Politeness. BY MRS. L M. CHILD.

It is a graceful habit for children to say thinga I dislike so much as a miniature beau or belle. But the habit of good manners by no means implies affectation, or restraint. It is quite as easy to say, " Please give me a piece of pie," as to say, "I want a piece

The idea that constant politeness would render social life too stiff and restrained. springs from a false estimate of politeness. True politeness is perfect ease and freedom It simply consists in treating othere just as you love to be treated yourself. A person who acts from this principle will always be said to have " sweet, pretty ways with her. It is of some consequence that your daughter should know how to enter and leave a room gracefully; but it is of prodigiously more consequence that she should be in the habit of avoiding whatever is disgusting or offensive to others, and of always preferring their pleasure to her own. If she has the last, a very little intercourse with the world will teach her the first.

I believe nothing tends to make people so awkward as too much anxiety to please others. Nature is graceful; and affectation with all her art, can never produce any thing half co pleasing. The very perfec-tion of elegance is to imitate nature as closely as possible; and how much better it is to have the reality than the imitation. I shall probably be reminded that the best and most unaffected people are often constrained and awkward in company to which they are unaccustomed. I answer the reason is, they do not act themselves ; they are afraid they shall not do right, and that very fear makes them do wroag. Anxiety about the opinion of others, fetters the freedom of nature. At home, where they act from within themselves, they would appear a thousand times better. All would appear well, if they never tried to assume what they do not possess. Every body is respectable and pleasing so long as he is perfectly natural. I will make no exception-nature is always graceful. The most secluded and the most ignorant have some charm about them, so long as they affect nothing; so long as they speak and act from the impulses of their own honest hearts, without any anxiety what others think of it.

Coarseness and vulgarity are the effect of education and habit; they cannot be charged upon nature. True politeness may be cherished in the hovel as well as in the palace; and the most tattered drapery cannot conceal its winning charms.

As far as consistent with your situation and duties, early accustom your children to an intercourse with strangers. I have seen young persons who were respectful and polite at home, seized with a most painful and unbecoming bashfulness as soon as a guest entered. To avoid this evil, allow children to accompany you as often as possible when you m ills and soci its. Occasional interviews with intelligent and cultivated individuals have a great influence on earthly character and manners, particularly if parents evidently place a high value upon acquaintances of that description. I have known the destiny of a whole family greatly changed for the better, by the friendship of one of its members with a person of superior advantages and correct principles .- Mother's Assis. tant.

subsistence, no poison exists, for where there is poison, its effects will be manifest. The production and use of alcohol is a device of man, a perversion of God's good gifts. God has also given map the power of speech that he may utter right things, but how often does he abuse this power, to blaspheme his name and utter lies ; and the power of vision that he may admire and rightly estimate the beauty of his works, but how much does he turn away and seek after forbidden objects, and an inward monitor to warn him of evil, but how generally does he stifle its whisperings. These are all perversions of good things; and as well might we justify sin, because all our facul. ties may be enlisted in its service, as justify the use of alcohol, because it may be made from all the products of the soil. Its invariable effect upon mind and body show plainly that it is a device of the enemy of God and man. Alas ! too well has it done its work .- Temperance Almanck.

Impudence Punished.

Never was a piece of impudence more beautifully rewarded than yesterday, in a case which came under our especial observation. We record it for the benefit of the rising generation, as well as for the benefit of the generation which has already risenfor a neater rebuke was never yet administered since the adoption of the Federal Constitution. About six o'clock last evening two bucks, well known about town for their very "free and easy" deportment, were seen strolling upon St. Charles street. near Tivola Circle. They were evidently in search of adventure, if one could be permitted to judge from the manner in which they surveyed every house they passed, as well as every person they met, females especially. The conclusion to which we arrived was that they had managed at the dinner table to deposite an extra quantity of wine where Moore kept his heart, videlicet beneath his vest. At length they met a lady who seemed to suspect, before she reached them, that their object was to gaze into her face, and as she approached them she discovered something wonderfully interesting upon the opposite side of the street, which she had not fairly surveyed until the gentlemen (?) had passed her.

'I say, Jack !' said one of them with a genteel hiccough, 'did you see her face ?' 'No I didn't, did you ?'

'No, but I should like to, shouldn't you ? How like a Juno she steps off, and what a beautiful shaped woman she is, is ntshe ?

'Fine upon my word-I'm bound to see dents, and live without the jurisdiction of this her face ; there's nothing like boldness, I'll Court-It is therefore ordered, adjudget and de-'Fine upon my word-I'm bound to see go and show her my handkerchief, and ask her if she han't dropped it.'

'Capital ! jake mine, it's a 'better one. cost me seventy-five dollars a dozen; it hasn't been taken from my pocket before.' Jack took the nicely folded and pesfumed handkerchief, and hastened after the lady, ber next, to see proceedings touching the probate new nearly a square in advance. I of the last will and testament of John Carson, 'I beg your pardon, madam,' said Jack, dec'd., in solemn form.

LANDS FOR SALE.

THE subscriber, wishing to remove to the South West, will offer for rale to the highest hidder, at the Court House in Asheville, on the 1st Mon-day in October next, the following tracts of Land (namely): One tract situated in Henderson coun-ty, on Boilston creek, containing stock farm ; containing at least 100 acres of the best meadow land, (of which 40 or 50 acres is now eleared and protty well set in grass) and heing in a very respectable neighborhood, near the finest summer range in that or any of the adjoining counties. One other tract in Buncombe county, ituated four miles north of Asheville, contain large portion of which is strong tillable soil, with 30 or 40 acres of good meadow ground. One other tract, lying 121 miles above the Warm Springs, on the State road, and known as the Red Oak Bottom Stand. It contains of rich knob land, lying on both sides of the rive one-fourth of which may be advantageously cult vated. Its location as a public stand is certain equal at this time to any on the river, and by the crection of a toll-bridge across the river, woul doubtless become greatly superior, from the consideration that a large share of the travelling com munity would be secured to a road leading westwardly through Waynesville and southerly by the Sulphur Springs to the Flat Rock, shortening the present distance from 8 to 10 miles. THE liberal patronage and extensive circula-tion of the first volume of this journal, induces the Proprietors to issue a prospectus for the second volume—confident of continuing to receive, as they will ever labor to merit, a liberal share of ublic patronage. Our course in future shall be much as heretofore We shall labor to ascertain the truth in regard to the various subjects which may claim our atten-tion; and when ascertained, we will faithfully and fearlessly proclaim it—regardless alike of the smilesor frowns of those whom it may affect. As the paper is our own—established for the benefit of the country in which we live—we call no man master-deny all servility to any man or set of Anti-Universalism, | kinds-men-think for ourselves-form our own opinions Together with various other pamplets, Track, -write for ourselves-and candidly publish what, &c., on interesting subjects; all of which will be we think will be most instructive and useful to our readers, without enquiring whether it will be acceptable to this, that, or any sect or party. In Pozrnes, we have hitherto acted with the Whig party, because we believed that the measures quested to come forward and settle at once, and advocated by them were most compatible with the general good. We still believe it, and shall continue to act with that party so long as its members advocate the principles which now characterize We believe we can safely say that in no case have we ever prostituted our paper to the unhallowed purposes of detraction and abuse. In many instances we have felt called upon to speak plainly in reference to the character and conduct of prominent individuals; and in doing so, have necessarily, in many instances, been severe; and exposed corruption and crime because we were fully vinced that the public good required it-but in no case have we wantonly assailed the character, or needlessly exposed the faults of any. This shall continue to be our course. We are the open enemies of vice and immorality-and no rank or condition shall shield it from its merited rebuke. We hope never to lose sight of the Educational and Agricultural interests of our readers. To insist upon the necessity and advantages of edu. cation in general-in point out and contrast the various means of imparting it, and to throw all possible light upon the question how it can be best promoted throughout the country—is what we consider the duty of the public press at all times. "THERE'S ALCOHOL IN EVERY THING."

This is a favorite argument with many opposers of total abstinence, and is general. ly uttered with a triumphant, and sometimes even with a reverent air, as if alcohol evaded all space, and was almost the soul, or at least an essential part, of God's creation. One thing is certain, that a large part of our race, in all ages of the world. have made it their god, have paid it devout homage, have surrendered it to their temporal and eternal good. But the doctrine that alcohol is in every thing, in our grain, our bread, our vegetables, our fruit, and that it is therefore idle to denonnce it, and wicked to declare war against it, is entirely without foundation. It has, however, presented difficulties to many good friends of our cause, and we will, therefore, briefly examine it.

Alcohol, wherever it is found, is an intoxicating article; and in those liquors that contain the least of Vit, such as cider, wine, and beer, produces an immediate excitement, in a greater or less degree, according to the quantity drank. "There's alcohol in every thing," says our oppo-nent. Will you please, sir, to enter with me into that field of grain, now waving gracefully in the wind, and indicating by its color and drooping heads, that it is ripe for the harvest ; or, go to the orchard, whose trees are loaded with golden fruits; or enter that vineyard, whose white or purple clusters invite to a rich, nourishing and healthful baaqut, and show me, in either, a drop of that poisonous, intoxicating arti-cle, called alcohol ? Eat until you are filled of either grain or fruit, and then tell me if you experience the least sensation of intoxication. Gather any of the grains or fruits, and lay them aside and partake of them at any period, until decay has destroyed them, and again say do you feel the effects of alcohol. Then go abroad throughout all God's works ; range earth, air, and ocean, and show us a particle of this poison in any of their products in their natural state. We hesitate not to say, you will find it not ; it is not to be found ; and we call upon you, therefore, to retract your assertion, and no longer deceive yourself, nor bewilder others, by a doctrine so unfounded.

It is true, alcohol may be made by fer-mentation, and separated by distillaton, from almost the whole vegetable world. A deadly poison may also be obtained, both from air and water. But, in the state in which a bountiful Creator has provided air and water for our use, as well as such ye. gotables and foulses are intended for our hat off, 'I think you dropped this.' pair of the keenest eyes in the world, dropped half a courtesy, took the handkerchief and with a freezing 'thank you sir,' walked quictly on her way. The smile, so ex-quisitely composed, which rested upon her lips as she tripped down street, was a perfect disphragm convulser. The poor beau stood for a moment as thunderstruck ; but a most hearty and unaffected haw ! haw ! haw ! from a rough fellow, who stood gazing over the philing, and had witnessed the entire operation, recalled him to his senses. He joined his companion and they hastily moved away.

RICHES .- It is a strange delusion for riches. Contentment is not to be found in splendor and magnificence; or why is it that princes have sometimes exchanged the grandeur of the palace for the more simple countenance of a rich man furrowed with thought and anxiety; while the poor go on Why does the man who has grown in wealth, look back to the days of his poverty, and ask himself why he cannot now rejoice as heartily over the much as he did over the httle ?

Description.

GEORGE is near six feet high; of a black, rough complexion; talks a little soft, or broken; effects to be witty; and is rather insolent or careless in conversation. The middle finger on his left hand, I think, is stiff, and probably a large scar on the great toe of his left foot, near the insertion of the nuil, occasioned by the cut of an axe, and the end of the toe pointed downwards. Had on when he left home, a new cotton and tow shirt and pantaloons, an old wool hat, and imsey jacket ; but as he has the funds necessary with him, he will pro-bably change his clothing the first opportunity.
