"SHELLFISH DAY" TO BE OBSERVED

Nation Urged to Celebrate Day
By Eating Seafood on November 9.

The National Association of Fisheries commissioners, through its president, M. L. Alexander of Louisiana, has declared that Friday, November 19, should be celebrated from Maine to California and from Washington to Florida as "Shellfish Day" and asks that on every table in the land either lobsters, oysters, clams, crabs or shrimp be the main dish.

"While the coastal states of the union are more fortunate in having the different species of sea food right at hand, nevertheless modern methods of preserving and packing shellfish enable the people of the interior of the country to join in the "Shellfish Day" movement by partaking of their favorite shellfish on this day as well as those living in the seaboard states," says Dr. Joseph Lyde Pratt, member of executive committee and ex-president of National Association of Fisheries commissioners.

"The growing scarcity and advancing prices of animal food has called particular attention to the various sea foods of the country, both fin and shell, as never before and, together with the question of conservation and development of our natural resources, the problem of increasing the output of the coastal waters by advanced methods of aquaculture has been studied not alone by the government experts by the different state commissioners whose members compose the National Association of Fisheries Commissioners.

"With the high cost of living, the scarcity of beef cattle and the increasing population to be combated it is suggested that many of our natural resources are capable of a development which will supply a cheap yet wholesome food. Among these resources the fish and shellfish industries have yet to reach their maximum production as there is not a state on the Atlantic or Pacific seaboard or Gulf coast whose resources have been extended to the limit not is it even possible today to estimate what they are capable of producing in shellfish. Time, education and legislation will change all this and the shellfish champions believe and they point out that the lobster, crab, clam, shrimp and oyster are food products no longer to be considered as luxuries. It has been proven that oysters are cheaper than beef and their consumption is increasing year by year."

FRENCH LAW PROVIDING FOR INDEMNITIES, SOON

Paris, Nov. 18.—The law providing for indemnities to French citizens for war damages, as elaborated by a special committee of the Chamber of Deputies, and as it will probably be enacted, proclaims "the equality" of all French citizens and the solidarity of the nation in the face of the burdens of war, and declares that "damage caused in France to the property, real or personal, by acts of war gives right to indemnity."

The damages specifically named as entitling a citizen to reparation are those caused by the authorities or the troops of the enemy, including taxes, requisitions, war contributions, fines imposed upon private individuals or communities, regardless of whether they were in conformity with the conventions of the Hague. Included also are all damages caused by the French army or its Allies.

The right of foreigners to indemnities in France, according to this project will depend upon the terms of treaties with the nations of which they are subjects. The damages are to be estimated by commissions appointed for the purpose.

OFFERINGS AT THE LOCAL THEATERS

Managers of the local amusement houses make the following announcements for today:

COMING ATTRACTIONS. AT AUDITORIUM.

"High Jinks" matinee and night, Monday November 22.

"The Prince of Pilsen," Friday, November 26.

"High Jinks"

The whiff of a magic perfume sets the principals and chorus of "High Jinks," the musical jollity which Arthur Hammerstein will present at the Auditorium, matinee and night on Monday, November 22, to singing and dancing a song called "Something Seems Tingle-Ing-Ing." The tune threads its way through the entire performance, and proves, it is said, one of the very jolliest airs in many many seasons of musical comedy. The plot deals with an innocent mixing up of wives and finances. The fight of a doctor pursued by a dueling Frenchman whose wife the doctor has kissed, changes the locale from Paris to the seaside. Numerous complications arise, making the story a typical French farce, full of life and merriment, but kept clean from start to finish. In addition, the plot forms a thread on which are strung such bright musical gems as, "Something Seems Tingle-Ing-Ing," "Jim," "Love's Own Kiss," "I'm Through With Roaming Romeos," "Chi Chi," "Not Now, but Later," "Come Hither Eyes," "I Know Your Husband Very Well," and "Doxiana Rise."

The advance seat sale opens tomorrow.

"The Prince of Pilsen," the popular musical comedy claimed to be the most successful entertainment of its class shown in recent years, will be seen at the Auditorium Friday, November 26. There are more than a score of song hits in this remarkable masterpiece of Pixley and Luders' and each of them has held an enduring grasp upon public favor. "The Song of the Cities" is one of the most popular of the musical numbers. "The Message of the Violet," "The Tale of the Sea Shell," "The Stein Song" with its chorus of Heidelberg students, and "Pictures in Smoke," are other big song hits that are largely contributive to the emphatic success of this musical play.

At the Galax.
Elsie Janis will be seen starring in "Betty in Search of a Thrill," at the Galax today. Miss Janis wrote and directed this photoplay and it is said to excel any of her previous works. "Betty in Search of a Thrill" is shown in five parts and was filmed by the Bosworth company.

At the Princess.
An all-star cast will be seen in the three act Essanay drama entitled "His Crucible" which will headline the program at the Princess today. "His Crucible" deals with the son of a wealthy widower, who with a crowd of his wild companions is arrested for smuggling, he afterwards obtains his release and becomes a settlement worker. "Dreamy Dud" on his Uncle Dudley's farm a one reel Essanay cartoon comedy picture will complete the program.

WINTER UPON THE TROOPS IN NORTH OF FRANCE NOW

Boulogne, France, Nov.—Signs are plentiful that winter is close upon the troops in the north of France. The night are already cold, far too cold for comfort, and the characteristic winter night-mist from the marshes is in the air. The trees are not yet bare, but the leaves that remain have turned to a sere yellow, while the roadways are covered with fallen leaves which the soldiers here and there heap into little piles for a fragrant warming fire.

It is evident that there is to be another winter campaign; robber, however, of much of the horror of last year's ordeal in boggy trenches and along impassable roads. In northern France, at least, winter will find the rival armies well prepared to receive it. The wet mud, the ice-cold water

"THE YANKEE GIRL"

While Pasadena folk present during the Hotel Huntington scenes seemed so much enthused when she appeared in her smart riding togs, and devotees of the surf at Santa Monica thought her a dream in her bathing suit, yet it is the three evening gowns she uses in the play that deserve the real praise.

One worn on the yacht is all cream satin and heavy fringes of crystal; another is of cream Chantilly lace combined with satin of the palest primrose; while a third is a rare Italian lace with chic touches of sapphire velvet.

With these stunning creations Miss Ring wears her famous pearls and her equally celebrated Canary diamond pendant. She makes keen-deep in the communication trenches, the ooze and discomfort of the dugouts, will be the exception rather than the rule this year. The shelters, even in the advance trenches, will generally be fairly livable, thanks to the plentiful use of concrete and tar, and the skillful employment of drainage.

Moreover, the armies will be properly clad and amply fed. The British soldiers will again don their sheepskins, supplemented by ample supplies of warm caps, socks and heavy boots of rather better type than last year's.

Many of the trenches now have brick floors, and practically all are drained and protected against landslide by timbers.

The great problem of the winter will be the billeting of all the new divisions which have come out since last year. In the villages well behind the firing lines, every out-building and old barn has been requisitioned, cleaned, repaired and made into shelter against the wind and cold. But nearer the firing lines most of the buildings have been smashed into ruins, and although they are usable for housing purposes during the summer, they are plainly impossible after mid-November. The problem is being dealt with to some extent by the building of portable houses and huts, but the armies grow too fast for the carpenters.

The work of the aeroplane observers gets more difficult as winter approaches. The fogs of the late autumn cling to the ground in little patches well into the day, while the evening mists make observations difficult soon after mid-afternoon.
