THOS. W. ATKIN. EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE MESSENGER Two Dollars and Firry Cants per annum e, or THERE DOLLARS within the year. paper will be discontinued, except at the op-the Editor, until all arrearages are paid.

Could it be the devil himse extluements will be inserted at One Dollar pare of ten lines or less, for the first insertion, MIT-FIVE CENTS for each continuance nargin, or the advertisement will be continu-orbid, and charged accordingly. Court Or-l be charged twenty-five per cent extra.

MISCELLANEOUS.

From the Hartford Columbia e old Boy and the old Girl. A LEGEND OF NEW AMSTERDAM.

The time, was the year 1690; the scene growing colony of New Amsterdam; the ce, a soug little Dutch house; and the subet of the following tale, David Stants, and And who was David Staats ? He and a little short built fellow, not very rich and not very smart. In former days he had ceb very comfortable; but owing to after cumstances, all comforts had long depart-He had accidentally become acquainted with Miss Amelia Gull. She was nearly six feet to height, with a face of brass, and a voice like the sound of a cracked coffee-pot. Yearly fifty years of age, yet in spite of all her efforts, she had never succeeded in becoming a belle; she had never even received moffer, and, as time wore on, she began to ecriously alarmed lest it should be her fateto live and die au old maid. Therefore, as a esource, she set her cap for David Stants. David was an unsuspecting soul. The languishing smile of Amelia Gull delin, and in an evil hour he made her Stuats. But, although he had up Gullher, he soon found that she had gulled him he pleasant glances of his wife vanished, d in their place came a look partaking v of the nature of vinegar. Every he was a fool, and he began to be e it. She ruled him with an iron hand .id never had much courage. He was neable to face the wrath of a man, and how d he be expected to triumph over the of a woman? Amelia's will was law she commanded was done, for he nalty of disobedience. Under hitortures, bie flesh felt off: long beart, and it was very evident to all was unhappy. Every body pitied him wife, and she extended her rule and more every day. ne an exceedingly stormy night. wn in such torrents that it seem e very heavens were splitting, and machimney gave evidence of the viom wind. David Stunts sut by his ne, musing on his troubles. The was unheeded; there was a seirn to think of any thing else. At last up a praise worthy resolution. His ne words, and he muttered ing like the following: "Thunder and g, just as if I was going to mind her ! usband, and she's my wife. Then t to obey me. But instead of that, me round, just if I was that dog. e, Zeb-lie down ; you're my only continued, as the intelligent aniraised himself, and licked his man-torrent of anger. for to make a brute of me? Well,

Zeb a kick the room, enquiries, leb a snighe storm. Sitting do or could get rid of her in some way. I real. I give you another bag of gold? She kicks ly believe I would give my soul to the devil, up a terrible rumpus here. She has just chopif could bring that about."

He accidentally looked round just then .-He started in affright, for sitting at his side was a little man, dressed in a full suit of black. after a happier man. Could it be the devil himself? He glanced

"So you are looking for them, are you?" said the stranger, lifting up his cloak and presenting to view the prettiest pair of hoofs that ever grew on man or beast. "Or if you want any other evidence, look here !" and un- affairs of this nature. buttoning his coat, he slowly unbound from his body a long black, beautiful, shiney tuil; which he drew through his fingers with all the ease and grace with which an exquisite handles his silver-topped cane.

" Now isn't that a beauty? I take particular delight in it. Just see how soft and silky it is." continued his Satanic majesty, handing the tuil over to David who recoiled in affright. Quaker merchant of this city. "Oh! you are afraid of it, are you? Well, some are, sometimes." he added, as he rewound it round his body, buttoned his coat, and smiled complacently.

David said nothing, but he looked as if he would gladly have been away.

" It's a stormy night," said the devil, startng a new theme

"Yes, s.s.sir," gasped poor Staats.

" How's the crops ?" " Pretty well, thank you."

ed to get out.

"O! is that all? I can easily fix that !now see," replied the devil. He put his foot on the pile. There was a sudden hissing; a thick steam prose; it filled the room, so that no object was visible. When it cleared away the wood was dry. His majesty piled it on the fire, until it was so insufferable hot that David could hardly breathe.

"Ah, well now it begins to be a little comfortable. I thought as it was raining I would just step in and see you for a few minutes. I was going to get a small invoice of souls that are waiting for me at the pext town. Besides that, I intended to thrash an artist who painted me with a pair of orns, which is an insult to my dignity that son alive."

Staats 1

make you a bet. I will free you from your were fought. During the first rounds and wife and give you a bog full of gold, if you till the 70th bets were freely offered in favor her deluge was coming to devantand a person that will whip me. If you can't of Smith, but there were no takers. Up to soul. Do you agree !"

A sedien thought struck the host, " Yes he cried, engerly. The devil's eyes sparkled. He felt sure of winning. They shook hands a agitating his breast, which for- Suddenly David Stants throw the po over to the other side of the room. Next the ter staggered and was so blinded by the shovel went the same way. Finally, he threw down with a great crash the dresser, full of dates. This had the desired effect. Mrs.

44 You go to grass," her husband enswe d, as he imitated the loud bark of poor Zeb The favely Amelia sprang up in a perfect

"Now isn't it too bad that she of How dare you let that dog in again? shouted she, as she bounced into the room the next time she says any thing " And what are you doing here I you villain, as her eye fell upon the devil, who sat wonwill you?" he heard in an an- dering at the scene, and whom she misto to his ears. Gracious heat for some company which her husband was he was, her eyes glowing with entertaining unbeknown to her. A smootha coals of fire. She entered ing iron was instantly raised; his majesty received by him, and had heard membered his bet; be trembled; he turned muttered soliloguy. "Take to face the vixen; the smoothing iron flew ms. I' she said, and he receiv- through the air, he dodged it; another one e ear which nearly knocked was caught up; the terrified guest made a that!" and he felt a similar precipitate retrent; she followed; he gained other side of his head, the door; she was close behind him; she "Now go and get enught hold of his cost tail; he stamped on don't you see it is almost the ground; it opened; down he went with incredible swiftness, but she still kept hold. it rains !" said David, in a The last that David Staats ever saw of his urage evaporating wife, she had hold of the shricking devil with her left hand, while with her right she still fied the gentle pummelled him. The earth closed up, and to go? And all was still. That night David let his dog in this room, in, and together they passed a more pleasant if with you, evening than they had spent for some years

> The next day he found at his bed-side large bag of gold with the following note: " Dear Sir :- I acknowledge that I have ost. You fairly took me in. If you had told me that you intended to bring forward your wife, I should certainly have backed out. n, and I send you the bag of gold with this letter .wife As for your wife, I would have had hard work to carry her off according to the agreement bowl if she had not come voluntarily.—But she prefers to remain in my dominions, as the place agrees with her temper better than any many a day, is the following :

> > Your faithful friend till death. BELZEBUB. " P. S .- Will you take back your wife if ped off three inches of my tail."

But as David Staats never did take back his wife, it is heedless to say that he was ever

Marriage of John Ross. HARTWELL'S HOTEL. PHILADELPHIA, TUESDAY, SEPT. 3.

To the Editor of the New York Tribune : Another grand wedding party has come off at this delightful house, so celebrated for John Ross, the celebrated Cherokee chief, was married in the President's parlor of this prosperity depends upon it. The Democrat hotel last night to Miss Mary B. Stapler, of says: Wilmington, Delaware. He is about 55, and she is only 18 years of age; she is a very beautiful girl and highly accomplished, and belongs to the Society of Friends, or did. Her father was formerly a highly respectable as bridesmaids. He had collected several of who work for two shillings a day, and sell ily pasty of twenty of the Ross's (all half. Com Mr. Polk is opposed to a protective tabreed Indians) sat down to a most sumptuous riff! banquet, for the preparation of which he had The repeal of the tariff, as advocated given Hartwell a carte blanche, and a most ele. Giv. Polk, would injure the TAILOR. 1 gant affair it was. Ross is considered to be we have no protective tariff, wearing appa-"Glad to hear it. Why, how cold it is worth half a million of dollars. He purpohere. Why don't you put on some more ses sojourning with his beautiful bride at this excellent hotel for a short time; after which "The w-w-wood's w-wet," David manag- he goes straight to his wild home in the South- to Canada for them, or go to a clothing store Carolina, " Where has the American furmer western prairies.

> A Prize Fight near Boston. A brutal prize fight came off near Boston a few days since, the following account of which we find in the Times:

The combatants were Prof. Joseph Long o styled an American, and Jack Smith, an Englishman, well known as a tough, but not large professor of the pugilistic art. Long's weight is about 150, and Smith's some dozen or fifteen pounds less. The bets of the imnediate backers were about $300 a side .-The pugilistic party numbering over a hundred, all too in profound secresy, started on Monday about two o'clock, A. M., and after Brewster," one of the lower Islands in the to make the clothes worn by their fellow-citinced at 9 o'clock. A. M. The fight come and continued two hours and a quarter. The bets were keavy, and mostly in favor of the lieve me, I see; but I will Englishmen. One handred and six rounds the bottom, as well as the sgility of Smit seemed to be superior to his opponent's. But the tables were soon turned—a alls on both sides were beavy. Long's fi lid great execution, and Smith's came lazil to the work-till at the 100th round, the la arfored, talked about a foul blow being given, and the fight was closed. During the last rounds, it was necessary to lance the eyes of Smith, in order to let him see his op-

VERY Monesy .- A lady in New York re ently stopped her paper because it told a bentory embracing naked facts. A lady in th penking of an orntor who made a politic each, said he stripped the subject of all its ne scane : and the better to effect my object appeared entirely ignorant of what was go pinting towards the pen. . They are ban a man," was the ready reply. ' What! aid I, hanging a man in this age of civiliza ion and refinement !" Yes, said the fellow and if you are not in favor of hanging, w ught to be hung yourself!' And I sopport aid 1, ' you would like to do it.' 'Yes, hould. One fellow was swearing aw nost justify: " It is too had a said he there ody lanes to support the Government, and con't anufactories of Pittaburg may be deriv from a knowledge of the fact that upwards one hundred and fary tons pig metal is melted nere daily, and converted into all the var ies of wrought and cast iron. The stock is supplied by the various furnaces on the Allerivers, and the states of Ohio, Ke Tennessee, all of which forward to Pittsbu as their main market for the sale of metal.

A HARD CASE .- Rev. C. Spoor attende se recent hanging of Hall, the murderer, at

The latest song of a despatring lover, a the most expressive that we have heard for in a most shocking manner, and left almost Gone-gone forever and the ho For which so long I've trusted; Ann Maria has taken slope And I am done and busted.

From the American Whig-Facts For Mechanic

We find, in the Rochester Democrat, an article which should be read by every mechanic ic in the country. There is not a branch manufactures which would not suffer immer urably by the operation of Mr. Polk's views on the tariff. The question of the importance of protection for our manufactures, has long been settled in the minds of those who have examined the subject. Yet there are some who do not advocate such a measure, whose

Let us support our own mechanics, in preference to the mechanis of France and Env. land, Polk's anti-tariff doctrine will injure the American hatter, tailor, and shoe-maker: It will injure the HATTER; for if the present protective duties are removed from She was given away by her brother, and dressed furs and manufactured hats, the Eng. attended by a sister and niece of John Ross lish hatter will send in his hats, made by men his daughters and nephews from boarding. them at lower prices than they can be sold schools, &c. in New Jersey, to be present at for by the American hatter who pays his jourthe wedding, and, after the ceremony, a fam. neymen from ten to twenty shillings a day .-

rel of every description will be brought this country from England. Whenever a locofoco wanted a suit of clother he would send coats, vests, and pantaloons, made in England. When this shall happen what will become of American TAILORS? Where will our journeymen tailors find work? Who will employ them? They would find every Polk locofocn wearing English made coats, vests, and pantalouns, because the price of labor in England would enable the English clothier to send his wares here and sell then cheener than they could be made in this country. What say American tailors to such a policy? Do they want to see their fellow citizens wearing coats made in England 1 16 they do, they should vote for Polk, who goes against a protective tariff. But If they wish

The repeal of a protective tariff would inure the BOOT AND SHOEMAKER. In the French boot-maker to sell his product caper than the article can be made by Ameran mechanics, who pay their journeymen from 100 to 200 cents par day. To vment to tens of thousands of Amerirneymen boot and shoe makers. Bu Gov. Polk wants to repeal the existing tariff, and to reduce the duty so low that French ots and shoes might be sent in here and id at prices below that which the Ameri ot and shoomsker can afford to sell for. de is done, every one will buy French b id shoes; or elso our own journeymen sh akers will have to work for half their pre ent wages. Do our shoemakers wish to see American farmers, and mechanics, and laborers, and merchants, wearing French boots and shoes? If they do not, and wish to still ike boots and shoes for their fellow-citizens, and receive thir prices for their labor, they and by the friends of a protective tamerican boot and shoemakers!

Locoloco Victories, alias Outrages Some time since we noticed an account of diabelical outrage perpetrated by certain ocos, headed by one Godfrey Pope, upon a w oescenble Whigs, who were at work in a nill not far from Louisville. They went in be night, entired them out, and beat then scoundrels who were returning from a peofoce meeting at Belleville, and on pass. g a house where there was a Whig pole and threw brickbate, ec. at it: an old lade. rears of age, went out and begged them to desist, when she, horrid to relate, was beaten lifeless. It is perhaps wrong to áttach ble to a party for the conduct of certain of its members, but when such repeated acts of vipleace are perpetrated, by bodies of Lecofo. Hickory .-- Polk's Biography. cos at a time, one cannot resist attributing it | So has the Whig party of Tennessee.

entirely to the disorgnaizing spirit so rife in that party. That love of strife and blood son in 1828 and '32, has not yet been wholi eradicated from the popular mind, and unle the lovers of good order now sten forward and crush the bydra in its infancy, there are those now living who will witness the most dreadful scenes perpetrated under the influence of party spirit .- Hopkinsville, Ky , Gazette.

A Chance for the Braggers. The Winchester, Virginia, Republic ontains the following:

"We are authorized by a gentlen Fauquier to offer his Mill property in Warren county, which has just been completed with six pairs of burrs and other muchi at a cost of thirty thousand dollars, as a stake gainst fifteen thousand dollars in money, or he same amount of property, upon the general result-namely, that Henry Clay will be elected President of the United States over James K. Polk. All further infor the subject will be fornished at this office,

" Mr. Bushrod Taylor's bet of $10,000 to $8,000 on the general result is yet on ed, and, with all the boasting about Polk's anticipated success, no puo has, yet ventur

When Gen. Jackson, in 1824, was a warm tariff man, (it will be recollected that he was in the city, whose shelves would be filled with a market for his surplus produce?" And that question is just as pertinent now as it was then-had so is the answer, which we give a foreign par a home market. Does not this clearly prove, when there is no market either it home or abroad, that there is too much labor employed in agriculture? Com ense at once points out the remedy. Tik men, women, and children, and you will at once give a market for more breadstuffs than all Europe now furnishes us." The Whi party are disposed to act upon the counsel of parbor, and within the county of Suffolk and zens, they must vote for HENRY CLAY the leader of the Democracy, though his own aken, not 600,800, but about four mi of men, women, and children from agriculture, who, instead of making their own breadstuffs, buy our's. And if Gen. Jackson was correct in his computation, that the abstracion of 600,000 persons from agricultur vould give us a more extensive market for breadstuffs than all Europe, it is not difficult secretain the Immense benefits which reult to the agricultural interest from the exusion of the manufacturing system, nor to timate the injury which would accrue to the planter and farmer by its overthrow .- Lynch.

> Some people seem to be surprised at Mr. Polk's uniform votes in Congress to deprive he old revolutionary soldiers of their pe We don't think it at all strange that he med this course, for we presume that he finds muelf in a predicament similar to that in shigh the Cincinnati Atlas ares p zealous loo in this state was placed when asked a few ays since if he intended to vote the Whig ket, he replied, " Na! contound the Whige! ey hung my grandfather in the Revolutionary

The Loculocos claimed Kentucky before the election. The people sleeided for Clay and Frelinghuysen. They claimed North Carolina also: but the old North State reat diated them by a decided vote. They coniff, and VOTE FOR HENRY CLAY, sidered Indiana us certain for themselves, nd NOT for James K. Polk, who wishes to when lo, the election returns came in and the ploy the French and English rather than Whigs were victorious! Now, they swear positively that these election returns only rove that Polk is certain of being elected According to Locofoco logic, then, his prospects increase as state after state declares for Clay and the country.- Huntsville Adv.

Hon. Edward Stanley.

It is gratifying to us to find that this up haunted patriot, has been returned to the House of Commons of North Carolina, from rge body went over to Indiana to have a jol- the patriotic County of Beaufort. He is tru- every stale thus far since ly a gallant fellow, and most gallantly have paign opened, in which a United States Sense, where there was a Clay pole with a the people come forth to do him and them. ed to knock it down, and on selves honor. To represent such a people as tories in Connecticut, Virginia, Kontucky, ned with by the ledy of the those of Beaufort, is a distinction of which me and her little sons, (she being a lone any representative might well be proud; nor vides.) threw stones at her, and hart severe- is it less distinction for such a people, to-li presented by so fearless and incorru SOWARD STABLE -- Amer. Whie

Is it not strange that at the north the friends f " Polk, Dallas, Free Trade, and Texas." Congress, that they will sustain the Tariff of Lardent champion both of a Bank and a P. 842, and oppose the ameration of Texas? tive Tariff, it is hard to imagine what a What does the Richmond Enquirer think of can mean by such silly effrontery. this " holding with the hare, and running with the hounds ?"-- Lynch. Vir.

Mr. Polk has grown up by the side of Old

The Contrast of Parties. The Whigs are in favor of a SOUND NATIONAL CURRENCY, in order that when a man labors, he may be paid in money which will pass any where at par value, so that industray may get its full reward.

The Locofoces are opposed to the only rational plan, by which such a currency can be duced, and have, by their ill judged policy, destroyed the best circulating medium which any country was ever blessed, and are now for fastening the Sub-treasury upon the country, which would supply good mo overament and its officers, and had

The Whigs are for an ECONOMICAL GOVERNMENT: the revenue to be raised by a Tariff, imposing such duties on imports. as will encourage and protect the industry of the mechanic, manufacturer, laborer, and farmer, and provide a certain market at home, for the surplus produce of the latter.

The Locofoces are for "free trade," the feat ruction of the Tariff, and, consequently or defraving a large portion of the expenses of the general government by Direct Toxes a course of policy which would upsettle all existing relations in society, impose heavy rious of employment, operate in favor of Buropean workmen, and ruln every man in is country who supports himself by a mechanical or agricultural profession.

The Whigs are for restraining the dent in the exercise of the Veta power, in order that the hands of the People, through their Representatives, may be strengthened, and that the Law making power shall be made to conform mure to the popular will.

The Locofoces are for continuing to the president his present kingly prerogative, the VETO, by which it to within his comp in the first instance, to defect a law, t that law might be called for by the ur vote of the people's representativesdefeat in the last resort, unless two third the members of both branches of Cor should re-couct it; thus giving to one mun a ower imminently dangerous to the union

The Whigs are for distributing the eds of the Public lands among the o whom it belongs-in order that the state may be enabled to pay their debts, and t

The Locofocos are opposed to this, and fer to see the states rounin involved in debt and the people oppressed by taxes.

The Whigs are for restraining public cers from interfering in elections, otherwi than by freely voting their sentiments, so the the people, who pay them for their pervices may not be embarrassed by their official inter

The Locofoces are for organiz ie Officers into a corps of active ers, to control and overawe the people in ! xereise of their elective franchise

The Whige are for limiting the inof the Presidential office to one term, so to take away from the President all te tion to neglect the business of the nation the furtherapce of personal efforts to

The Locafocos are opposed to this; and, o course, favorable to in system of log-rolling of his first election, will be engaged in working for a re-election, instead of devotine his me and abilities to advance the country's

The White are for reducing the Pa ditures, so as to lessen the burthers of the REASED the expenditures to an alarming extent, and it is fair to infer, if they had on of the government, that they would do a

This is a brief though importial contrast of the principles and objects of the two parties and it remains for the people to my which they will choose-the Whige who perform visit they promise, and whose only him is their country's good or the Lo-

UNITED STATES SENATE -It is worthy remembrance that the Whigs have carried afor is to be chosen, and lost more. Our vicand Indiana, are thus rendered double estifactory .- Wilmington Chron.

THE COOLEST THING YET .- The Rock fer Darke thinks that the Whig Editors would some Locos if they only would read the works of J. flerson and Madison! When the world knows that Madison recor signed the Charter of the U. S. Bank in 1816. are requiring pledges of their nominees for and was to the day of his death the while and

> The MORMONS have take no part in the st Election. This lifts a