buyer and seller. Mr. Britt urged the practice of economy without parsimony and laid stress on the value of optimism. To bewail conditions is to multiply troubles, he said.

The following menu was served at the banquet:

- Canape & la Princess

- Bisque d' Homard

- Evening Session.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the final session of the day was called to order and the members heard an admirable address by John Sprunt Hill of Durham, chairman of the rural credits committee, on "Rural Credits." Mr. Hill spent several months in Europe as a member of the American committee studying conditions there among the agricultural classes.

He declared that unless the farmer prospers, the banks and the railroads suffer. And in North Carolina agriculture is lagging behind while manufacturing interests are making progress. A few years ago in Buncombe county, said the speaker, products to the amount of $2,800,000 were imported more than were produced, while in the state the imports reached the sum of $120,000,000 for food and feed. This happened in spite of the fact that North Carolina's per acre crop production is larger than that of most of the states in the union. Tenacy is widespread, statistics showing that 75,000 heads of families in this state have no land of their own.

Diagnosing the trouble, the speaker declared that the root of it is lack of capital for the farmer in North Carolina. The farmers borrow little money because they can not secure it at reasonable rates of interest or in quantities large enough to satisfy their needs. This condition is bad both for the farmer and for the business man. Mr. Hill said that the Federal reserve act deals only with commercial paper and affords no relief to the farmer. The Hollis rural credits bill, introduced in the last congress, would enable farmers to borrow money at four or five per cent.

Mr. Hill declared that farmers pay for their supplies in the stores 10 per cent more than they would if they could pay cash. As credit extends for only six months the farmer really pays 38 per cent for credit, said the speaker. This condition Mr. Hill described as one that helped to make the crop lien system a disastrous method of financing the agricultural industry.

The last legislature, continued the speaker, enacted a law enabling farmers to organize credit unions and co-operative associations so that they can borrow money at six per cent; which will be an improvement. These unions will put into circulation money that has been hoarded. The members will receive four per cent for deposits.

The farmers of the state could use $150,000,000 to advantage if they could borrow it at five per cent, said the speaker; and if the amount were available for them it would mean more for the upbuilding of the state's industries than any measure that can be proposed.

and light facilities of Asheville.

Speaking for the board of trade, W. Vance Brown, president of that organization, urged the association members to visit Asheville frequently. In a body and individually between convention periods. He declared that Asheville receives much benefit from the gatherings which come here and that he believed that the addresses and exchange of ideas at this meeting will be of great value to the city.

J. W. Neave, superintendent of the Salisbury water works, responded on behalf of the association, saying that Asheville is a pleasant place to meet and referring in complimentary terms to the climate and scenery and to the municipal ownership here of the plant for water supply.

In his annual address President F. C. Wyse reviewed the past year's work and made a number of recommendations for enlarging the activities of the association.

The speaker said it was a lamentable fact that in many communities the consumers have little confidence in the administration of the water and light plants, whether owned publicly or privately. He expressed the hope that the present convention may launch a campaign that will result in a change in this state of affairs.

At 8:30 o'clock in the evening the association members gathered on the roof garden for group conferences at which experience and ideas were exchanged for two hours.

ASHEVILLE LOSES IN FIGHT FOR MEETING

Durham, June 17.—After a lively fight between Morehead City, Wrightsville and Asheville, Wrightsville Beach was finally selected by the North Carolina Pharmaceutical association as their meeting place next year. Morehead City was withdrawn in favor of Wrightsville, and the vote was taken on the seashore and the mountain town. The fact that the last meeting prior to this one was held in the mountains caused the decision to go for Wrightsville.

Matton of High Point; third vice president, S. E. Welfare, of Winston-Salem; secretary, re-elected, J. G. Beard, of Chapel Hill; local secretary, G. E. SOU. SHOPS IN ALA. TO BE REOPENED

Selma, Ala., June 17.—If business conditions continue their trend toward normal it is very probable the shops of the Southern railway here will be opened at an early date, according to Master Mechanic John B. Michael. The shops have been shut down since early in the fall and many skilled mechanics have been without work. The shops turn loose an immense sum of money in Selma, and their opening would mean much to Selma merchants and manufacturers.

"There's a new aspirant for honors in the 'movie' field—the commission for relief in Belgium, of 71 Broadway New York. It is now announced that arrangements the commission has been making for several months had been completed and that its plan to send out a series of remarkable motion pictures in conjunction with a number of able lecturers, would very soon be in effect.

"Several sets of films illustrating the work of the commission, scenes in Belgium, etc., will be offered. The operations of the commission in the assembling of food cargoes at seaports in the United States, the loading of relief ships, showing the immense cargoes on the docks and the marvelous method of swiftly stowing them away in a ship's hold by means of busy little 'steam jacks,' the sailing of the ships for Rotterdam, arrayed in all the commission's pennons of flags,
