GREECE'S OTTOMAN INTERESTS LARGE

May Account for Hellenic Nation's Hesitation In Entering the European War.

Washington, Mar. 1.-First among the reasons offered in explanation of the tenacious neutrality of Greece is that of the widely scattered Hellenic populations and business interests in the Ottoman Empire. An importan part of the wealth of Greece is earned by the enterprises of her people without her borders, and her sons, as cap-tains of Near Eastern industry and falls by geologists have given replies tains of Near Eastern industry and to liven your liver and clean the commerce, have taken a leading and bowels and stop headaches a bad cold, at first it was estimated that Niagara Turkish lands. Throughout this vast territory, where western capital and leaders are not to the fore, Big Business is in the hands of the Greeks, to such an extent that plutocracy in the Levant has almost become a matter of nationality. Equipped with the best training that the commercial schools of France and Germany can give, with the best training that the commercial schools of France and Germany can give with practical experience in the big firms of London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna, and with a native business acumen equal to that of the Jew, the modern Greek has been able to carry everything before him in those lands neighboring his country where bust-ness methods have been at a standstill ver since the days of Joseph.
"Beirut, Smyrna, Alexandretta, Con-

Navigation on the eastern Mediterranean and on the Aegean sea is largely in the hands of the Greeks, and, on the Black sea, they successfully divide this business with the Russians. Even the interior trade of Turkey-in-Europe and of Asia linor is largely upheld by the vigor of Greek enterprise. "Greek colonists have followed in the wake of Greek business, and the arger commercial cities of the ports have acquired a considerable number of Hellenic residents since the days of Greek independence. Moreover there have always been large native populations and settlements of Greeks in the realm of the Sultan, outside of the Grecian peninsula. The whole coast country of Asia Minor, from the Dardanelles to the Gulf of Adalia, is dotted with innumerable Greek villages, many of the inhabitants which are the descendants of proud Greek cities that first felt the wrath of the Persians in classic times The Greek language is preserved in these settlements, and they, in their importance and the number of their seople, have made Greek one of the mportant languages of western Asia Minor, ranking with, or higher than, the other four idloms of the land, Turkish, Armenian, Kurdish, Syriac

As a seller of merchandise, the Turk is the least enterprising and the least importunate and annoying of all the peoples of the East; for he sits by his wares and awaits phlegmatically the pleasure of Allah, "Thus, business in the Ottoman Empire is completely in the hands of the Greeks, the Armenians, the Arabs, the Jews, and great Western firms with branches in the Middle East. To the Greek has fallen the lion's share of the iness. He has always managed to get on with the Turk, whereas the Jew and the Armenian have often failed signally to maintain the favor of their overlords. Especially, has the Arme-nian succeeded in bringing down upon his luckless head the rejentless disapproval of the Moslem, Turk and Kurd.

"Shrewd in business and in politics, adaptable, quick to make the skill and methods of the West his own, pliant and persevering, the Greek has enjoyed what might be termed the inside ath in the commerce of the Levant Turk and Kurd, for the most part, have looked tolerantly upon his suc-cessful enterprise; and, thus favored above his competitors, he has developed a thousand and one lucrative sources of income in Turkish lands, and these mean much to the welfare of the people in the motherland as they mean to him and to the future of all his fellow colonists in the Sultan's

Every effort is made by the minis of munitions to safeguard the health of the youngsters, but the problem is a difficult one. Eight hour shifts are being urged and efforts are being made to improve the transportation facilities to and from the ar-senal. Sports and Slang. One of the most fertile sources of slang is found in our sports. When a man breaks a shoe lace when he is in a hurry he goes to the golf game for the expression, "I'm stymied."

Other expressions which have their origin in sport are "to get by," from football; "serve a hot one," from ten nis, and "slip one over," from baseball, Then from the great national game we draw such phrases as "ante up," "stand pat" "raw deal" and "all in."-Pittsburgh Press.
