WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA CENTER OF THE BEE CULTURE AREA IN U. S.

Quality of Famous Basswood Honey Produced Here Is Surprise to Canadian Apiarists—State Is Fourth In Number of Colonies, But Only Eleventh In Value.

E. G. Carr, bee inspector for the state of New Jersey, has recently completed a tour of western North Carolina for the purpose of collecting data for a bulletin on bee culture in this state to be published soon by the Bureau of entomology, of the department of agriculture at Washington.
The importance of the honey producing industry attained in this state will be a surprise to the general public. C. L. Sams of Mars Hill, one of the largest and most successful apiarists in this section yesterday gave a Gazette-News reporter some interesting facts in connection with bees and honey in this section. Mr. Sams accompanied Mr. Carr on his trips through the western counties.

This Section Is Center.
More than one half of the bees in the United States are to be found within a circle of which western North Carolina is the center. The state ranks fourth in the number of colonies in the United States; and seventh in value, eleventh in the value of the apiarists and the product annually turned out, according to the figures of the last census. This is sufficient commentary on the methods in use among many bee keepers. Mr.
Sams stated that most of the hives are of the box type and that but for the favorable conditions in this region the bees would die.

Mr. Carr found that the deadly infectious disease known as foul brood is prevalent in Madison county and to some extent in Buncombe. This disease attacks the larvae and is spread from hive to hive and is also transmitted in the honey to such an extent that many states, including North Carolina, have laws regulating these shipments. The federal department of agriculture has a bulletin, No. 442, dealing with bee diseases, and this may be got by writing to the secretary of agriculture or to congressmen. Foul brood has already done much damage in this state and the bee keepers are urged to secure these bulletins and put in force the measures therein explained for checking the disease.

J. L. Byer and his father, Peter Byer, of Mount Joy, Ontario, Canada, who are among the largest bee culturalists in Canada, were recently interested visitors to the mountain region of this state. They were guests for a while of Mr. Sams and were greatly surprised at the abundance and flavor of the basswood and locust honey found here. Later when the Canadian bee men were conducting a honey show at Toronto Mr. Sams sent J. L. Byer a sample of basswood honey which attracted much attention at the exhibitions.

Interesting Article.
Mr. Byer, who edits the department, "Canadian Beedom," in American Bee Journal, wrote the following article in regard to the honey sent by Mr. Sams. The clipping is taken from "Gleanings in Bee Culture," for June of this year:

"Recently I received from Mr. Sams of Mars Hill, N. C., a pall of 'chunk' honey of delicious quality and appearance. The source of this honey—basswood—rather surprised me, as we do not generally find basswood honey so far south. I frankly acknowledge that the quality is equal to our own basswood honey, both in color and flavor. By the way, the term 'chunk' honey does not appeal to me at all, and I wonder that our southern friends—more particularly those of Texas, where this style of putting honey on the market originated, if I am correct—do not get some more attractive name for honey marketed in this way. From North Carolina we have had samples of three beautiful lots of honey—basswood, locust and sourwood; and for my own part at least, the term 'southern honey' has a much better sound than it did a few years ago." (An editor's note says that a large number of southern producers now favor the term "bulk comb" honey).

The layman, and perhaps the average housekeeper will be surprised to learn that honey is used in a great variety of recipes for cakes and other deserts almost without number. It is also stated that the biscuit manufacturers of the United States every year use hundreds of carloads of honey in their products. The value of honey in medicinal and food purposes has long been known. That it can be used as a food in treatment of certain diseases where sugar is absolutely prohibited is not so well known. Many physicians, it is said, allow their patients to eat honey when sugar would be dangerous.

With its abundant growth of basswood, locust and dogwood, the western part of this state should become an even larger producer of honey than it is. The old Biblical description of a good country to live in, "a land flowing with milk and honey," has never been improved upon. It appears more than probable that the dairying interests and the bee keepers will give new force to the saying as applied to the mountain section of North Carolina.

Paris, Nov. 15.—The "Radical," among other Paris papers gave as the reason for the resignation of Theo-phile Delcasse, foreign minister, the fact that the cabinet could not agree regarding the French foreign policy.
M. Delcasse's letter of resignation was not read to the chamber by Premier Viviani, who later resigned with his cabinet.

"Young man," said the magistrate severely, "the assault you have committed on your poor wife was most brutal. Do you know of any reason why I should not send you to prison?"
"If you do, your honor," replied the prisoner at the bar, hopefully, "it will break up our honeymoon."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"I wonder what has become of the old-fashioned dime novel?" remarked the old fogey.
"It has gone up to a dollar and a half," replied the grinch.—Louisville Evening Post.

"Why, Willie, dear! What are you crying so far?"
"Mamma gave me a nice new auto."
"Add you are crying about that?"
"She didn't div me no hammer to break it wiv."—Browning's Magazine.

"Did Jones lose control of his auto?"
"Completely; the cook uses it all the time."—Puck.

OFFERINGS AT THE LOCAL THEATERS

Managers of the local amusement houses make the following announcements for today:

AT THE GALAX.

The evils of the opium and morphine habits are graphically depicted in the Lasky production of "The Sacred Sin" which will be the attraction at the Galax today and tomorrow, with Blanche Sweet in the leading role. In this thrilling drama written by Margaret Turnbull, the famous dramatist, the clever star plays two characters—twin sisters.
In the cast supporting Miss Sweet are the well-known members of the Lasky all-star stock company as Thomas Meighan who will be remembered for his excellent work in "Blackbirds and Kindling", Margery Daw, Hal Clements, Sessue Hayakawa, the noted Japanese actor and Alice Knowland are seen in prominent parts.

AT THE PRINCESS.

The two-reel Essanay drama "Affinities" which was written by Mary Roberts Rhinehardt will be the feature attraction at the Princess today.
Richard Travers is featured in this drama which is said to have been taken on Signal Mountain, near Chattanooga. "Cartoons in the Seminars" a cartoon comedy and "The Seymour House Party" a Biograph drama completes the program.

Changes Date.

The management of the Auditorium states that the attraction "Twin Beds" which was booked for the Auditorium Saturday, November 20, has been changed to a later date. The exact date has not been ascertained but it is stated that it will be offered to the Auditorium patrons sometime during January. The next attraction at the Auditorium will be "High Jinks" which will be seen for two performances on Monday, November 22.

The Patient—What! You refuse to allow my claim? You told me when I was injured that I'd get something if I was sick, didn't you?
Agent—Well, you must have gotten something or you wouldn't be sick, would you?—Puck
