At the Strand.
 Roy Stewart, Triangle's popular western character actor, will be seen at the Strand today in his latest photoplay entitled "The Medicine Man." The story is woven around a western mining town and on the Hartville ranch lying in the heart of the Santa Monica mountains. A beautiful love story together with many thrilling events promise to make this a very interesting photoplay.

"A Bomerang Frame-up," a Triangle comedy will also be shown today in connection with the feature.

Tomorrow and Wednesday, Jack Pickford and Louis Huff will be seen co-starring in the Paramount play, "Jack and Jill." This is not a child's play, although the kiddies will enjoy it and the grownups will like it as well.

Deal's five piece orchestra will accompany the pictures daily with appropriate music.

At the Galax.
 "Outwitted," the latest Metro play, starring Emily Stevens, will be the offering at the Galax today and tomorrow.

Emily Stevens is seen in the role of Nan Kennedy, who is trying to influence her brother, to lead an honest life. To save him from a "job" he has had forced to undertake, she does herself, and is caught by the rich man whose safe she has just opened. She expects to be sent to prison. Indeed, he demands that she spend a year in his house as his niece. He aids her to marry the man she loves—and then tells her young husband in the presence of the wedding guests that she is a common crook. Nan wins back happiness, after a desperate struggle.

Prof. Hollingsworth will accompany the picture today and tomorrow with appropriate music on the pipe organ.

ANTIQU FURNITURE

By MARGARET HASON

If furniture could only talk. Just think what it could tell of births and deaths, domestic joys and love's delicious spell. Of faithless wives and husbands, too. Of murders, wars and fell, Of sordid brawls—that it can't talk. Perhaps is just as well.

New York, Dec. 10.—If you haven't a bed that your great-great-grandfather and incidentally your great-great-grandmother slept in or a mirror that reflected your double great-uncle's patrician features or at least a chair that your grandmother's great-uncle used to sit and snore in before the fire, then it's up to you to hustle around and get a fourposter that someone else's great-great-grandfather and great-great-grandmother slept in or a mirror that reflected someone else's great-uncle's double chin or a wing chair that creaked under the weight of someone else's grandmother's great uncle.

The craze for antique furniture increases with the passing of the years and as the high cost of living. Maids and matrons discuss glibly the different merits of Hepplewhite, Sheraton, Chippendale, the elder Adam and can all talk a fine game about a Louis Seize even though they are prone to pronounce it a quince. Antique dealers are finding it harder to fool these well-versed female furniture fiends as to periods and dates but alas whether it be a piece of a copy or the original is not easily detected in these days of camouflage.

Of course wonderful old pieces can be picked up at ridiculous prices in Europe now. The main problem is after you get it what are you going to do with it. An acquaintance of mine who has lived in London for several years is quietly feathering her nest with many choice and cheap pieces which, of course, she will be allowed to bring with the rest of her household goods when she returns home after the war.

She at least can rest secure and serene in the implicit knowledge that someone's great-great-grandfather and grandmother really did use her stuff while she who purchases our antiques here are apt to be speaking doubtfully incorrectly when we refer to our junk as "old antiques."

In fact most of the antique furniture over here is made while you wait. An old cabinet maker called in to render first aid to a marvelous four-poster which has been in the old southern family of a friend of mine for generations disclosed many dark doings of the antique furniture dealers who spoke from years of experience with one of the largest and most exclusive of New York antique furniture shops.

It seems bright lovely new copies of old pieces are made up in job lots at the Rapids and then shipped to this country to go through the process of ageing. The indications that these perfectly good bureaus and tables and highboys are then subjected to are quite Boschey in conception and forth and ground around over their fair smooth surface. Scalding water and bottles of ink are upset on virgin varnish tops and allowed to stay a while. This ink treatment is particularly popular with desks and secretaries. Rows with hammers and chisels are dealt impartially and then the poor old high boys and lowboys and whatnots are taken out, lined up against the wall and shot. Yes peeped with bird shot so it can be blamed on the worms.

Thusly camouflaged a piece which cost originally $50 in Grand Rapids may easily fetch $500 or a couple of thousand in New York.

In the face of such prices too they still have the nerve to dub some of the pieces lowboys. If they are exclusively in highboys and high chairs it would be more to the point.

Up to the moment of going to press I have always endeavored to keep my chisel and mauling unduly my manager assortment of Grand Rapids best. After hearing the cabinet maker's story, however, I have decided to turn them loose and soon hope to have a collection of antiques that will rival the richest treasures in the proud possession of The Daughter of a Thousand Earths.

MRS. KIESO SICK SEVEN MONTHS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Aurora, Ill.—"For seven long months I suffered from a female trouble, with severe pains in my back and sides until I became so weak I could hardly walk from chair to chair, and got so nervous I would jump at the slightest noise. I was entirely unfit to do my household work. I was giving up hope of ever being well, when my sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took six bottles and today I am a healthy woman able to do my own household work. I wish every suffering woman would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and find out for themselves how good it is."—Mrs. CARL A. KIESO, 596 North Ave., Aurora, Ill.

The great number of unsolicited testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory, many of which are from time to time published by permission, are proof of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, in the treatment of female ills.

Every ailing woman in the United States is cordially invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAD THREE CALLS YESTERDAY

The fire department answered three fire calls yesterday and extinguished two small and one more serious. A chimney at the Normal & Collegiate Institute at 6:15 o'clock yesterday morning was responsible for the first fire. Last night at 8:21 o'clock a call came from Reed Farm, the residence of C. B. Moore. Little damage was done at either place.

The third fire occurred at the residence of J. L. Ray, on Marcellus street, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning and it resulted in a loss of several hundred dollars. The firemen made a fast run and overcame the fire by use of chemicals.

TO APPLY FOR THE THIRD OFFICERS' TRAINING CAMP

A large number of young men from this city, who are now in the service at Camp Reyer and Camp Jackson, will be examining for entrance to the third officers' training camp, which will open on January 5. This camp will be only for men who are enlisted in the service and considering the large number of men who have graduated from the city and county, more than 200 into the National guard companies and over 175 to Camp Jackson, it would seem that Asheville would be well represented at the third camp.
