After considerable effort the Many delegates to the conference re arriving from the different now has an excellent supply of pure sections of the state and it is expect-ed that the attendance will be large.

The sessions of the conference will be open to the public. Rev. J. S. Willet of Syracuse, N. Y. conventional agent and editor of The Wesleyan Methodist will preside; Rev. E. Teter of Sheridian, Ind., missionary secretary and Rev. H. C. Bedford of Central, S. C., (college) will also be in attendance besides a number of other prominent churchmen. The conference under the adminis-tration of Rev. H. W. Hawkins, president of Gastonia, h ..., is closing the most successful year of its history. It has grown in about sixteen years from 180 members to more than 2,000 today. An interesting session is expected, About 150 preachers and delegates will be in attendance. The committee on entertainment is composed of the pastor, Rev. H. A. Harvey, Rev. H. P. Rich, James R. Teague and W. T. O'Rear.

Congressman James J. Britt has accepted an invitation from the program committee to deliver the principal address at a community wel-fare celebration at Duncan's creek, near Ellensboro, Rutherford county on Thanksgiving day. The subject of Mr. Britt's speech will be "Neighbor-hood Co-operation." A barbecue will water; the school buildings are modern and the school system is well organized. Realizing the importance of parks and playgrounds, the city has purchased the island in the French Broad river near the town and here the children and the citizens will find recreation. The island is large enough for a baseball diamond, tennis courts, bath houses and other park facilities. The county authorities have placed Madison in the forefront in road construction. A new steel and concrete bridge is in process of construction across the river at Marshall and 23 other steel bridges were purchased in one order by the county commissioners. Madison county once had a reputation for bad roads; but the lines of paved highways leading from the county seat are now a matter of pride to the citizens and of comfort to those who travel. It is declared that commercial traveling men were in the past accustomed to groan when they left the train at Marshall and that now they smile as they think of the good roads leading to the various stores in that territory. Under John R. Sams the farmers are using improved methods in agriulture and stock raising.
